Stresses Wisdom of Keeping Expenditures Within Receipts—Debt Payment Means Lower Levy.

URGES BUREAUS TO CONTINUE ECONOMY

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
20-22 Wyatt Building.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—President Coolidge reminded Congress last night that he favored reduction of the National debt rather than excessive reduction of taxes.

Speaking before the fourteenth semi-annual meeting of the Business Organization of the Government, the President said: "It is far better to have no tax reduction than to have too much. We have the public debt to which to apply every dollar of whatever surplus may accrue. That indirectly is tax reduction. Every dollar applied to the debt saves perpetually the interest on that dollar. It is a contribution to the welfare of the people a logical step nearer adequate tax reduction."

The President viewed the work of the Budget Bureau for the last seven years and found it good. He stated that, as the result of "constructive economy," expenditures during the fiscal year ended last June were the lowest since the war. He urged the members of the business organization to keep up their good work, although expenditures for the current year would necessarily be greater than those of last year.

Moderate Reduction Only.

Commenting on the prospects for a tax reduction, this year, the President said:

"I have expressed myself in favor of further moderate tax reduction. I have indicated the maximum reduction we can now afford. There was no partisan thought in that recommendation. I hope there will be none in its final consideration by the Congress. We should not depart from the wise policy established, and thus far rigidly followed, of keeping our expenditures within our receipts. That I had in mind in making my recommendation. It has made a rich contribution to the present splendid financial status of the country. It has enabled us to hire money at a lower rate than any other business in the world. It has been effective in the maintenance of prosperity. It has the hearty indorsement of the tax payers. That policy of a balanced budget—expenditures within receipts—must not be molested.

"The great good which has come to this country from a balanced budget is too measureless, too far-reaching, even to suggest any other course. This nation is neither too weak nor too improvident to meet its obligations as they occur.

Problems to Be Met.

"The budget for 1929, which before casts a surplus of $252,540,000, is now before the Congress. The action so far taken by the Congress on that budget indicates no intention of diminishing the expected surplus. With continuation of the efforts for economy in Federal operations we can have a moderate reduction in taxes and at the same time adequately meet the urgent national problems, which are now confronting us. Past economy has given us the means for internal improvements and developments and more adequate national defense. But we cannot expand the cost of the things which we should and must have if we adopt excessive tax reduction."

The "moderate tax reduction" referred to by the President was the $225,000,000 cut recommended by the Treasury Department, which incidentally was exceeded by the House when it voted for a $289,000,000 reduction. The action of the House irritated Senate administration leaders so much that they forced the Senate Finance Committee to vote to withhold action on the revenue bill after March 15.

Move for "National Defense."

President Coolidge outlined to the budget officials the reasons why appropriations would be larger this year. "A large source of expense

KANSANS IN WASHINGTON APPLAUD CURTIS AT DINNER

Virtually Turn State Day Affair Into Rally for Senator for Presidency.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31. — The Kansas day dinner given here last night by the Kansas State society virtually was turned into a Curtis-for-President rally. Senator Curtis of Kansas, an avowed candidate for the Republican presidential nomination, was present and received an ovation when he rose to speak.

Declaring that his chief hope for 1928 was that his fellow Kansans "would be able to convince enough delegates at the convention in Kansas City that Kansas had the best candidate for President," Curtis said that at first he had not looked with favor on the movement in his behalf, but after "due consideration" had agreed to become the "favorite son" of Kansas Republicans.

WALKOUT OVER CUT IN WAGES

FALL RIVER, Mass., Jan. 31.—One Fall River cotton mill was closed and 100 weavers employed in another plant walked out yesterday as a wage reduction of 10 per cent became effective.

The Davol mills, with approximately 850 employes, were closed by the management when several loom-fixers walked out. They were joined by weavers employed on one floor of the weave-room. In the Davis mills, also employing about 850 weavers left their looms, but the manager said it would be open as usual today.

Eggs Reduced 10 Cents a Dozen.

A 10-cent drop in the price of eggs in the last week is attributed on Commission Row to increased production. Eggs were 42½ and 43 cents a dozen to retailers Jan. 23. Today they were 32½ cents a dozen.

DEPOSITIONS TELL OF INSANITY IN HICKMAN FAMILY

HIS MOTHER INSANE, SAYS FORMER NURSE

Mental Ailments Traced Back Several Generations by Counsel for Kansas City Youth.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Jan. 31.—Further testimony that traces of insanity were exhibited in several generations of the family of William Edward Hickman, confessed kidnaper and slayer of 12-year-old Marian Parker, was presented in Superior Court here today in the youth's sanity trial.

A deposition from Spencer Lane, 60 years old, of Hartford, Ark., in which he characterized the defendant's grandfather, Otto Buck, as "crazy," was read into the record by Jerome Walsh, defense attorney.

Lane described Buck as a "nutty guy." "He had epileptic fits and was what I called a 'fitified feller,'" said the deposition. "He didn't have sense enough to go to work and earn a living."

Opinion Based on Fits.

The State's cross-examination brought out that Lane's opinion of Buck's insanity was based mainly on his "fitified" tendencies. The witness also admitted that Buck did support his wife by his labor.

Mrs. Marshall Smith of Sugar Creek, Mo., and Kansas City, testified she was a nurse at the Little Rock (Ark.) State hospital for nervous disease from 1912 to 1915, and that she attended Mrs. Eva Hickman there in 1913. The witness testified the woman, who, she said, was the mother of William Edward Hickman, suffered from depression, and "was stubborn when she was to be given medicine or a bath." The patient was insane, in the opinion of the nurse.

Dr. L. R. Brown, superintendent of the Little Rock State Hospital, also testified to the confinement of Mrs. Eva Hickman at the institution. He said that the first act in which physicians saw alleged indications of insanity was her attempted suicide by taking poison. Brown added that she made threats to destroy both her children and herself.

It was brought out in the medical deposition that the alleged suicide attempt occurred two years before Mrs. Hickman was admitted to the hospital.

Dr. Brown described the woman as of "ordinary intelligence" and suffering from "simple depression."

Ordered to "Lunatic Asylum."

Official records were quoted by Walsh relating that the Probate Court of Greenwood County, Arkansas, ordered the commitment of Mrs. Eva Hickman to the "lunatic asylum" at Little Rock. The order was shown as issued upon the basis of complaints made by the woman's relatives and physicians, which included accusations of attempted self-destruction.

A hospital report on Mrs. Hickman, made by a Dr. Murphy, said: "She states she knows there have been times when her mind was not right in the last five years, and in these spells she wanted to die and be out of the way."

Dr. Murphy reported her "intelligence good," considering the "opportunities she enjoyed." He characterized it as a case of "simple depression."

Tells of Family Trouble.

Dr. H. P. Ruth of Tulsa, Ok., who also examined Mrs. Hickman termed her illness "mild dementia." Dr. Ruth said her condition came after she and her husband had considerable domestic trouble. He said the defendant's father, Thomas Hickman, ran away with a woman who worked in a restaurant at Hartford, Ark. It was "generally known that he was unfaithful to his wife," the physician said.

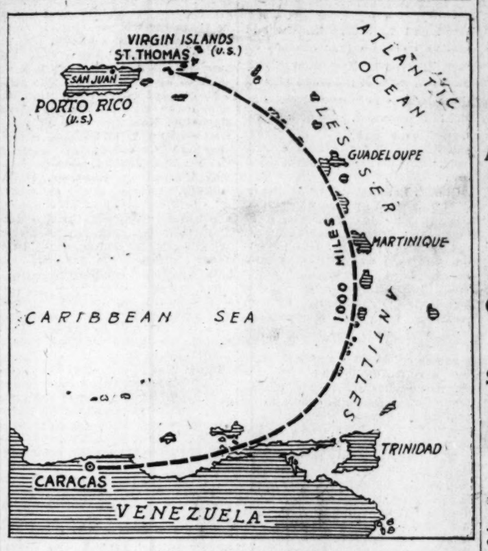

The elder Hickman, from whom Mrs. Hickman is divorced, remarried and now lives at El Paso, Tex.

Dr. Ruth said it was his conclusion that Mrs. Hickman's condition at the time of her illness "was the result of her worry over her family of five children and the unfaithful husband." He admitted that her mental ailment was of a spasmodic and curable type.

Stories of Hickman's ancestors, some of them long since dead, were brought into court yesterday in depositions which had been taken by prosecution and defense in Sebastian County, Arkansas. These

GOVERNMENT RESTS IN SINCLAIR CONTEMPT TRIAL

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—The Government completed its criminal contempt proceedings against Harry F. Sinclair, William J. Burns and their four associates today with the introduction of the record of the Fall-Sinclair oil conspiracy jury. The contempt charges grew out of the shadowing of the oil jury by Burns detectives employed by Sinclair.

As soon as the Government rested the defense started a series of motions to strike out of the record much of the evidence the prosecution had introduced.

Testimony of Edward J. Kidwell Jr., the alleged talkative juror, regarding telephone calls made to his place of employment during the oil trial was struck out. This testimony was intended by the Government to show the Burns agents used this method to keep track of the juror. The Government had failed to show who made the calls.

Original reports by Burns' detectives of their activities in shadowing the Fall-Sinclair oil conspiracy jury were retained in the record.

Tells German Reichstag He Hopes Proposal Will Lead To International Treaty.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Jan. 31.—Secretary Kellogg's invitation to France to join with the United States in establishing a series of peace pacts was characterized by Dr. Gustav Stresemann, Foreign Minister, in the Reichstag today as gratifying to Germany.

The minister made his first speech in six weeks, having been ill during most of that period.

"It is a cause of satisfaction that the United States in this matter showed active interest in the security problems," said Dr. Stresemann, "and it is to be hoped that thereby the Geneva discussions on this subject will receive new impetus."

SUBMARINE S-3 MISSING FOR TWO DAYS FOUND SAFE

On Her Way Under Own Power to Guantanamo, Cuba, Whither Control Fleet Is Bound.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—Fears that another disaster like that of the submarine S-4 had overtaken the navy were dispelled yesterday by the news that the S-3 was safe in Florida waters and speeding toward Cuba.

Missing since sundown last Saturday, the S-3, sister ship of the S-4, was found last night at 8 o'clock. Read Admiral Frank H. Brumby, commanding the control force of which the submarine was a part, in a message to the Navy Department gave no details beyond the fact that the S-3 was proceeding under her own power toward Guantanamo.

GRAND JURY TAKES UP SHORTWEIGHT INQUIRY

Hears Evidence on Alleged $175,000 Fraud by Berry-Bergs Coal Co.

Two or more indictments charging officers of the Berry-Bergs Coal Co. with obtaining money by false pretenses through short-weight deliveries probably will be returned by the grand jury today.

Assistant Circuit Attorney Bowcock began presentation of evidence to the jury in the forenoon. Bowcock conducted the waterworks coal shortage inquiry several years ago which resulted in two convictions.

William O. Soell, president, and James M. Whelan, secretary-treasurer of the Berry-Lee Co., were arrested recently and furnished $20,000 bond. Employes of the firm, arrested at the same time, were released on smaller bonds and probably will be used as State's witnesses, obtaining immunity for themselves. One employe estimated that city institutions and other customers were defrauded of $175,000 through short-weight fuel deliveries.

The Better Business Bureau, which has a special section to investigate complaints of short weight deliveries, substitutions and misleading advertising, today issued the following advice to coal buyers:

"Insist that the driver give you a ticket with the following information shown on it before he unloads your coal: Your name and address, the kind of coal you purchased, the gross, tare and net weights, the full name of the weigher, and the name of the company selling the coal.

"Keep the original ticket. Refuse to sign the duplicate for the driver until he has unloaded the coal.

"The State of Missouri requires that a ticket be given to the purchaser of coal. In St. Louis a special city ticket must be used with the seal of the Comptroller's office on the back."

U. S. SIGNS INTERNATIONAL IMPORT PROHIBITION TREATY

GENEVA, Jan. 31.—Hugh Wilson, American Minister to Switzerland, yesterday signed the convention drawn up by the Import and Export Prohibitions and Restrictions Conference here last October. In this fact optimists see an indication that American prohibition will be abolished in the near future.

They base their belief on an annex to the convention which declared France, Greece, Hungary, Italy, Portugal, Jugoslavia and Switzerland—that is to say, most of the chief wine-producing countries—are "fully convinced that prohibition of viticultural products cannot be justified under the provisions of the convention's Article Four."

This article deals with "prohibitions or restrictions imposed for public health and protection.

LINDBERGH MAKES 1000-MILE FLIGHT TO VIRGIN ISLANDS

GOVERNOR GREETS HIM ON LINKS

Signs Praising Flyer as "Conqueror of Distance" Set Up in City in His Honor.

By the Associated Press.

ST. THOMAS, Virgin Islands, Jan. 31.—Flying along the coast of Venezuela and around the inner circle of the lesser Antilles, on the Cirabbean Sea, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh made a 1000-mile flight today from Maracay, west of Caracas, the Venezuelan capital, to St. Thomas, the "Gibraltar of America."

Lindbergh left Maracay at 6:15 a. m. (4:15 a. m. St. Louis time) and reached St. Thomas at 4:50 p. m. (2:50 St. Louis time), covering the great distance in about 10½ hours.

The people of St. Thomas, an American possession, who had been on tip-toe of expectancy all day, gave the American good will ambassador a rousing welcome.

St. Thomas set up great signs bearing the slogans: "Welcome, Thou Conqueror of Distance. Viking of the Air! Perseverance, thy name is Lindbergh!"

The Governor of the islands welcomed the flyer at a landing field three miles west of the city. It is a golf course which has been smoothed and improved.

Tomorrow will be a public holiday and a public reception will be held in the open square.

CARACAS, Venezuela, Jan. 31.—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh left Maracay at 6:15 a. m. today for St. Thomas, the Virgin Islands, 1000 miles away. He followed the coast line instead of the direct air line which is 400 miles shorter.

It was 12:45 this morning before Lindbergh returned to Maracay, where the Spirit of St. Louis was housed, after attending a ball given in his honor last night by the Ministry of War at the Club Paraiso. The flyer left the ball at 10:30, having spent an hour there. He apologized for his short stay at Caracas and also his brief stay at the dance.

Among yesterday's ceremonies was a visit in the afternoon to the Pantheon, where Lindbergh placed a wreath on the tomb of Simon Bolivar, the Venezuelan liberator. Other incidents of the day included a visit to the United States Legation and a luncheon at the Country Club at Paraiso.

Not only does Lindbergh take with him the flag of Venezuela, painted among other national emblems on the "Spirit of St. Louis," he takes also the warm regard of another people. Behind him he leaves a pretty young Venezuelan girl who prizes three autographs he gave her. She gave him a small glove, one of her own, on which was embroidered in Spanish: "To the Twentieth Century Hero, the Lone Eagle, the Friendly Ambassador of the air." When she gave it she asked for something in return. Lindbergh, puzzled, scratched his head, then took a piece of paper and wrote on it.

HOUSE COMMITTEE FAVORS BILL TO BAR ARMS EXPORT

Passage of Burton Resolution Indorsed as Restraining Influence on Belligerents.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31—Enactment of the Burton resolution to prohibit the export of arms to belligerent nations was recommended to the House yesterday by its Foreign Affairs Committee as an effort "to harmonize the policy of this country in the furnishing of military supplies" with international regulations approved at the second Hague conference pertaining to naval warfare.

The resolution, unanimously approved last week by the committee, specifically enumerates articles of warfare against which an export bar would become operative upon the declaration of war by any nation. This bar could not be removed except by an act of Congress.

POLICEMAN FINDS STRANGE WATCH ON HIS COAT BUTTON

Owner, Who Recovers It, Thinks It Became Detached in Courtroom Jam.

"Officer, you're losing your watch," said a man to Patrolman Julius Wedemeier in a corridor of the Municipal Courts Building yesterday.

"Not me," replied the policeman. But he looked nevertheless and saw a white gold Elgin watch and chain dangling from one of his coat buttons. He had never before seen the watch.

Today Charles J. Fitzgerald, Deputy Clerk of the Court of Criminal Correction, identified the watch as his. He said he believed he had lost it in jostling through the courtroom crowd.

COLLIER AVIATION TROPHY AWARDED TO C. L. LAWRANCE

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—The Collier trophy for 1927 was awarded by the National Aeronautic Association today to Charles L. Lawrance for his work in developing the air-cooled engine.

The award is made annually for "the greatest achievement in aviation in America, the value of which has been demonstrated by actual use during the preceding year."

Lawrance, the association said, was the "pioneer in the development of the air-cooled engine in America." The original model of the present Wright whirlwind engine was designed by him in 1921.

"His far-sightedness for the future of aviation in this country, and his untiring energy in the development of this engine," the announcement added, "has brought it to its present state of perfection."

INFANTILE PARALYSIS AMONG STANFORD U. GIRL STUDENTS

By the Associated Press.

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Cal., Jan. 31.—All social activities at Stanford University have been indefinitely postponed, two swimming pools have been closed and other regulations are under contemplation as a result of the finding of several cases of infantile paralysis, it was announced yesterday. Out of seven cases reported six were discovered in Roble Hall, the girls' dormitory on the campus. The seventh case was found in a sorority house.

University authorities are said to be considering the advisability of canceling all scheduled athletic activities indefinitely.

S. A. Storey, Stanford Health Officer, said basketball and baseball games on the regular athletic schedule for the next three weeks were canceled.

MUSCLE SHOALS EARNINGS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—Receipts from power developed at the Government's Muscle Shoals properties have yielded between 1 and 2.2 per cent on the investment, Major-General Edgar Jadwin, chief of army engineers, estimated for the the House Appropriations Committee.

The total gross revenue from Wilson Dam, which was the only plant entering the calculations, during the two years of operation was fixed by Jadwin at $2,122,644. In addition, Jadwin testified, the Government is receiving $10,000 a month from the steam plant. The department asked for an appropriation of $275,000, but engineers considered the plant virtually completed and on an operating basis. The total power plant investment at Muscle Shoals was fixed at $140,000,000.

FAKE CONTINENTAL CONCERN'S EXCUSE FOR BEING IS AGAIN JARRED

DIRECT DEAL WOULD HAVE SAVED $8,000,000

Correspondence Shown at Senate Hearing Makes Sinclair's Story Seem Thinner Than Ever.

By PAUL Y. ANDERSON,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—The pretty story told by Harry Sinclair and Robert W. Stewart, head of the Standard Oil Co.—that they were not partners in the bogus Continencal Trading Co. (branded by the Courts as a fake corporation, but mere innocent buyers of oil from it—was rudely jolted at today's session of the Walsh Senate investigating committee. It is expected that Stewart himself will be called to the stand tomorrow, for his long-delayed cross-examination.

Pursuing his inquiry into the mysterious transaction which made possible the bribing of former Secretary of the Interior Albert B. Fall with $233,000 in Liberty Bonds, after he had secretly leased the Teapot Dome naval oil reserve to Sinclair, Senator Walsh called two oil men to testify. Notwithstanding that one of them displayed probably the blankest memory which a Senator has ever had the hardship to explore, Walsh succeeded in eliciting testimony which played havoc with the alibi maintained by Stewart and Sinclair.

Relationships Explained.

To understand the situation, it is merely necessary to recall that Fall received his "piece of cake" out of Liberty Bonds purchased with the profits which the Continental amassed by purchasing 33,333,333 barrels of oil from A. E. Humphrey at $1.50 a barrrel, and reselling it on the same day to two companies, at least one of which was owned outright by Sinclair and Standard of Indiana. This company was the Sinclair Crude Oil Purchasing Co. The other buyer was the Prairie Oil and Gas Co., also known as a Standard company.

It has been related that Stewart and Sinclair, as well as James O'Neill, head of the Prairie, and H. M. Blackmer, head of Midwest Refining, another Standard branch, were present when the purchase and resale of the oil were consummated.

The tale of Sinclair and Stewart, that they were mere purchasers, appeared thinner and thinner, as Senator Walsh read today letters and telegrams from the records of the parties involved, showing that Stewart was negotiating for the Humphrey oil even before the Continental was organized, and that the Standard and Sinclair subsidiaries could have purchased it direct from Humphrey, at a saving of 25 cents a barrel, thus saving their stockholders about $8,000,000. The question was: Why did they consent for the Continental to step in and take the profit? For they not only allowed it to do that—they actually assisted it—because the Continental was able to buy the oil only because Sinclair, Stewart and O'Neill guaranteed its credit to Humphrey.

Deal Made in Standard Office.

The gigantic shadows of Sinclair and Stewart enveloped all the doings of their subordinates. The meeting of the Sinclair Crude directors, at which the purchase of the Humphrey oil was ratified, was held in the Chicago office of the Standard of Indiana, although the Sinclair Crude office is in Indiana. There were numerous letters and telegrams relating to the oil which passed between Stewart and Blackmer, before the Continental began its fly-by-night career.

In short, the hypothesis that Stewart was an innocent customer, who walked in and bought oil across the Continental's counter because he needed the oil and had to buy the Continental's price, seemed little, if anything, short of absurd. It appeared perfectly plain that he could have stepped out and bought Humphrey's oil at any time he desired. Indeed, there was evidence that the Standard had an opportunity to buy Humphrey's company, lock, stock and barrel, before the time that Stewart had his deal with the Continental.

The natural conclusion from all this, of course, was that both Stew-

SENATOR HOWELL FOR THOROUGH POWER SURVEY

SAYS STATES' RIGHTS ARE NOT INVOLVED

Nebraskan, Engineer by Profession, Established Municipally-Owned Utilities in Omaha.

By PAUL Y. ANDERSON.
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—Senator Robert B. Howell of Nebraska gave his views of the Walsh resolution, under which Senator Walsh of Montana hopes to conduct a thorough investigation of the power industry in the United States, to the writer today. Howell is a member of the Interstate Commerce Committee, which has been considering the resolution, and he expressed particular surprise at the hostile attitude manifested toward the resolution by Senator Harry B. Hawes of Missouri.

"I certainly do not agree with Senator Hawes that the scope of the investigation should be limited," he declared. "In my opinion, it cannot be too broad. Nobody can be hurt by a thorough investigation except those power companies which have been robbing the public, and who wants to protect them? I do not."

Senator Howell, who is an engineer by profession, made his reputation in Nebraska by establishing and operating municipally-owned utilities in the City of Omaha. Hence he has a thorough technical and practical knowledge of the subject. Under the pressure of his municipal ownership campaign on Omaha, the rate on electricity for domestic consumption in that city dropped from 14 cents to six cents a kilowatt hour in five years. It has since been reduced to five and one-half cents.

Puzzled by Hawes' Attitude.

Referring to Hawes' insistence that the Walsh investigation be confined to power companies engaged in interstate business, Howell said: "I have been unable to ascertain what Senator Hawes means by that term. If he means only those companies whose lines cross a state border, then he is omitting one of the most important forms of interstate business. A company may not cross a state boundary with its transmission lines, and still be engaged in the interstate distribution of its securities.

"That company is in the interstate light and power business just as much as if its wires or conduits extended outside the State."

Hawes has opposed an inquiry into political and propaganda contributions made by power companies, unless those companies are engaged in what he calls "interstate business," and then only into contributions made to elect a President and Senators.

"It would be the easiest thing in the world to get around that," said Howell. "A company engaged solely in intrastate business might contribute toward the election of a President by giving its money to a local committee. Or a company in one State might contribute to the election of Senators and Congressmen in another State. Can anybody contend that Congress should not investigate such contributions? Certainly Congress has a right to investigate contributions to the election of Federal officers, whether made by intrastate or interstate companies.

Wants Free Hand for Inquiry.

"The investigation of campaign contributions is not the major purpose of this inquiry, but the authority should not be denied. Otherwise, the committee would be barred from pursuing threads which might lead to disclosures of the gravest importance to the whole nation. Why hobble it before it starts?

"The power trust is fighting this investigation because it realizes that it is charged with dynamite. Why else would it have a $25,000-a-month lobby on the job, employing every method to head off or limit the investigation?

"The fact is that the industry has been doing exactly as it pleased. Its profits are enormous. The industry has implanted in the American people the habit of paying exorbitant prices for electrical energy.

"The average price paid for electric current by domestic consumers in this country is not less than 7½ cents a kilowatt hour. This current can be produced in hydro-electric plants for four-tenths of a cent a kilowatt hour, and in steam plants for seven-tenths of a cent. So you get an idea of what the profits are.

Municipal Rates Cheaper.

"Cleveland has its municipal plant, and the maximum rate is three cents. In Ontario, where they have a publicly-owned super-power system, the average is in the neighborhood of two cents. Go into any city where a municipal plant is competing with a privately-owned plant, and you will find that the rates of the privately-owned plant are half what they were before the municipal plant was established.

"In Cleveland, in Springfield, Ill.; in Hagerstown, Md.; in Jamestown, N. Y., and in Omaha and Lincoln, the effect of public competition—either actual or threatened—has in every instance resulted in cutting the private companies' rates in half.

"Now take the other side of the case. Birmingham, Ala., is supplied by the Alabama Power Co. The maximum domestic rate is eight cents a kilowatt hour. That current is purchased by the Alabama Power Co. from the United States Government plant at Muscle Shoals for two-tenths of a cent a kilowatt hour, and resold to the public of Birmingham at eight cents—and they make the consumers sign a five-year contract, for fear something may happen to interefere with this good thing.

Says Charges Are Exorbitant.

"The cold, hard fact of the situation is, from an accounting and engineering point of view, that the cost of producing electricity bears absolutely no relation to the rates which are charged. The fact that this condition exists is sufficient to refute the argument (made by Hawes) that state regulation has proved effective. It has been a total failure.

"The investigation which Senator Walsh proposes here would expose this condition to the country. The investigation is of enormous importance, because it would awaken the people to the fact that they are being gouged to an incredible extent by the power and gas companies. And that is exactly why the companies are making such desperate efforts to block or render it harmless.

Refutes States' Rights Plea.

"Senator Walsh comes along and proposes an investigation which would reveal this rotten condition, and a lot of people pop up and begin talking about 'states' rights.' How are the rights of any state endangered by permitting a Senate committee to show the country how it is being robbed on power and gas rates? I fail to see it."

Says Power Trust Is Afraid.

"That is the ghost which frightens the Power Trust," he declared. "They see their good thing threatened. They are afraid of an investigation which will expose the exorbitant profits which they have been squeezing out of the public. The public has nothing to fear from the investigation. It is the power companies that are fighting it.

"There is still another side to be considered. At present we have absolutely no means of regulating the enormous issues of securities which are being floated. Investments in power stocks have been tremendous.

"But what is there to protect the investors against the day when some of the water may be squeezed out of these securities? The states cannot do it.

Would Protect Investors.

"Senator Hawes talks about 'interstate commerce.' Interstate traffic in securities is just as much interstate commerce as is interstate traffic in electricity and gas. These investors have a right to know what they are buying. The consumers have a right to know something about the dividends which come out of their pockets."

Johnson Introduces Resolution for Telephone Inquiry.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—Senator Johnson (Rep.) of California yesterday introduced a resolution for a far-reaching inquiry into the telephone systems, calling particular attention to rate increases he said were pending in California. It was sent to the Interstate Commerce Committee without debate.

Senator Johnson would investigate not only the financing of the telephone companies, but also the extent to which the companies are interlocked by holding corporations and the service furnished to the companies by the holding bodies.

In his resolution, Johnson also asked for an inquiry of any attempts by the telephone companies to control elections through expenditure of money or, through "avenues of publicity," to influence public opinion account of municipal or public ownership.

The committee would be empowered to sit during the recess of Congress and at any place and also would be given the usual power of subpenaing witnesses.

BUSINESS DATA HER SPECIALTY

MISS ADA L. BUSH.

ANSWERING QUESTIONS HER SOLE OCCUPATION

Miss Ada Bush, Commerce Bureau Expert, Visits St. Louis.

"Ask me another" is not a parlor diversion for Miss Ada L. Bush of Washington, who is in St. Louis today. It is an engrossing career. For she is chief of the Special Inquiry Section of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce and in that post directs the answering of thousands of queries on every conceivable topic relating to domestic trade.

While here she is answering questions propounded to her at the district office on the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, Liberty Central Bank building, Broadway and Olive street. Of late she has been a traveling encyclopedia of business information and tonight will continue her tour of district offices.

Only Woman in Bureau.

Back in 1922, before even the cross-word puzzle craze had made headway, Secretary of Commerce Hoover thought there should be a clearing house of business information at Washington. Miss Bush, then in the Government's legal department, was chosen to head the new department, the only woman among a large staff selected for the work.

She had to be to answer such questions as "how many left-handed people are there in the United States?" A question like that might have stumped the brightest of the ask-me-another wizards. But Miss Bush knew the medical authorities of Washington had computed the number of left-handed people in the United States, so she drew on their information and forwarded it to the business man who wanted to make a golf club for left-handed golfers.

"Leave me out of this and put Uncle Sam in," pleads Miss Bush when asked about her career. "We draw on many sources of information at Washington. You know they say there is an expert on everything in Washington. Usually we can find some bureau or department that can answer nearly any question.

Regional Survey for St. Louis.

"Of course, I find this fascinating work. The thousands of questions that pour in from every part of the country indicate the trend of current thought. We find it more and more difficult to answer the questions sent to us because they involve more thought—a good sign that the nation is progressing and thinking deeply.

"The biggest business problem of the moment, judging from the questions we get, is the cost of distribution. Whenever there is large demand for information on a subject and we cannot supply it, we undertake research work. We have kept a record of questions from the start. The department now is engaged in making a series of regional surveys to help business save the cost of duplicating sales effort. A survey of the St. Louis region will be started soon. Another thing we have noted is that more questions than ever before are coming from women."

TWO GROUPS SEEK TO BUY EQUITY IN HOTEL CHASE

Establishment Valued at $4,500,000 Operated at $315,000 Profit, Ulman Says.

At least two syndicates are being formed in St. Louis to take over the equity of the Lindell Hotel Co. in Hotel Chase, it was learned today. The hotel property, said to represent an investment of $4,500,000 in land, buildings and furnishings, was subject to a first deed of trust of $2,700,000 and a second of $320,000, but the mortgages have been reduced approximately $600,000.

The Lindell Hotel Co. defaulted in its interest payment last month, and the property now is being operated by the trustee under the bonds pending foreclosure proceedings.

In announcing that the sale of the hotel was in prospect, it was incorrectly stated by the Post-Dispatch yesterday that the hotel property was operated for a year by S. W. Straus & Co. of Chicago, immediately prior to the sale to the Lindell Hotel Co. The Straus concern never operated the hotel and had no connection with it beyond making the first mortgage. The hotel was operated for two years, immediately preceding the sale to the Lindell Hotel Co., by Chase Ulman at a net operating profit each year of approximately $315,000.

SECOND DEATH FROM CRASH OF AUTO INTO TELEPHONE POLE

Joseph Rethman, 22 years old, pipefitter, 4015 Dunnica avenue, died at City Hospital this morning as the result of injuries suffered Sunday when the automobile in which he was riding with Herbert Stubenrauch, 29, crashed against a telegraph pole on Broadway near Bowen street. Stubenrauch was killed and Rethman's skull was fractured.

Rethman's death brought the number of fatalities due to automobile accidents since Jan. 1 to 14.

NINE HURT IN WRECK NEAR GREENVILLE, ILL.

Four Coaches of Fast Pennsylvania Train, St. Louis-Bound From New York, Derailed.

Nine persons were seriously injured and 12 others bruised and shaken up when four coaches on "the American," fast New York-St. Louis train of the Pennsylvania Lines left the rails near Greenville, Ill., late yesterday. Two of the cars turned over and one of them caught fire, but the flames were extinguished with only slight damage.

One St. Louisan, Robert Johnston, 5111 Raymond avenue, was among the injured. Johnston, who is 82 years old, suffered lacerations of the scalp and bruises. Others seriously injured were: Mr. and Mrs. Grover Dalton of Poplar Bluff, Mo., Edward Slemmer, Terre Haute, Ind.; Mrs. Anna Griffin, Ardmore, Okla.; Mrs. Harry Newman, New York, and three Negro Pullman porters.

Slemmer and Mr. and Mrs. Dalton were taken to the Missouri Baptist Sanitarium in St. Louis, where Mrs. Dalton's condition is said to be serious. Slemmer left the hospital and returned to his home last night.

The train was due to arrive at Union Station at 5:10 p. m. Several cars which did not turn over came in at 6:40, with some of the injured aboard. It is believed that a broken rail caused the coaches to leave the tracks.

"The cost of this for next year is estimated at approximately $650,000,000. That means an average expenditure of $1233 for every minute, or $20.50 for every second of the year. We are also perfecting our physical plant. The building program as now planned will cost approximately $350,000,000; of this amount $211,000,000 has already been approved for custom houses, postoffices and other building needs for the public service.

"The army program contemplates an expenditure in excess of $100,000,000. The sum of $10,000,000 has been authorized for the purpose of properly housing our foreign representatives. This is an expensive, but amply justified, program. The buildings are necessary. Constructive economy has made them possible. We have other great programs of expenditures which could not have been financed without economy in our operations.

"A construction program for the navy is now receiving the consideration of the Congress. The authorization of 1916 was the last complete navy program, and that has been practically completed. The recommendation now before the Congress to replace obsolete naval vessels and moderately increase our naval strength contemplates an orderly construction procedure; nothing more. It contemplates that the construction program will be carried out as conditions dictate and Treasury balances warrant. It considers our own requirements alone and carries no thought of entry into competitive construction with any other nation. The plan I have indorsed does not contemplate any limitation of time as to the beginning of the completion of this tentative program. But it does contemplate the building of the ships as fast as possible."

The navy program approved by the President calls for an expenditure of $740,000,000 for 71 vessels.

In justifying these expenditures and the general increase of the cost of Government, the President declared that the increasing requirements made economy imperative.

"Economy in Federal operations is here to stay," he declared. "True economy means the discouragement of unnecessary expenditures. It carries no thought of unwise, unscientific limitation. Rather, it makes ample provision for things that must be done. Pressure for retrenchment, insistence upon wiser spending, have furnished capital to meet our new demands without expansion of our expenditure program.

"We cannot absorb by economy all of our prospective new requirements. If we absorb as much as possible, we have realized the true meaning of economy. By saving money where money can properly be saved, we have developed what is more properly termed a constructive economy program in our Federal service."

Walsh Batters Fake Continental Oil Co.

art and Sinclair were aware of, and consented to, the organization of the Continental, and that they were privy to its purposes. Whether Stewart knew, as Sinclair did, that the profit which it made at the expense of their companies was to be used for corrupt purposes, cannot be stated. It remains for Stewart to answer that when he takes the witness stand.

A Case of Amnesia.

The committee hopes that his memory will be better than that of some of his subordinates. The saddest case of court room amnesia which the Capital has witnessed since last November was presented today by A. L. Carlson, Secretary and Treasurer of Sinclair Crude. The latest previous case was that of his associate, H. L. Phillips, president of the company, who testified—that is, he occupied the witness stand—in the Sinclair-Fall trial last fall. An observer who heard both remarked after today's proceedings that connection with that company appeared fatal to the memory.

The records showed that Carlson was present when the board ratified the contract to take its half of the Humphrey oil from Continental at $1.75 a barrel. They showed that he signed the contract which guaranteed that Continental would perform its part of the contract. They showed that he knew the oil which his company was buying from Continental at $1.75 had been bought on the same day at $1.50.

"Why did you vote to ratify this purchase?" inquired Senator Walsh, his mustache bristling with even more than their usual righteousness. "We thought $1.75 was a fair price," replied the somewhat unimpressive secretary-treasurer.

"But you knew that it had been bought on the very same day by a company whose credit was so small that you had to guarantee the purchase?" "Yes, sir."

Did you consider that you were treating your stockholders with honesty and decency?" "I thought so. It was a fair price. We never were offered the oil at $1.50."

"Why, of course you were, Humphrey's attorney has testified that it was offered to you first." Carlson reflected, and admitted that he guessed that was right, but stuck to his statement that $1.75 was a good price. He said that the directors acted at the instance of George H. Taber, chairman of the board, who recommended ratifying the contract.

"Were you dummy directors or were you actually supposed to protect the interests of your stockholders?" demanded Walsh. Carlson said he thought they had real independence of action.

"Was there any explanation of why you didn't buy the oil direct from Humphrey instead of obtaining it through the Continental?" "I don't remember."

"This advance of 25 cents a barreal meant a matter of some $4,000,000 to your stockholders, didn't it?" "I suppose it would have, if the contract had been fully carried out."

"And it did mean something more than $1,000,000, as it was partly carried out?" "I can't recall the exact figures."

"What was said at the meeting of the board when this matter was brought up?" "I can't remember anything particular that was said."

"Mr. Carlson, do you want this committee to believe that there was no discussion of a matter of this magnitude?" "I can't remember the details."

"All right, forget the details," Walsh's voice crackled. "Tell us the general points of the discussion." "I'm afraid I don't remember," replied the slender, sallow, youngish officer.

"Then you don't remember anything about it?" "I guess that's about right."

"Do you still feel that you acted with sagacity and prudence, and that your action was in the best interest of your stockholders?" Carlson said he felt it was.

"Would you do the same thing again tomorrow?" "We would if we thought the price was right."

"In other words, you believe you did your duty as a director?" "I think so."

"Extraordinary," Walsh Calls It.

"Mr. Carlson," said Walsh in his iciest manner, "I hope you appreciate that the committee considers it most extraordinary that you don't remember about this matter. It meant guaranteeing a $50,000,000 purchase, and repurchasing half the oil at an advance of $4,000,000. There is more than a suspicion here that you are not telling all you know. You appreciate that, don't you?" Carlson was speechless. It was evident that he was determined to stick by the boss through thick and thin, but he was taking awful punishment.

"Were you told by anybody not to tell what you knew about this matter?" askwed Walsh bluntly. "No, sir."

The relief brought by adjournment is only temporary. Chairman Nye of the committee said afterward that Carlson would be recalled.

"Perhaps a day's rest would benefit his memory," he said.

This examination had been preceded by that of J. D. Clark, successor of the missing Blackmer as president of Midwest Refining. Blackmer and O'Neill are in Europe, fugitives from a subpena. Clark, a quiet, pleasant man, said with a trace of ruefulness that he had inherited the aftermath of this deal, and knew nothing else about it. However, he bolstered the Sinclair-Stewart explanation by declaring that, in his opinion, Blackmer was the man behind the Continental, and was acting for himself, at the expense of the interests which employed.

"Blackmer Was the Company."

Prior to 1923, Clark said, Blackmer was president and "was very actively the head of the company."

"In fact," he said, "Blackmer was just about the company." He explained that Midwest was owned outright by the Standard Oil of Indiana. It was developed that H. S. Osler, the Canadian lawyer who acted as the figurehead president of the bogus Continental Trading Co., is an old Standard Oil man, having acted as the agent of the Standard in acquiring control of the Midwest Refining. This threw still further light on the claim of Stewart that the Continental was an independent corporation from which the Standard purchased oil. It furnished still further confirmation of the charge that the oil deal between the Continental and the Standard and Sinclair companies was merely a transaction between friends, and that those who engaged in it were actually buying oil from themselves, in order to amass the "profit" out of which the tainted Liberty bonds were purchased.

In response to a subpena, Clark produced a large number of letters and telegrams which passed between Stewart and Blackmer in connection with the Continental deal. Many of them were couched in veiled language, and at least one advised the recipient to address his reply to the sender's residence.

It appeared from the correspondence that the late O. E. Humphrey originally wanted to sell stock in his Mexia Oil Co. and that it was after the failure of these negotiations that he agreed to sell 33,333,333 barrels of oil, the Continental Standard and its Midwest subsidiaries, it appeared, were interested in buying oil, not stock. The disclosure that the Standard outfit was maneuvering for the purchase of the Mexia oil long before it was purchased, threw an illuminating glare on the present claim of the Standard officers that it merely bought the oil from Continental and was not part owner of that dummy corporation.

As a matter of fact, it developed that a trip was made to the Humphrey field by Blackmer, Stewart and James E. O'Neil of Prairie Oil & Gas.

Clark testified that although he was a vice president of the Midwest at the time the negotiations were in progress he knew nothing whatever about them, and never was informed. It was his personal opinion that Blackmer was acting for himself, and not for the Midwest, of which he was president.

"Why, Mr. Clark, do you think Mr. Blackmer was buying this oil for his personal use?" exclaimed Walsh. (There was 33,333,333 barrels of it.) "No, I think he had a purchaser in mind," was the reply.

After pausing for a minute, Clark said there was no doubt in his mind that Blackmer intended to resell the oil to Standard or Prairie. In other words, he testified that, in his opinion, Blackmer was conducting a little private buccaneering expedition with the aim of gouging the very interest which employed him. Walsh seemed skeptical of this explanation, in view of the fact that Stewart, head of the interests which employed Blackmer, was fully aware of the negotiations. There seemed every reason to suppose that if Stewart had been aware that his man Blackmer was double-crossing him, he would have chucked Blackmer out of the front door. Senator Walsh indicated that he gave considerable more credence to the view that Blackmer and Stewart were partners in the deal.

Clark was all innocence. He said his only knowledge of the case was derived from the records and correspondence which he found in the files. He saw Blackmer in Paris a year ago, but did not discuss the subject with him and did not even ask him when, if ever, he intended to return to his native shores.

Walsh announced this afternoon he was having forwith subpenas issued for every man who was a member of the Sinclair Crude Oil Board of Directors at the time the Continental deal was ratified.

"It may be true that they acted as rubber stamps," he said to the writer, "but a rubber stamp ought to know who used it and if these men were acting under somebody's orders in approving this transaction we want to know who that somebody was. Out of the lot we may succeed in getting one who remembers who gave him his instructions."

CIRCUIT ATTORNEY DROPS PALAZZOLO MURDER CHARGES

Enters Nolle Prosequi in the Six Cases Pending Following Italian Feud Killing.

THREE OF SIX THUS FREED, REARRESTED

State Explains One of Its Witnesses Has Been Slain and Another Has Changed His Story.

The Circuit Attorney's office today abandoned the prosecution of the Alphonse Palazzolo murder—the only action by the State resulting from the 16 murders in six months attributed to a feud between rival factions of Italian bootleggers and extortionists.

In entering a nolle prosequi as to the indictments against William and Lawrence Russo, Joe Bommarito, Vincent Barbara, Gus Catanzaro and Jack Griffin, Assistant Circuit Attorney Maroney explained that the State's evidence in the Palazzolo case had been weakened through the assassination of one witness, Pasquale Santino, and the failure of another witness, a boy, to stick to his original story of what took place at Tenth and Wash streets, Sept. 9, when Palazzolo was shot down.

All the Cases Dropped.

"For these reasons the State failed in the strongest of its cases, that against Ralph Calico, who was acquitted Friday of the Palazzolo murder. Maroney's dismissal of the six defendants today was announced after their counsel had applied to Circuit Judge Killoren for bail.

Originally there were 12 men indicted, but the number was reduced to eight when Sora Mantia was discharged by the Circuit Attorney, Dominic Cataldo and Tony Ditrapani were murdered, and Calico was acquitted. Indictments were voted against two men, in addition to those freed today, but the men were not apprehended and the indictments were not filed in court, hence there is no necessity for nolle prossing them.

The Russo brothers have been out on bond but now of course are free. Griffin is in City Hospital recovering from a bullet wound. Bommarito, Barbara and Catanzaro, who have been in the city jail for four months, were discharged, but police rearrested them. Catanzaro was taken into custody for investigation. Bommarito, who is appealing from a two-year sentence for carrying concealed weapons, was held on another charge of carrying concealed weapons.

Barbara was turned over to Federal authorities and arraigned before Commissioner Atkins on charges brought in an indictment for liquor conspiracy at Springfield, Ill., several months ago. Several others were also indicted, but to save three are at large. John Giannolo and Mike Sisak were arrested here on the same indictment being turned over to Federal authorities at Springfield. Barbara refused to waive hearing and Commissioner Atkins set Feb. 29 as the date for hearing. He was again released under a bond of $15,000, signed by Tony Sansone.

Chief of Police Gerk, in a statement to the police force yesterday, declared Bommarito and Calico had threatened to kill any policeman who got in their way. Chief Gerk instructed his men to kill gangsters when necessary to protect their own lives.

Gunman Hunts for Russo.

An incident yesterday confirmed police in their belief that the feud is not ended. William Crim, Negro attendant at William Russo's filling station, 620 O'Fallon street, reported that two gunmen made three visits to the station in search of Russo.

Crim says on the second visit one of the gunmen drew a large automatic pistol and pointed it at his head. "Tell us where Willie lives or I'll kill you!" the man said, according to Crim. He replied he did not know Russo's address. The gunmen drove a cream-colored Chrysler touring car, Crim said.

In entering a nolle prosequi as to the indictments against William and Lawrence Russo, Joe Bommarito, Vincent Barbara, Gus Catanzaro and Jack Griffin, Assistant Circuit Attorney Maroney explained that the State's evidence in the Palazzolo case had been weakened through the assassination of one witness, Pasquale Santino, and the failure of another witness, a boy, to stick to his original story of what took place at Tenth and Wash streets, Sept. 9, when Palazzolo was shot down.

All the Cases Dropped.

For these reasons the State called in the strongest of its cases, that against Ralph Calico, who was acquitted Friday of the Palazzolo murder. Maroney's dismissal of the six defendants today was announced after their counsel had applied to Circuit Judge Killoren for bail.

Originally there were 12 men indicted, but the number was reduced to eight when Sora Mantia was discharged by the Circuit Attorney, Dominic Cataldo and Tony Strapani were murdered, and Calico was acquitted. Indictments were voted against two men, in addition to those freed today, but the men were not apprehended and the indictments were not filed in court, hence there is no necessity for nolle prossing them.

The Russo brothers have been out on bond but now of course are free. Griffin is in City Hospital recovering from a bullet wound. Bommarito, Barbara and Catanzaro, who have been in the city jail for four months, were discharged, but police rearrested them. Catanzaro was taken into custody for investigation. Bommarito, who is appealing from a two-year sentence for carrying concealed weapons, was held on another charge of carrying concealed weapons.

Barbara was turned over to Federal authorities and arraigned before Commissioner Atkins on charges brought in an indictment for liquor conspiracy at Springfield, Ill., several months ago. Several others were also indicted, but save three are at large. John Giannolo and Mike Sisak were arrested here on the same indictment, being turned over to Federal authorities at Springfield. Barbara refused to waive hearing and Commissioner Atkins set Feb. 20 as the date for hearing. He was again released under a bond of $500, signed by Tony Sansone.

Chief of Police Gerk, in a statement to the police force yesterday, declared Bommarito and Calico had threatened to kill any policeman who got in their way. Chief Gerk instructed his men to kill gangsters when necessary to protect their own lives.

Gunman Hunts for Russo.

An incident yesterday confirmed police in their belief that the feud is not ended. William Crim, Negro attendant at William Russo's filling station, 630 O'Fallon street, reported that two gunmen made three visits to the station in search of Russo.

Crim says on the second visit one of the gunmen drew a large automatic pistol and pointed it at his head. "Tell us where Willie lives or I'll kill you!" the man said, according to Crim. He replied he did not know Russo's address. The gunmen drove a cream-colored Chrysler touring car, Crim said.

WILLIAM EDWARD HICKMAN.

DEPOSITIONS TELL OF INSANITY IN HICKMAN FAMILY

Grandparents Called Queer.

About 100 typed pages, the testimony of relatives and friends of Hickman's family, were read into the record, leaving about 500 pages to be read. Other depositions follow the Hickman family away from Sebastian County to Kansas City and includes the testimony of boyhood companions of the defendant.

The first depositions offered said the grandfather was subject to "fits," the grandmother frail and given to tears and "talking foolish," the mother, Mrs. Eva Hickman, depressed, morose and at one time attempting suicide, and the father, William Thomas Hickman, "queer."

Thomas Lewis, son-in-law of Becky Buck, declared in his deposition that "the old lady's mind was awful weak" while anything "flustered" Mrs. Hickman.

Mrs. Argie Smith of Cameron, Ok., sister-in-law of Hickman's mother, told in a deposition of the "queerness" of Mrs. Hickman. At one time, she said, William, the father, awoke to find his wife standing over him with a butcher knife. Another time, folks in her home town, according to the witness discovered Mrs. Hickman dancing a jig in the midst of her household duties.

Hickman's Parents to Testify.

Except for the defense alienists, only three witnesses will be presented, Jerome Walsh, counsel for Hickman said. These will be Mrs. Hickman, William Hickman, the father, and Alfred Hickman, the defendant's brother.

The jury of eight men and four women and the man and woman who were chosen as alternate jurors, were each locked up in separate rooms last night. Under the order of Judge J. J. Trabucco, the jury will remain impounded until the case is completed.

State Rests Its Case.

The jurors chosen after the defense had lost its fight to prevent the prosecution from challenging any of the nine men and three women technically accepted last Friday, all are middle-aged or older. Five of them are from Los Angeles. The others come from suburbs or nearby towns. None have minor children.

In picking the jury the defense exhausted all of its 20 premptory challenges and then Hickman's counsel asked that its dissatisfaction with the jury be written into the record.

The State rested after reading the indictment charging Hickman with the kidnaping and slaying of 12-year-old Marian Parker and citing his plea of "not guilty by reason of insanity," which is legal admission of having committed the crimes charged.

GOV. GRAVES TO QUIT KLAN

He Thinks Affiliation Injures Alabama Administration.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Jan. 31.—Because he feels his administration is being seriously impaired by his affiliation with the Ku Klux Klan and because he does not approve of the new "dollar-down degree," Gov. Bibb Graves of Alabama, heretofore stanch supporter of the hooded order, will resign from the organization, the Montgomery Advertiser says.

Graves will not verify or deny the story and will make no comment. He is said to have felt for some time that his administration of State affairs has been hurt by his klan connections.

ATTEMPT TO DISCLOSE HILL MURDER MOTIVE

Jury Dismissed While Attorneys Row Over Admission of Bank Checks.

By the Associated Press.

OTTAWA, Ill., Jan. 31.—A possible motive for the murder of Mrs. Eliza A. Hill was brought today to the attention of the jury hearing the case of her son, Harry, who is charged with killing her.

Introduction as evidence of checks drawn by the Streator youth and a deposit showing a sum credited to his mother's account, was permitted by Judge Joe A. Davis after heated argument among the attorneys. The jury was dismissed while the prosecution explained its reason for wishing to introduce the deposit slip and checks.

The jury was recalled and T. E. McNamara, assistant cashier of the Union National Bank at Streator, testified, that the deposit slip showed one check of $37.46 from Harry's account in the Union National Bank and another of $92.87 from the Streator National Bank, credited to Mrs. Hill's account. He then told of visiting the Hill home, Sunday, Aug. 14, and asking Harry to see his mother. The son said she was at church. McNamara testified he returned later but Mrs. Hill was not at home and he saw no preparations for a dinner.

Says Hill Impersonated Mother.

McNamara testified that Hill, impersonating his mother, telephoned the Union National last August that it would be all right to honor two checks totaling $400. McNamara said he recognized the voice on the wire as that of the young man.

Window shades, drawn in the living room of the home of Mrs. Hill on the two nights before her body was found buried in the basement, interested neighbors, they testified yesterday.

Mrs. Caroline Kline said that on Friday and Saturday nights, Aug. 19 and 20, the living room lights burned brilliantly but that the shades were drawn almost to the sills. This was not the manner in which they were usually arranged.

Mrs. Hill's body was found the following Monday evening, and over the week-end Mrs. Kline saw no one around the house, strangers or members of the family.

Real Estate Dealer Left $25,000 Trust Fund for Son and Remainder To Widow.

The estate of George F. Bergfeld, real estate dealer, who died Nov. 25, was valued at $256,140.81 in an inventory filed today in Probate Court. It consisted of personal property, chiefly stock of George F. Bergfeld Co., Inc., 610 Chestnut street, of which he was chairman of the board.

DRY MEN FLIRTED, THEN ARRESTED HER, WOMAN SAYS

Mrs. Marie E. Schimpf Asserts Two Agents Enjoyed Drinks Served at Home of Her Friend.

Prohibition agents can be jolly good fellows when trying to make a case against two women, as developed yesterday at a hearing before United States Commissioner Atkins.

One agent yoo-hooed at the women. Another played a piano. All the agents were good conversationalists, although perhaps a trifle bold.

All this, of course, according to the testimony of Mrs. Marie E. Schimpf, 5256 Wiesehan avenue, and Mrs. Evelyn Smith, 4412 Wallace avenue, who were arraigned on charges of possession and sale of liquor. Commissioner Atkins dismissed the charges against Mrs. Schimpf, but held Mrs. Smith on the possession count.

The prohibition agents were Fred F. Niebruegge and Thomas J. Kearney, assisted by Paul E. Toelle on one occasion.

Describes the Approach.

"Mrs. Smith and I," testified Mrs Schimpf, a middle-aged woman with red hair, "were driving along Kingshighway, Dec. 12 when two men (Niebruegge and Kearney) drove alongside and one of them yoo-hooed at us."

Here the witness rolled her eyes and waved a hand to indicate the agent's actions.

"A little farther on, our cars happened to bump and they motioned us to the curb. They came over to us, smiling and friendly and one said, 'Suppose we put on a little party?'

"I told Mr. Niebruegge that someone had pointed him out to me as a prohibition agent who would take a drink, and, whenever the lady who sold it turned away, he would spit it into a bottle for evidence.

"'Whenever I take a drink I swallow it,' Mr. Niebruegge said to me. And he proved that later."

Agents Arrive for Party.

The agents and the women went to a house on Botanical avenue, where drinks were served. This was in the afternoon. That night they met at the Wallace avenue address. Mrs. Schimpf denied inviting the agents there or opening the front door for them. She said she opened the door to bring in Mrs. Smith's pet dog, whereupon Niebruegge and Kearney, reinforced by Toelle, walked in.

"social party" followed. Mrs. Schimpf said the agents were invited to have a drink, and chorused: "Sure, we're not camels."

"Mr. Niebruegge had a good time," Mrs. Schimpf testified. "He danced around and played the piano. They wanted me to shimmy, but I told them I didn't know how."

Also present was H. C. Whitehill, attorney in the Boatmen's Bank Building, who had gone to the house to confer with Mrs. Schimpf about a damage suit in which he represented her.

Attorney Had Highball.

"When the men came in," Whitehill testified, "I was sipping at a so-called highball. It tasted more like old ginger ale."

Mrs. Smith and the agents also testified. The agents insisted they had paid for the drinks. The women and Whitehill were just as positive it was a social gathering and no money was passed.

Another point of dispute was the manner in which the agents met the women. The agents insisted it was sort of a flirtation. The women insisted the agents did the yoo-hooing and smiling, and that they would not have talked with the strange men at all, had it not been for their cars colliding.

The Raid Next Day.

The day after these meetings, the agents got a search warrant and raided Mrs. Smith's home, seizing alleged whisky and beer.

Prohibition executives at Washington have repeatedly urged agents to pass up petty cases in order to devote their time to running down the "big fellows"—distillers and brewers—thus cutting off the source of supply.

WOMAN HOTEL OWNER FINED FOR SAFETY RULE VIOLATION

Doorways to Fire Escape of Westmoreland Were Locked, Complaint Charged.

Mrs. S. Gerardi, proprietor of the Westmoreland Hotel, a three-story structure at 4496 Maryland avenue, was fined $25 and costs today by Police Judge Rosecan, for having violated the ordinance requiring stairways and fire-escapes to be kept unobstructed. The complaint alleged doorways on fire escapes were locked.

Counsel for the defendant stated these conditions had been corrected. An inspector from the building commissioner's office said the changes in construction made by the owner were satisfactory.

STEWARD ON LINER ADMITS $825,000 JEWEL SMUGGLING

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—Florent Lamont, formerly assistant steward of the Red Star liner Lapland, who was arrested Nov. 9, 1927, with $100,000 worth of smuggled diamonds in the heels and toes of his shoes, made a confession yesterday to Assistant United States Attorney John M. Blake. The enormous size of his shoes aroused suspicion of port officials.

As a result of the confession, Federal investigators think they will soon be able to break up an Antwerp-New York diamond smuggling ring which is said to have been doing an annual business of more than $1,000,000.

Lamont is from Antwerp, one of the largest diamond markets in the world. According to Blake, Lamont confessed he had brought in no less than 55 consignments of diamonds during the last year in packages averaging $15,000 in value, or a total of $825,000. All of them, he said, he had been able to deliver without any trouble, and according to his instructions.

Blake did not make public the details of the confession, but said that Lamont had named many jewelers and agents here. Some of them, Blake said, were women who had bought the diamonds for their personal use and women who had been go-betweens.

Julius Wiler, Abraham Frank and Charles P. Goldberg, diamond merchants, who were indicted with Lamont, pleaded not guilty and were released in $15,000 bail.

Lamont was arraigned before Federal Judge Thomas D. Thacher, pleaded guilty and was remanded to the Tombs in default of bail of $75,000.

INDORSEMENT OF CAULFIELD ASSAILED BY OPPONENT

W. R. Schneider, Speaking at Kansas City, Charges Attempt to "Boss" Republicans.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Jan. 31.—William R. Schneider of St. Louis, a candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor, speaking today before the University of Michigan Alumni at the Kansas City Athletic Club, raised a question of the strength of the indorsement given former Judge Caulfield, an opponent, at a meeting of the Republican City Committee in St. Louis two weeks ago.

It was announced at the time that 28 of the 56 men and women members of the committee had supported the indorsement. Schneider today said that only nine of the 28 were men, or approximately one-third of the men members of the committee. Schneider contended that Collector Koeln and Chairman Remmers were attempting to make it appear that this [illegible] a committee indorsement. "[illegible]ing through fakery," he said, "to foist upon the party as its nominee a boss-picked and boss-controlled man."

Orthodox Hinduism Bars Marriage of Ex-Maharajah

Sikh and Arya Samajist Leaders Offer to Perform Wedding of American Girl According to Their Rites.

By the Associated Press.

BOMBAY, Jan. 31.—Orthodox Hinduism apparently stood as a bar today to the marriage of the former Maharajah of Indore to Miss Nancy Ann Miller of Seattle, Wash.

Wishing to have his chosen bride converted to his faith before he married her the former Hindu ruler is understood to have suffered a rebuff. Hindu priests at Nasik, a stronghold of orthodoxy, are said to have refused to countenance such a conversion.

A Delhi vernacular newspaper asserts that a prominent Arya Samajist leader and other leaders of the sect which seeks to reform the caste and marriage system of the Hindus, have expressed readiness to perform the conversion by Arya Samaj rites. Since conversion by Arya Samaj rites is not accepted by Orthodox Hindus as having the sanction of Hindu scripture, it is doubtful whether the conversion would be accepted by the former Maharajah's relatives or members of his caste.

The same paper says a Sikh leader and legal practitioner of Hoshiarpur, Punjab, has telegraphed the former ruler that he is willing to convert the American girl and the Hindu if they are willing to have their marriage performed in accordance with Sikh rites.

The Sikh religion, which is a combination of the teachings of the Persians Sufis and Hinduism, accepts proselytes. It has obtained legal sanction for its male adherents to marry more than one wife provided both parties to the marriage contract are Sikhs. If the former Maharajah wishes to take advantage of the Sikh offer both he and his fiancee will have to be initiated into Sikhism.

Meanwhile the former ruler and his prospective bride are at the resort of Nuwara Eliya, Ceylon, awaiting developments. It is uncertain when they will leave.

INDICT EX-POLICEMAN AS OWNER OF STILL

Federal Authorities Charge C. Arthur Cole With Revenue Law Violation.

An indictment charging violation of the still and mash sections of the internal revenue laws was returned in Federal Court today against C. Arthur Cole, former special officer of the Mounted Police District, who resigned Jan. 5, after 13 years of police service.

The indictment alleged Cole had been operating a still at 5973 Bancroft avenue and defrauding the Government of tax on distilled liquors.

Evidence upon which he was indicted was presented to the grand jury by police after an investigation prompted by a complaint that Cole had not paid a $400 bill for corn sugar, yeast and alcohol containers. Police have been searching for him since Jan. 5.

Cole was identified as the man who, under an assumed name, rented the eight-acre truck farm at the Bancroft avenue address last February. He was seen there frequently while the still was being operated by several Italians.

Last March the farm was raided and the still destroyed, but nobody was found on the premises. Two months later, police learned, operation of the still was resumed and continued until early last month.

When Inspector Walton, who conducted the investigation, called at Cole's home, 4951 Wise avenue, for an explanation of his sudden resignation, Walton was informed Cole had been offered a better job in Chicago.

Cole must apply to the Police Department personally to collect $500 due him from the police relief fund and $150 from the pension fund.

The police investigation was instigated by a complaint of the Columbia Sales Co., 4523 Shaw avenue, that a policeman named Cole had failed to pay a $403 bill for corn sugar, yeast and five-gallon cans. Officers of the company identified a picture of Cole as that of the purchaser of the supplies. Previously they had been informed he was a policeman.

FLYING PACT WITH WHOLE WORLD AIM OF PAN-AMERICANS

WOULD THUS AVOID SEPARATE TREATIES

Mexican Proposal to Rotate Chairmanship of Union Rejected in Committee Meeting.

By the Associated Press.

HAVANA, Jan. 31.—The scope of treaties discussed by the Pan-American conference has been widened to include the world instead of the United States and the 20 Latin-American republics. The treaties involved are those dealing with commercial aviation.

When the treaties came up for discussion in the Communications Committee yesterday, Felipe Espil of Argentina said that if the article limiting adherence to members of the Pan-American Union were not amended, other countries, notably Canada, would be forced to conclude 21 separate conventions with the other nations of the Americas.

Henry P. Fletcher, United States delegate, had announced previously that the United States would have no objection to any amendment to the draft treaty to give it the widest possible scope, including thereby Governments that are not members of the Pan-American Union.

Open to All Countries.

Senor Espil moved that the provisions be open to any country having aviation lines. The committee then adopted an amendment making the aviation treaties open to all countries.

Mexico's Proposal Rejected.

The committee on Pan-American Union affairs rejected amendments offered by Mexico which sought to give each country in turn the chairmanship of the governing board and the director-generalship, now held by the United States. With Mexico voting for the proposal of rotating the chairmanship of the board and Bolivia absent, the proposal was rejected by all the other delegations. After defeat of this proposal, the Mexicans withdrew the amendment extending the process of "democratizing" the Pan-American Union at the start.

Charles E. Hughes, chairman of the United States delegation, opposed the proposals on the ground that they would amount to "artificial restrictions." These, he said, would be contrary to the Democratic spirit that all apparently were desirous of seeing firmly established in the Pan-American Union.

There was respite from the busy sessions of the conference for the delegations today. No official sessions were on the program. The entire party of delegates decided to visit the coast town of Mariel, 25 miles from Havana and return this evening.

Guests sleeping on these mattresses for the first time are truly amazed. Invariably they throw back the covers to learn the secret of their first real good night's sleep in years. Thousands have asked: "Where can I buy a mattress like the one I slept on last night?"

Nachman springs possess exclusive, patented features that make them the most comfortable and lasting inner-spring construction ever used in a mattress. The individual springs are so anchored they positively cannot crowd, bulge, tip, buckle or mesh. Its good looks, wonderful resiliency and perfect service will last for years. The double-cone springs insure pneumatic-like softness and resiliency. The patented top and bottom anchoring permanently holds each spring in its proper position. And the mattress is self-ventilating. Turning and renovating as with ordinary types are unnecessary.

The next time you're at your dealer's ask to see what experts pronounce the most scientific and healthful sleep producer ever made

LAFOLLETTE TO PUSH ANTI-THIRD TERM BILL

Wisconsin Senator Says New York G. O. P. Move to Draft Coolidge.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31. — Because of the indorsement of President Coolidge for another term by the New York State Republican leaders last week, Senator La Follette (Rep.), Wisconsin, announced today he would press for early action on his pending resolution declaring against more than two terms for a President.

La Follettte in a formal statement declared the action by the New York Republicans "is conclusive proof that the movement to 'draft President Coolidge' and smash the third term tradition is gaining headway."

"Charles D. Hilles, vice chairman of the National Republican Committee, and former chairman, is responsible for the action taken at Albany on Saturday," he said. "He has persistently advocated that the Republican party should not take seriously the statement that 'President Coolidge does not choose to run.' It is reliably reported that Hilles and Secretary of the Treasury Mellon are working in close co-operation and that a drive is on to obtain uninstructed delegations in many states which will support the plan 'to draft the President.'

"In order that the Representatives of the people in the Senate may have an opportunity to express their conviction with regard to the importance of preserving the tradition that no President shall succeed himself for a third term, I have introduced a resolution and shall press for its early consideration and adoption by the Senate."

Denies Princess Ingrid Is to Wed.

By the Associated Press.

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Jan. 31. —Official denial has been issued in Stockholm of the reported betrothal of Princess Ingrid of Sweden, daughter of Crown Prince Gustavus Adolphus, to Crown Prince Frederik of Denmark. The heir to the Danish throne is at present visiting Stockholm in connection with the celebration of "Danish Week" in the Swedish capital.

Three Runaway Kansans Detained.

Three youths, who said they had run away from their homes in Atchison, Kan., were picked up at Seventh and Carr streets at 1 a. m. today, while they were looking for a place to sleep. One who said he is Earl Frankenberger, had a revolver. The others gave the names Charles Frankenberger, brother of Earl, and Harold Cowan. All said they are students at the Atchison High School and had run away to "see the world."

BUSINESS IRREGULAR AND TENDS TO SLACKEN

Federal Reserve Report on Eighth District for December Issued.

Reduced activity and a marked irregularity in business was reflected in the last 30 days, both in contrast to the 30 days preceding and for the corresponding period last year, says the monthly statement of the St. Louis Federal Reserve Bank, made public today.

The tendency to slow down is most marked in wholesale and manufacturing sales in a majority of lines, with pronounced declines shown.

"Retail distribution of automobiles was the smallest for any single month since 1924," the statement says, while saving accounts were the highest on record in the district.

"There was a sharp decline in the dollar value of building permits issued in the largest five cities of the district in December, but for the district as a whole, contracts let totaled larger than either in November, 1927, or December, 1926.

Increase of employment was general in the district during the last 30 days. In St. Louis and other large cities, however, many common laborers were thrown out of work.

A further recession in freight traffic of railroads operating in the district was recorded. As a result, the total loadings fell short of the 1926 total but eclipsed any mark previous to that year.

Estimated tonnage of the Federal Barge line between St. Louis and New Orleans for December was 114,000 tons, against 114,541 for November and 80,910 in December, 1926. The total tonnage of 1,237,307 for 1927 was the largest on record, and compares with 1,044,658 tons in 1926 and 991,484 in 1925.

NET DECLINE OF 33 PCT. SHOWN BY 53 RAILS

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 31. — Net railway operating income of the first 53 railroads to report December earnings was $42,999,000 a decrease of 31.3 per cent from $62,575,000 reported by the same number in December, 1926. Their November net was $67,080,000. Gross revenue declined 12.7 per cent to $349,251,000 from $399,882,000. Their November gross was $382,161,000.

Net operating income of the Missouri Pacific for 1927 dropped to $16,899,498 from $20,333,786 in 1926. Gross revenues were $8,261,889 less. December net operating income fell to $221,770 from $1,584,049 a year ago.

Operating revenues for December, 1927, totaled $10,213,914, bringing the total for the 12 months ending Dec. 31 to $125,728,405. The December, 1927, accounts include final charges incident to the Mississippi Valley floods, other than $150,000 incident to the rebuilding of bridge at North Little Rock. Total flood expense charged into 1927 accounts amounted to $2,530,000. Attributing the decrease in net revenue of Missouri Pacific lines directly to the Mississippi Valley flood last spring, President Baldwin said a decline was inevitable, considering the magnitude of the flood and of the large areas affected, and to the almost complete stagnation of business in many of the sections as a result that normally furnish the railroad with a large volume of traffic.

Net operating income of the Union Pacific for 1927 declined to $39,483,390 from $42,100,142 in 1926 and gross revenues to $203,891,622 from $205,416,263. December net operating income was $2,792,618 against $2,940,829 a year ago.

The Southern Railway Co. earned $14.40 a share on the common stock in 1927 against $15.87 a share in 1926. Balance after $3,000,000 in preferred dividends was $18,699,907, against $20,596,721. Gross operating revenues fell to $147,639,062 from $155,467,975.

Net income of the Seaboard Air Line for 1927 fell to $1,281,576 from $1,428,669 in 1926. This is equal after 5 per cent adjustment bond interest, to 13 cents a share on the combined 6 per cent and 4½ per cent preferred stocks, against $5.99 a share on the common in 1926.

The Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific earned $12.08 a share on the common stock in 1927, after preferred dividends, against $10.67 a share in 1926. Net income rose to $12,564,830 from $11,515,881.

Net income of the Northern Pacific for 1927 was $18,538,423 with a balance of $6,138,423 after dividend requirements. December net income was $3,047,227. Net income for 1926 was $21,002,732 and balance of $8,602,732 after dividends.

The net railway operating income of the Rock Island lines for December, as made public today, was $2,389,643 as compared with $2,047,329 for December, 1926 and $2,355,302 for November, 1927. Fixed charges, rentals and other expenses are to be deducted from this amount, however. The total railway operating revenue was $10,385,975 and the total railway operating income was $2,751,873.

A test conducted at a leading hospital proved conclusively that Red Blood Corpuscles were increased 200% by Organic Iron Tonic. Normal blood carries 4 to 6 million oxygen carrying red corpuscles and 6000 to 8000 white. Blood below this standard is weak and shows a dangerous aenemic condition. Your blood is the great indicator of health. Stomach trouble, kidney ills, rheumatism, indigestion, neuritis, pellagra are the heritage of those with weak watery blood.

Read Amazing Testimony of Physicians and Users:

I feel so grateful for the good I have received from Scott's Organic Iron Tonic that I feel it my duty to humanity to publicly go on record and state the wonderful results I have obtained. I am a man 74 years of age and have suffered for twenty-five years with Rheumatism and kidney trouble. I have gone to the best specialists and tried every remedy ever suggested to me and have experienced only temporary relief. But now after taking Scott's Organic Iron Tonic I can honestly state that I feel like a new man and am completely well.
WILLIAM H. ACKLEY,
823 E. 14th St.

I had rheumatism so bad I had to give up my work and was not able to get around. A friend of mine told me to try Scott's Organic Iron Tonic. From the first two days my pain was so much better that I walked down town. I feel completely well. So I highly recommend Scott's Organic Iron Tonic to anyone suffering from Rheumatism or kidney troubles.
R. M. GROVE,

MRS. L. CHARNINSKY,
316 East Dartmouth Rd.,
Country Club, Kansas City, Mo.

I was in the war and came home a total wreck—shell shocked and in a terrible nervous rundown condition. I could not hold down a job because of my weakened condition and I have been in this condition more or less for all these years—I had no appetite and when I did eat—my food felt like lead in my stomach. A friend asked me to try Scott's Organic Iron Tonic. Now I am very thankful to state that I feel like I did before I went to war—strong, full of pep and this great change came about by me taking Scott's Organic Iron Tonic. Since I have regained my health I have gotten a new position as a traveling salesman and am making good with this renewed strength and vitality. The whole picture of life looks different. Thanks to Scott's Tonic.
D. S. LAKE,
Brunswick Hotel,
Kansas City, Mo.

I am feeling fine—have no symptoms of the trouble. I would not be back in the misery I was in before using your remedy for a great deal. I am so well and busy it did not occur to me to write you. Am well satisfied with your treatment.
MISS G. C. SWARENS,
1128 E. 7th St., Kansas City, Mo.

I have been troubled with Stomach and Kidney Trouble for several years. In July, 1926, I was taken with a very bad case of Uremic Poison and was in the hospital four weeks and was not expected to live. After leaving the hospital it was for months that I could not eat anything without being distressed and I was so nervous and weak that I could hardly walk. My husband bought me a bottle of Organic Iron Tonic and almost the first dose helped me. I can eat almost anything, I want and not be distressed. I have gained in weight and strength until I can do my own work and I feel 100% better. I can highly recommend ORGANIC IRON TONIC to anyone suffering from Stomach or Kidney trouble, or Nervous and run down condition.
MRS. W. A. COX,

I have taken 5 bottles of Scott's Organic Iron Tonic and it has been the only cure I could find in years. I have spent hundreds of dollars taking baths and treatments for my side and indigestion and feel completely well. I can highly recommend this tonic to any one of all ailments.

Miss C. Michalski Tells How Cuticura Healed Eczema

"My eczema started with a red rash breaking out on my hands. When I put them in water the skin would soften up, and as soon as I dried them they would get stiff and the skin would crack. They were so sore that I could not do much work. Sometimes the itching and burning were so severe that I could not sleep nights. I was ashamed to go out on account of them.
"I read an advertisement about your free offer of Cuticura Soap and Ointment and sent for a sample. I purchased more, and in a few months I was completely healed." (Signed) Miss Clara Michalski, 4723 So. Marshfield St., Chicago, Ill., Sept. 24, 1927.
Make Cuticura Soap and Ointment your every-day toilet preparations and have a clear, sweet skin, soft, smooth hands, and a healthy scalp with good hair.
Soap 25c. Ointment 25 and 50c. Talcum 25c. Sold everywhere. Sample each free. Address: "Cuticura Laboratories, Dept. H, Malden, Mass." Cuticura Shaving Stick 25c.

Have You Got Catarrh?

Try Dr. Blosser's Medical Cigarettes for Next Attack

Nasal catarrh is not only disagreeable and offensive, but it will lead to serious trouble.

That inflamed condition of the mucous membranes of the air passages of the head, nose and throat may spread to the point where it is incurable and a danger to life.

Dr. Blosser's Cigarettes are composed of medicinal herbs, flowers and berries. The warm smoke vapor is inhaled into the affected air passages and will go where sprays, douches and salves cannot reach. They contain no tobacco or cubebs, and being harmless, are used by children, as well as adults.

If you suffer from any catarrhal trouble, catarrhal deafness, hoarseness, asthma, hay fever, bronchial irritations, or are subject to frequent colds, get a pocket-size package of Dr. Blosser's Cigarettes, and prove for yourself their pleasant, beneficial effects.

Night Coughs Quickly Relieved

Stopped in 15 Minutes with Thoxine

Most coughing is caused by an irritated, inflamed throat or bronchial tubes which cough syrups and patent medicines do not touch. But a famous physician's prescription recently discovered called Thoxine goes direct to the cause, relieves the inflamed membranes and stops the cough almost instantly. One swallow does the work, and the remarkable thing about it is that it contains no dope, chloroform or other harmful drugs. Pleasant tasting. Safe for children. Once used the whole family will rely on it. 35c, 60c and $1.00. At all druggists.

DR. REDDISH INDICTED ON NARCOTIC CHARGE

U. S. Grand Jury Makes Report on Man Acquitted of Murder in 1919.

Dr. Horace A. Reddish was indicted by the Federal grand jury on charges of purchasing and possession of narcotics, in a partial report made today to Federal Judge Faris.

Dr. Reddish, who, about nine years ago, was acquitted of the murder of his wealthy father, Stephen M. Reddish of Jerseyville, Ill., was arrested last June by city detectives who said they found narcotics in his possession.

Dr. Reddish, at the time of his arrest, received an income from the estate left by his father varying between $40 and $50 a week. The estate consists of a 2000-acre farm and other assets.

Emerich Kalnay is charged with using the mails to defraud in promoting a school for motion picture actors and actresses. Others indicted for using the mails to defraud are Eugene R. Tucker and William L. Morris, in connection with their organization of the National Fur Co. here, and Edward Leland, alleged to have sold a "secret oil" for the manufacture of soap at home.

Charges of sending obscene letters through the mail were returned against Edward Poress, Ollie Shapiro and Denny Brown.

Grover Cleveland and Charlotte Grau, are named in an indictment charging conspiracy to embezzle $212 of the funds of the postoffice at Anglum.

James L. Grouhalt is charged with perjury in connection with statements he made before Referee in Bankruptcy Coles last April. At that time, testifying in his voluntary bankruptcy petition, he is said to have denied owing the Collinsville, Ok., National Bank any money.

LADY ESTHER CO.
CHICAGO, ILL.

Are "clogged pores" ruining your beauty?

If your skin seems dull and lifeless, if it has lost its natural, fresh radiance—no doubt your pores are clogged with embedded dirt. Unless this is removed and the skin is absolutely clean, the pores soon become distended and enlarged, this embedded dirt quickly hardens to form blackheads, then pimples.

But how to remove this dirt, grime and germ laden accumulations? Soap and water only cleanse the surface. Ordinary "cold creams" are too heavy and greasy to penetrate every tiny pore! Lady Esther in collaboration with eminent skin specialists has discovered a wonderful cream. It not only deeply penetrates every pore, loosening and softening the deeply embedded dirt so that it may be quickly wiped off with a cloth, but as it cleanses it nourishes the tissues, keeping the skin healthy and pliable.

You will enjoy a new sensation of cleanliness. Your skin can now "breathe"! The invigorating oxygen of the air can reach the places that have heretofore been "sealed" and your complexion will really radiate freshness and beauty.

In Lady Esther you have scientifically combined in one cream the four essentials necessary to cleanse, nourish and preserve your complexion. And it's all so simple—in less than 5 minutes you can give yourself this wonderful facial. In less than 3 days your skin will show an improvement that is really amazing.

Here is LADY ESTHER'S Offer

Lady Esther has placed a limited quantity of "Proof Jars" [containing enough cream for a complete facial for 10 days] with the good dealers whose names are listed here.

One of these jars will be given to you FREE with the purchase of any regular size jar: Try the cream in the proof jar for a few days. If it does not actually improve your complexion and bring forth enthusiastic comments from your friends, just return the regular size jar, and your money will be instantly refunded without comment or questions. You are sole judge. Worth trying, isn't it?

$3,500,000 EXHIBIT AT ART MUSEUM

Carl Hamilton of New York to Open Display Here Tomorrow.

A $3,500,000 collection of Italian Renaissance paintings, furniture, sculpture and objects of art was being installed today in two west galleries of the Art Museum in Forest Park by Carl W. Hamilton of New York, a collector of old art and furniture.

Th ecollection will be placed on public view tomorrow and will remain in place throughout February.

Hamilton, who made a fortune in chemical manufacture during the war, was busy at the museum all day uncrating paintings and furniture with his own hands and directing the arranging of the exhibit.

Many notable pieces of fourteenth, fifteenth and sixteenth century art are included in the collection.

The furniture is arranged as it might have been in an old Florentine home. It includes a large bed that dates back to the fifteenth century and is made of inlaid walnut, with pleated velvet and rich ornamentation.

MEMBER CHARGES HEATING MEN WITH FIXING OF PRICES

A. E. Humphrey Says O'Mara Co. Ignored Bill for Dues Because of Association Practice.

COMPLAINT FOLLOWS SUIT FOR $4336

Attorney Makes Denial for Contractors; Both Sides Expect Adjustment Out of Court.

The Heating & Piping Contractors' St. Louis Association has filed suit for $4336 membership dues against A. E. Humphreys and Edward O'Mara, doing business as the O'Mara Heating Co., and Humphreys, in a deposition given last week has retaliated with a charge that the association lent itself to the fixing of prices.

The by-laws of the association require that members shall pay as dues an amount equal to 2 per cent of the amount of their contracts. Humphreys' firm, it is alleged, failed to make these payments, and, following repeated demands for payment, the firm withdrew from the association last August.

The suit, filed Dec. 21, alleges the O'Mara Heating Co. had had contracts amounting to $209,300 since July 15, 1926. 2 per cent of which would be $4186, and one contract prior to that date on which dues of $150 had not been paid, bringing the total dues to $4336. Prior to July 15, 1926, the dues were based on 1 per cent of the contract prices.

Ignored Demands for Dues.

The O'Mara company did not file an answer to the suit, but Humphreys responded to a subpena to give his deposition. He was examined by Fred L. English, former circuit judge, who is attorney for the association.

In answer to questions propounded by English, Humphreys said his firm withdrew from the association and ignored demands for dues because the members met and entered agreements to fix prices in violation of the law.

English pressed him for an instance of price-fixing, and Humphreys cited a meeting about a year and a half ago at the Coronado Hotel, where he said the members formally agreed upon an arbitrary levy of 25 per cent on contract prices to cover costs, the system of figuring which, he said, was nearly always in dispute.

Cost Fixing Action Denied.

A Post-Dispatch reporter yesterday called on English for a statement and permission to read the deposition. The association's attorney said the deposition had not been transcribed and probably would not be filed as he hoped for an adjustment with Humphreys out of court.

"I attend all meetings of the association, twice a month," said English. "I know it does not fix prices. Costs are figured by an engineer employed by the association for the information of members, but they are not told to or obliged to follow them.

"What the association does do is to advise contractors on proper installation and sufficiency of radiation. The association certifies all plans of its members and thoroughly inspects all work to insure satisfactory heating systems. The public is safeguarded through this efficient service. Dues of members defray the expense of this public service, and no money goes to members from the dues."

Humphreys declined to discuss the situation, remarking that nothing would come of the suit. "I do not want to say anything that might be misconstrued or that would hurt the heating industry," he said. "I have met with the association and expect to adjust this matter privately."

Quit and Then Reorganized.

Former Attorney-General Otto, in 1925, began an investigation of the methods of this association and also of the Association of Master Plumbers in St. Louis, with a view to filing an anti-trust suit against them. The suit was filed against the plumbers, but no action was taken against the heating contractors.

In 1926 the Hogan-Sunket Heating Co. filed suit for $25,500 against the association, then known as the Heating & Power Contractors' Association, charging the association with fixing prices and being in a combine with the Steamfitters' Union to restrain trade by an agreement with the union not to furnish workmen to non-members of the association. The suit was called to the attention of the United States District Attorney, whereupon the association quit business and later resumed under its present name and with a new set of by-laws. The suit came to naught four years later when a demurrer to the evidence was sustained in the Circuit Court.

Hay, Opening Campaign, Urges Full Public Utilities Inquiry; Virtually Ignores Prohibition

Wets and Drys at Dinner to Candidate for Senatorial Nomination, Join in Pushing Liquor Issue Into Background.

By CURTIS A. BEITS.

Elimination of the eighteenth amendment as an issue in Democratic politics that the party might by united strength wrest control of the Government from the Republicans and restore Democratic economic principles in the administration of affairs, was the dominant theme at a testimonial dinner given by 700 Democrats last night at the City Club to Charles M. Hay, a candidate for the nomination for United States Senator.

Wets joined with drys in urging the idea that the liquor question, as a primary issue served only to divide the Democratic party, while the Republicans, successful in keeping it out of their campaigns, continuously won successes. Speakers, pleading for support from the wets for Hay, pointed out that he had supported William L. Igoe for Mayor and Harry B. Hawes for Senator, notwithstanding they were wets, and demanded that opponents of the eighteenth amendment should likewise subordinate it in their campaign that Democratic principles might have a chance to prevail in government.

Dr. Simon Supports Hay.

Dr. John H. Simon, a candidate for Mayor in 1913, who described himself as "drippingly wet," and feeling in an audience of drys like a "great big whale, dragged from its native element and thrown into the Sahara desert in the midst of a caravan of camels," urged united party support for Hay on the ground of party expediency.

Hay carried out the idea by virtually ignoring the question of prohibition in his speech, which was the first of his campaign, though he said humorously that he "believed it had got out on him that he was dry."

He devoted virtually his entire speech to a discussion of economic questions, laying particular stress upon the necessity for the passage of Senator Walsh's resolution for an inquiry into the management of public utility companies supplying gas and electricity, and the pyramiding of securities issued by holding companies, which, he said, were amenable to neither state nor national regulation.

He demanded for the farmer legislation which would permit the stabilization of prices of farm products, that the Federal Government should assume full responsibility for the control of the Mississippi River, that there should be a reduction in armaments and greater expenditures on domestic developments, and that there should be no "chip on the shoulder" attitude toward other countries, but that instead there should be a true effort toward reaching peace agreements with all.

State's Responsibility.

Except for one or two humorous references, Hay's only remark which could be construed as touching on enforcement of prohibition was a declaration that in any case in which either Federal or state authority could be exercised, the State should, in the first instance, assume responsibility.

"But," he said, "too often we make loud protestations of our right to local self-government, and then make slothful or feeble exercise of that right. It is mere mockery to protest against the exercise of authority by the Federal Government while failing to exercise State authority properly."

Hay approached Federal regulation of power corporations with a discussion of the duty of the Government in the protection of its citizens from injustice.

For Protection of Public.

"By acts of Congress," he said, "we have established bureaus and commissions whose duty it is to see that all who have to do with interstate business get a square deal. Private interests which conduct interstate business are entitled to operate under fair rules and to reap a fair reward for the service rendered. The public is entitled to be protected against injustice of all kinds. It is imperative that these bureaus and commissions be manned by men who can be influenced or controlled by no sinister influence or special interest. The ever-present problem is to keep the special interests which must be controlled from controlling the controller."

From this he launched into an analysis of the national power situation.

"A recent great development is now challenging the attention of the nation and presenting questions which the Federal Government may have to act in the public interest," he said. "I refer to the public utilities corporations supplying gas and electrical energy.

Vast Amounts in Securities.

"That these companies deal in commodities indispensable to the comfort and well-being of the people, particularly in the great metropolitan areas, cannot be denied. Neither can it be denied that they are putting on the market securities in vast amounts and for purchase by the public generally.

"Most of the operating companies producing gas or electrical energy do business only in the states in which they operate and are or may be subject to State regulation and control. But holding companies, 'super' power or 'super'-holding and what might be called 'super-super' holding companies are being formed, which are not subject to any regulation or control and which are controlling operating companies in large numbers."

He referred to the Insull interests, which, through a holding company, control utility companies in 421 New England communities, and quotes Prof. Ripley of Harvard in tracing one small company, which he found to have "been scrambled" with 38 others in many widely separated states.

Possibilities of Pyramiding.

"The Federal Trade Commission," he continued, "has called attention to the possibility of pyramiding these companies so as to enable a holding company with a capitalization of $12,500,000 to control properties of operating companies aggregating a billion dollars, and to earn an annual dividend of 145 per cent for the stock of the holding company, while the stock of the operating companies would earn not to exceed 8 per cent. Raymond P. Brandt in an illuminating article published in the Post-Dispatch last November, declared that the pyramiding which the commission described as possible has been accomplished throughout the country.

"These holding companies, as I have said, are under the supervision and control of no Government, State or Federal. They manifestly do not want to be. Samuel Insull makes campaign contributions to Senatorial candidates in Illinois, both Republican and Democratic. The only difference is that he bids higher for a Republican than for a Democratic Senator. I suppose that is because Republicans are accustomed to deal in bigger money than Democrats.

Utility Interests' Lobby.

He told of the lobby maintained in Washington by utility interests having a capitalization of $17,500,000,000 to oppose an investigation, declaring the opposition was "because they want the right of unlimited exploitation." He quoted Senator Walsh that holding companies had placed on the market approximately $2,000,000,000 of securities in excess of the additions which had gone into the properties, and Senator Norris that electric rates in homes in the United States were four times the rates in the Province of Ontario.

"Every fair-minded man wants business, whether it be big or little, to have a square deal and a fair chance," he said, "but neither big business nor little business should be permitted to exploit the public by unloading on the people securities of questionable value, by collecting dividends on watered stock or by exacting charges for service that are not actually rendered.

"Who shall say that Congress should not inquire diligently into the facts pertaining to the operations of these concerns, certainly of the holding, 'super' and 'super-super' holding companies, and then act, if remedial action can be taken. Government fails of its high purpose if those in authority sit idly by while the people are defrauded by the cunning or plundered by the strong.

Duty of Democratic Party.

"The fight for this investigation is being led by a Democrat—and naturally so. If the Democratic party has any mission at this hour, it is this: To come to the aid of the people in the fight to prevent aggregated wealth from imposing an economic autocracy on the form of a political democracy, or from working injustice on the people beneath the unrestraining or protecting hand of Government."

Dissussing the plight of the farmers, Hay said:

"They are asking aid from the Government. They do not ask alms—or even subsidies or loans. They are asking to be put on a parity with other business men. They are asking for legislation which will enable them to stabilize prices and control their surplus so that they may receive a fair and reasonable return for their labor. This relief they are entitled to have."

Taking up the question of control of the Mississippi, Hay said:

"It is the property of the nation. Its waters cannot be diverted or its banks linked with wood or steel without the consent of the Federal Government.

Duty of U. S. Government.

"The question asked by Langdon Jones of Kennett goes to the heart of the whole matter: 'If it's the property of the Government when in bounds, whose property is it when out of bounds?' That which the nation claims as its property and boasts of as its pride should be accepted as its burden. I stand squarely with Senator Hawes in his fight to bring the Federal Government to accept the full responsibility for the control and improvement of the Mississippi."

Recounting that the army and navy expenditures in six years had been $5,582,000,000 and that Admiral Plunkett suggested a naval building program beginning with $2,000,000,000, Hay demanded to know what threat of war there was that required such an outlay.

"There is no threat of war," he said, "and will be none unless jingoes, swashbucklers, professional militarists and munition makers determine the future policies of America. The American people do not want war. If you doubt it, ask the fathers and mothers who must rear the sons to do the fighting. Ask the young men who know what war means—not the Colonels of the mahogany desks.

"The United States always has stood for a reasonable military establishment. It should stand for that now. This nation, the richest, strongest on earth, should lead the world toward a general reduction of armaments and not in a mad competition in armament building.

"Before the great war, we led the world toward the settlement of international disputes by arbitration or judicial determination. We should assume that leadership now.

"Do not misunderstand me. I want to be understood on this if not on anything else in this campaign. I stand for the maintenance of international peace, amity and good will. I yield to no man in devotion to my country and my flag. I believe in the preservation inviolate of the independence and sovereignty of the United States. But I am persuaded it is as much an act of independence to make friends as to make enemies, and as much an act of sovereignty to promote peace as to provoke war.

"If you want some one in the Senate with a chip on his shoulder ready at all times by word or act to give offense to other nations and to add to the suspicion and mistrust of the world, ready also to launch this nation into a militaristic course, then you had better support some one else. If, on the other hand, you want someone who by word and act will advocate those policies and practices which make for peace and justice, then I covet the privilege and honor of voicing your sentiments in the Senate of the United States."

For Honesty in Office.

Hay recited at considerable length the history of corruption during the Harding administration, asserting that there should be a "militant honesty" in public office, "an honesty that can fight off the low-browed bandit who would rob an oil station or the high-browed corruptionist who would steal an oil well." He argued that the Republican tariff doctrine of granting special privileges and favors quite naturally could lead to the granting of special privileges by those holding office under such an administration.

"That's what Sinclair and Doheny were trying to do," he said. "They evidently were acting on the belief that under a Republican dispensation there are those who get something for nothing. The trouble with them was that they did not understand the doctrine thoroughly. They tried to give at least a little in return.

"If they had taken the whole works, bag and baggage, without sending even a black satchel full of appreciation, there isn't a tariff baron or pet of privilege in America who would not have congratulated them as fortunate beneficiaries of the practical application of the Republican theory of government and finance."

Hay concluded his speech with a condemnation of control of senatorial candidates through huge campaign contributions, and pledged that he would comply in spirit and letter with the law limiting campaign expenditures of senatorial candidates to $7000 in addition to traveling expenses.

In addition to Hay and Dr. Simon the speakers were former Circuit Attorney McDaniel, who was toastmaster; Dr. Charles H. Jones of Wayne County, Wallace Todd of Howard County, Mrs. Thomas C. Radcliffe, Mrs. Leo J. Vogt of Webster Groves, and former United States Senator Wilfley.

WIFE OF PEDDLER KISSES KING'S SON AT LONDON BALL

Duke of York Laughs at Unexpected Feature of Costermongers' Party.

Copyright, 1928, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Cos. (The New York World and Post-Dispatch.)

LONDON, Jan. 31.—The Duke and Duchess of York attended the Costermongers' ball at the Finsbury town hall last night and the Duchess' necklace of pearls and emeralds was outshone by the thousands of pearl buttons the other women wore all over their clothes.

These buttons, which are sewn all over the coats, skirts and even umbrellas of the costermongers, are part of an old tradition. It was not part of the tradition, however, for a costermonger's wife to embrace the Duke as enthusiastically as one did. She kissed him once so heartily he was almost dazed and she got in another kiss before he recovered. Then both he and the Duchess laughed.

COAL INDUSTRY HANDICAPPED BY OVERCROWDING

NEW LEADER NEEDED TO WORK REFORMS

Railroads Stimulate Opening of More Mines, Which Increases Cut-Throat Competition.

By BASIL MANLY,
A Special Correspondent for the Post-Dispatch.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Jan. 31.—What the bituminous coal industry needs is a Pierpont Morgan to eliminate its crazy, cut-throat competition and a Henry Ford to take it in hand and make it productively sound and efficient.

This is the consensus of the operators, miners, union officers and technical experts with whom the writer has discussed the problems of the industry, translated into nontechnical language.

Here is the Nation's basic industry, in which more than 100,000 miners now are on strike, in which no company, large or small, is assured of making even a reasonable profit, year in and year out, and in which the consumers are confronted by wildly fluctuating prices—low when they don't want coal, high when they do.

Work Irregular for Miners.

Paying a high wage scale—$7.50 a day for labor in the union fields before the strike—it never operated steadily enough to give its workers an annual income large enough to support a family in health and reasonable comfort. Charging domestic consumers an excessive price for coal, the mines operated so irregularly that the profits were largely eaten up by fixed charges and maintenance costs. Failing to profit by the lessons of the great mechanical advances in every other American industry, a majority of companies, unwilling to risk large capital investments in modernizing so hazardous an industry, have continued to use the methods and equipment of a generation ago.

The twin curses of the industry, operators, miners and technicians agree, are overdevelopment and cut-throat competition. If all mines in the United States were operated at full capacity throughout the year, they would produce nearly 50 per cent more coal than the Nation can consume. This makes for cut-throat competition. Every operator is so hungry for business that he is ready to cut prices in slack periods below cost of production and depend on making up his losses by charging excessive prices whenever there is a heavy demand as a result of strike threats or other emergencies.

Railroads Stimulate New Mines.

The desire of the railroads for traffic also makes for overdevelopment and cut-throat competition. They encourage the opening of new mines where none are needed in order to insure themselves a large coal traffic. If they own the mines, they can absorb the losses on coal sales in their transportation profits.

The competition is so keen, the labor officers insist, that wage reductions will not solve the problem even for the operators in the union fields. If the union should accept a cut to $5 a day, according to their view, the non-union fields will drop their basic wage to $4 and so on down the scale until a starvation level is reached.

The operators say with equal force that they cannot continue to pay the Jacksonville scale of $7.50 a day and compete with the non-union operators who pay $5 or less, particularly in an industry where wages form a large part of the cost of production.

Miners and Operators Lose.

Thus we have the present deadlock in the bituminous coal fields, which already has cost the union miners the loss of more than $100,000,000 in wages and the coal corporations probably half that amount in lost profits and extra depreciation of their properties. And this is merely the culmination of a series of similar losses in previous years as a result of strikes and irregular operation.

These disastrous experiences have wrought a great change in the attitude of both the union and the operators, but they have not produced a meeting of minds on any constructive solution of their common problems. Five years ago the miners and the coal companies joined in the declaration: "Let us alone. We are big enough to fight out our differences. We resent any outside interference."

Together they joined in blocking every attempt at legislation to remedy the admitted evils of the industry, whether they came from committees of Congress or from the United States Coal Commission. Now they are beginning to see a new light.

Says Changes Are Needed.

"There will be no stability in the bituminous coal industry," declares Philip Murray, vice president of the Mine Workers' Union, "until there are revolutionary changes in the very structure of the industry. At the Miami conference last spring, we proposed the creation of a joint committee of miners and operators, with the best experts in the country, to study the situation and prescribe a remedy. But our proposal was rejected without even a discussion. We stand ready today to renew this conference, not only to settle this immediate dispute on the wage question, but also to work out a constructive solution for the problems of the industry."

"As far as we are concerned," J. D. A. Morrow, president of the Pittsburg Coal Co., declared to the writer, "there is no strike and there are no problems that we are not rapidly solving."

Morrow, now 46 years old, has had a spectacular rise from the position of statistician in a Government bureau 12 years ago to the head of the largest coal producing company in the United States.

"We are done with the union," he continued. "We would not sign a contract with the United Mine Workers, no matter what wage reductions they might propose to accept.

Has Trained New Force.

"Since we broke with the union, we have equipped our plants with modern machinery, trained a new force of men to work with up-to-date methods, and have now brought our operations to the point where we can give 300 days work a year to every man on our payroll. We have ceased merely digging coal. With our new methods of mining and preparation, we are really manufacturing coal for special purposes. This gives us a market several times as wide as we had before the strike. As far as Pittsburg coal is concerned, we have solved our problems and anticipate no further difficulties."

"If that is true," the writer inquired, "why did you find it necessary to cut wages the first of this month?"

"That was not a reduction," Morrow answered. "That was a readjustment. We substituted a non-union scale, in which men are paid according to their ability and industry, for a union scale in which they are paid substantially a flat rate. The least skilled workers are cut some $2.50 a day below the union scale, but the skilled men can earn more."

Here we have the biggest coal corporation equipping and organizing its plants for modern mass production of coal. This, added to the existent competition from the non-union fields of Kentucky and West Virginia, means disaster to the operators in the union fields unless they can reorganize their affairs on a modern basis to meet it.

Congress to Discuss Problem.

An opportunity to bring about such a reorganization appears to be provided by the bill introduced in Congress by Senator Copeland and Representative Jacobstein, both Democrats from New York, apparently with some aid and comfort from Secretary of Labor James J. Davis. This bill provides for the repeal of the Sherman and Clayton anti-trust acts as applied to the bituminous coal industry to permit the creation of co-operative associations for the marketing of coal.

ESTIMATED COST OF NAVY NOW PUT AT $7,000,000,00

Fifteen-Year Figures Administration Expert Include Provision for 20,000 Officers and Men.

AMOUNT DOUBLED IN LESS THAN MONTH

Maintenance of Air Equipment Alone to Total $27,585,967 a Year, Officers Assert.

Post-Dispatch Bureau.
20-23 Wyatt Building.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—The administration's navy plan, which startled Congress and the world large only a few weeks ago as a $700,000,000 project, has developed so many additions and ramifications that observers, taking all facts into consideration, figure the naval expenses for the next 15 years at $7,000,000,000 at least under the present program.

These observers base their conclusions on indications that the naval experts themselves have only a rough idea of what their program will cost. Additional items keep appearing in their estimates such as increased personnel, new navy yards and other shore facilities.

All these factors enable a decade's expenses to be figured only in round billions.

Capt. John H. Gunnell, budget officer of the Navy Bureau of Aeronautics, yesterday asked the House Naval Affairs Committee for more time to prepare estimates, as rapidly mounting costs of parts of the air program.

In a little more than a month the Navy Department, through its officers on the witness stand, has doubled its original estimate.

Estimates Now $7,000,000,000.

Additions to the original $[illegible],000,000 proposals which include the $7,000,000,000 total may be listed as follows:

More actual building, outlined by Secretary Wilbur, bringing the cost of construction to $740,000,000 of the five-year program.

Testimony of Admiral Hugh that this figure should be raised to $1,000,000,000 for "adequate security."

Twenty thousand more men and $25 officers for 25 new cruisers alone.

One thousand four hundred and ninety more planes, costing $[illegible],667,100 and requiring 2930 officers and men. Also 4000 men and 2[illegible] officers for non-aviation personnel of five aircraft carriers.

Additional yards and other shore facilities, as yet not mentioned in testimony, to cost untold millions.

Battleship replacements at $10[illegible],000,000 a year, beginning in 192[illegible] as provided in Washington treaty.

Maintenance cost (at present size, without additions) of about $325,000,000 a year.

Maintenance $27,585,967.

Private statement of Chairman Madden (Rep.) of Illinois, of the House Appropriations Committee that Navy Department estimates consistently must be boosted 50 per cent when the United States actually pays the bills.

Almost daily contributions to such papers pyramiding are being made publicly in the face of the determination of the appropriations and finance committees of Congress to fight the $700,000,000 plan to the finish.

Capt. Gunnell testified yesterday that 1490 more planes would be needed for the aircraft carriers and cruisers in the program.

The maintenance of this new equipment alone, he said, would be $27,585,967 a year, exclusive of pay and subsistence of the additional personnel.

More Navy Yards.

Acting Chairman Britten interposed to say: "When you talk of the 1942 program the amount becomes so stupendous that it is headlined in the newspapers and the public becomes frightened. The ordinary expenses of the Navy between now and 1942 will amount to $5,000,000,000. That figure in headlines looks stupendous."

Last week Rear Admiral William A. Moffett, chief of the Bureau of Aeronautics, told the committee 759 more planes would be needed. The near-doubling of that figure was explained as accounting for replacements because of crashes and obsolete craft and for training and reserve craft.

Only three weeks ago the committee heard Rear Admiral Mayo ruder urging abolition of the three Navy yards on the Atlantic coast. The new program would require construction of more yards in many localities, a new species of Congressional "pork" counted on to push balance-of-power straddlers on the "Big Navy" side of the fence.

How Al Bends Backward.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

FROM a purely selfish point of view the Protestants of this country could do nothing better than to elect Al Smith President.

It would be the greatest Protestant administration this country has ever seen. Gov. Smith would lean over backwards in his endeavor to please the Protestants and to keep the slightest suspicion of religious prejudice away from his office. This is evidenced by his present administration in New York, where the cabinet of his own choosing is practically unanimously Protestant, and his private secretary is a stanch Protestant and a Mason. The surest method an applicant for office under a Smith administration could use not to get the job would be to represent himself as a Catholic.

At the same time, the greatest "booster" for Al Smith at present is Senator Heflin. There is an element of fair-mindedness in this country among the better class of Protestants, that is typically American, and the inclination is to give every man a fair show. Al Smith has worked himself up from the sidewalks of New York. The average American likes this. Smith apparently has made a splendid Governor. The voters of New York attest this.

If the Catholics want Smith to be President, and we assume they do, they should use every effort to keep Heflin in the public prints, pat him on the back occasionally and encourage him to go on. If they can keep him spouting around for the rest of the year, provided Smith should be nominated, the Governor will ride into the White House on the greatest popular majority this country has ever seen, and it will be mostly composed of the votes of the real, intelligent, liberal minded, straightforward, honest-to-goodness American Protestants.

A Convenience to Thousands.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

SINCE Mr. Anti-Parking has decided, hypothetically, to pitch his tent in the street, we shall seek to justify his cause. Probably a great catastrophe has occurred and half the buildings of the entire city destroyed. In such a case the city certainly would permit him to store his furniture in a little tent in a street roped off for such purposes. The obvious point is that necessity creates custom. And custom creates law. And law is the servant of custom, not its master, as is the situation in Russia.

There is then, an existing necessity that a great number of us should park our machines in front of our homes all night. Why? Because we find it convenient to do so.

Of course it goes without saying that encroaching upon our neighbor's front, failure to show a light, and obstructing traffic on a heavily congested street constitute a common menace and should be dealt with as such. But why destroy a convenience to thousands?

Burn the Smoke.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

COMMENTING on your wonderful article entitled "Smoke," wish to state that soft coal can be fired without smoke as long as no heat is required, and you fire often enough, but when heat is required, there never was a soft coal that can be used that does not throw out a smoke, no matter what Mr. Langsdorf or any one else may say to the contrary, and this has been proved long ago.

The only practical way to dispel smoke is to burn it.

Will Bill Save Us From the Irish Navy?

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

WM. H. O'Brien's article entitled "Billy and Bolshevism" was welcome, inasmuch as it offered a splendid opportunity to explode one of Billy's pet pieces of bunk.

Billy Sunday would have us believe that our form of government is in great danger due to bolshevistic and anarchistic propaganda. Mr. O'Brien tells us that Billy is doing a great good by pointing out to us this sinister menace. Most informed people, know that the bolshevistic and anarchistic species are practically extinct in our country. If Mr. Sunday wishes to frighten his credulous flocks, I suggest that he expose the imperialistic intentions of Ireland manifesting themselves in the powerful Irish Navy, which is threatening the peace of the world.

W. O. MEYER.

THE MISSOURI ROAD COMPROMISE.

The committee appointed by Gov. Baker to prepare a compromise road bond plan has made its report. It recommends:

A State bond issue of $75,000,000.

No increase in the gasoline tax or registration fees for 10 years.

Distribution to the counties, on the basis of area and population, for the construction of additional roads of all funds in excess of the amount necessary to complete the present State road system.

Under this plan the committee believes the following program can be carried out:

Completion of the present State road system by 1933.

Accumulation of a fund of $40,000,000 by 1937 for the construction of a system of farm-to-market roads.

The proposal is a compromise between the Automobile Club's plan of a $120,000,000 bond issue and the $60,000,000 issue approved by the State Highway Commission. It is a compromise also in the matter of tax limitation. The Automobile Club wanted the gasoline tax and registration to be permanently fixed at their present figures. The Highway Commission was opposed to any restriction of those taxes.

In this connection it should be remarked that the Governor did not pack his committee. The Highway Commission was represented on the committee by its chairman, C. D. Mathews. The Automobile Club by John Malang, Director of its Good Roads Bureau. The other members, Lou Holland of Kansas City, Jack Blanton of Paris, Anthony Buford of Reynolds County and Mr. Baker, himself, who acted as chairman, approached their task open-mindedly. This is shown by the fact that the committee wrestled an entire day with the problem before agreeing on a solution.

In view of all this the committee's recommendation will, we believe, be favorably received by the people. Neither the Highway Commission nor the Automobile Club has yet acted on the proposal. The indorsement of both is most desirable. Should either withhold its indorsement it will, we believe, be obliged to defend its action before the public opinion of Missouri. For these reasons:

First, substantial concessions have been made to both the commission and the club.

Second, a new and enlightened policy of highway construction has been enunciated. Heretofore we have been talking about the completion of the present designated State system, without considering whether the completion of that system by its present practice of construction was meeting the traffic necessities of the State. In actual experience we knew it was not doing so. Traffic requirements of the large cities have run far ahead of present State system's facilities. Wider roads entering the congested centers are imperative, in order to make the State system adequate. So with the farm-to-market roads. They must be built and provision for their systematic and continuous construction must be made to give Missouri a State highway system. The plan of the Governor's committee meets those essentials, on a basis of financing that will actually enable the Commission to do the job.

That is the proposition. Gov. Baker's committee has, it seems to us, met a difficult condition in an admirable spirit and with a constructive proposal which, if ratified at the November election, will put Missouri among the most progressive States.

FIELD MARSHAL HAIG.

He was a soldier. What better epitaph could the gallant Earl Haig ask than this, that he fulfilled, in most exact degree, the every requirement of the profession of arms, the business of war that his forbears had followed honorably for seven centuries.

Whatever be the observer's view on war and the profession of soldiering itself, he can not but feel a grudging admiration for the products that it turns out. About Haig, who was the very apotheosis of soldiering, there was an inescapable air of romance, a sublimated appeal that went direct to the soldier that hides in every man.

A glimpse of the jaunty Field Marshal, of his picture even, called up a vision of flashing guidons, galloping troops, the gleam of bared sabers, and the clatter of accoutrements. The Sudan, Atbara and Khartum. The Transvaal, Mons, Ypres—what a litany of battles his career included.

In the years to come Field Marshal Haig unquestionably will be recognized as the great cavalryman of the World War, a master of strategic retreat and the very epitome of the British spirit of never-say-die. But he was, above all, the finest type of professional soldier, the Beau Sabreur of his generation.

THE BITER BIT.

The enthusiasm with which employers of labor have applauded the injunction may soon be abated, if an event which has just occurred in Texas becomes a common one. Down in Houston, a Federal judge has just held four high officials of the Southern Pacific Railroad in contempt of court for violating an injunction forbidding them to interfere with organization activities of employes.

Surprising as this may seem at first, the possibility of its occurrence has, of course, been evident from the time the injunction came into general use as a weapon of employers against organized labor. If a judge might render an injunction against the activities of labor organizers, he might obviously, were he so inclined, grant an injunction forbidding employers to interfere with the activities of employes. The incident is noteworthy simply because it proves conclusively that the injunction may not be considered the weapon of any one class.

From this labor may derive comfort, but we trust it will not weaken in the commendable opposition it has hitherto maintained toward the injunction. It is to be hoped, rather, that the unusual occurrence in Texas will awaken capital to the dangers inherent in the use of this device. Perhaps, capital, too, will now realize that a device which nullifies trial by jury is always a highly undesirable one, no matter how many ancient precedents for it may exist in the proceedings of courts of equity. Maybe the very gentlemen who have praised the injunction so highly will also begin speculating on the abuses to which the injunction may be put by judges who are not quite up to the ideal standard required by their high office.

Labor has been pointing out these dangers for a considerable while. If capital, now that it finds itself in the position of the biter who has been bit, is wise enough to glimpse the force of labor's charges, the injunction may safely be regarded as bound for the fate it deserves.

MR. HAY AND THE SENATE.

Nothing daunted by the tradition that one side of the State cannot have both seats in the United States Senate, and seeming not to be greatly dismayed by the recent indisposition of Missouri to add anything to the dry strength in the Senate, Charles M. Hay last night cast his hat into the ring to succeed Senator Reed.

Either of these is a very great obstacle, and both must at this time be regarded as practically insurmountable. That time will alter the situation, either by bringing no one of any particular strength out against Mr. Hay from another part of the State, or by lessening the widespread dislike for prohibition all over Missouri, is as unlikely as things often get in this troubled life. The outlook for Mr. Hay is dubious in both respects. The ease with which Reed and Hawes carried the State on the liquor issue reveals him in something of the heroic stature of a senatorial Sandino.

However, if he said little or nothing of prohibition and thereby rated it as of no importance, seemingly forgetting what happened to the politically-late George H. Williams when he said it is not a political issue, he showed himself well aware that the power inquiry now before the Senate is a first-class political issue. His outspoken sympathy for a Federal inquiry into the financial acrobatics of holding companies indicates that if he gets the nomination he will not be supported by the sort of people who opened their purses over in Illinois to Frank L. Smith.

Mr. Hay's candidacy will hardly make him a United States Senator. However, it may provoke Senator Reed to keep on being one, and that would be a very great gain both to the State and the nation.

THE GREAT JIMMIE WALKER MYSTERY.

We have been wondering why those light and airy statements have ceased emanating from New York's city hall these past few months. Now we know. Jimmy Walker has taken to water. But why has he? What caused Broadway Jimmie to desert the juice of the grape for the pallid draught of the stream? True enough, His Honor says he feels better now that he has climbed aboard the wagon. But how did he know it would make him feel better before he tried it, so why did he try it? Is it possible that the Mayor's European tour had anything to do with it? Is it possible that the Continental cups ruined his taste for the liquor of his native land?

If that is the answer, if the Mayor of New York can no longer get a drink of real, honest-to-goodness whisky, then, truly, conditions in this America have come to a sorry pass.

IBANEZ, A PATRIOT.

How thorny is the path of patriotism is illustrated by Vicente Blasco Ibanez. Here was a man imbued with a passion to rescue his own people from the tyranny and rapacity of their rulers. He did not succeed. The Spanish, pumbed and terrorized by centuries of misrule, apparently are not capable of freedom. For his pains Ibanez spent his last years in bitter exile, writing furious denunciations of King Alfonso and the dictator, Primo de Rivera. Ibanez's body will lie in Spanish soil brought from his native Valencia, but it will never be returned to Spain until Spain is free. That was Ibanez's wish.

We do not think Spain understood Ibanez. It is not a country noted for great patriots. If it has its Robert Emmets, Kossuths, Kosciuskos, Dantons, Washingtons, Patrick Henrys, Mirabeaus, we have not heard of them. Perhaps we must look for Spanish patriots not in Spain but in the colonies it founded. To those colonies fled the Spaniards and Portuguese who loved liberty. From that stock sprang Simon Bolivar, the liberator of South America.

Was there any doubt of Ibanez's sincerity? We never heard it questioned. He was rich and famous for his literary work, whose qualities were recognized very late in his career. He might have spent the twilight of life in ease and happiness, surrounded by his family and friends, breathing the air of his native land until the last. Instead, he burned himself up in a futile, losing fight to awaken the Spanish people from their lethargy.

We say futile, but perhaps it wasn't. Perhaps his enumeration of the crimes of the Spanish crown, his flaming demand that the people throw off the old, decadent yoke, will yet rise to plague the Spanish masters.

PRISON PERPLEXITIES.

It is very evident that the penal system of the State of Missouri needs adjustment. Observe the situation. The large and well patronized penitentiary at Jefferson City is more than $1,000,000 in debt while the small and relatively unattractive St. Charles jail is prospering with a select clientele of bootleggers who pay $500 a month for accommodations. At least one of them says that is what it cost him.

Conditions at the Jefferson City institution, as disclosed by the check-up of State Auditor Thompson, are about as bad as anything could be, with 3600 resident patrons, of whom only about 2200 are handled at a profit. And it is getting worse all the time. It amounts to just about this, that the more customers the place has the more money it loses. And yet it cannot turn any of them away.

Now at St. Charles jail it is as different as could be. They know how to charge there. William Anth, a well-known bootlegger who has been staying there, says it cost him $500 a month for food and incidentals. Twenty-five hundred dollars for the five months that he was there. There is no reason to suppose that he was getting off cheaper than anybody else. And St. Charles jail is a popular stopping place for our leading bootleggers.

The inference is obvious. The big house at Jefferson City is not charging enough. Perhaps it is not getting its fair quota of bootleggers. As matters stand St. Louis juries are the main hope of the penitentiary management. It cannot be denied that they are doing their best to keep down the prison population.

Arnold Bennett has an exalted notion of the United States. He says you have to get out of it to say what you think.

Why a Federal Power Inquiry?

From the New Republic

MOST of the able advocates whom the electric-power industry has engaged to oppose Senator Walsh's resolution for an investigation into its practices adopt an argument which by this time has a familiar sound. Regulation, they say, is exclusively the province of the several states; Congress would be exceeding its prerogatives by passing any laws which might result from an investigation.

Is this true? Hardly. Even if no more were known about the situation, the existence of a large and heavily financed power lobby in Washington, the multifarious propaganda and political pressures which the power interests are exerting against such Federal projects as Muscle Shoals and Boulder Dam, the political contributions by utility magnates like that by Samuel Insull, on account of which Mr. Smith of Illinois has just been debarred from the Senate—such things show that the scope of the power interests is not confined to the states, that, for some reason of moment, the power industry and the Federal Government have contacts. The very existence of the highly profitable and immensely powerful aggregations of capital represented by the electric-utility holding companies, whose operations are national in scope, furnishes enough reason why the Senate is justified in inquiring into their activities and methods.

MORE than this, too, is known. Prof. William Z. Ripley's "Main Street and Wall Street" is not forgotten. Other investigators have turned up other facts. There are numerous instances of holding companies, pyramided one on another as many as five-fold, controlling utilities in many states. The concentration of control has grown to such an extent that not more than a dozen interests now govern the bulk of the electric production in the nation. There is no Federal regulation of the security issues, the financial and other practices of these companies; and many of their activities are both beyond the ken and beyond the legal power of the state commissions.

WHEN holding companies are built one upon another to the extent of five layers or more, you have an anomalous situation—the utility, which is supposed to offer a relatively safe but limited return on real investment, and which, for reasons of public policy, is supposed to be a non-speculative undertaking, is actually controlled by the ownership of stock (representing no cash investment) which offers immense possibilities of gain or loss, is extremely sensitive to widespread changes in utility earnings, and is thus highly speculative. It is of interest in this connection that, during the recent boom years on the stock exchange, the shares of utility holding-companies have, as a whole, shown greater advances than even the most speculative industrial groups. Is not this an unhealthy situation which may require some regulation of holding-company security issues, such as we have in the case of railroads?

HOLDING companies usually derive income from operating companies in other ways than by ownership. They make charges upon them for "management," "services," and the like. These charges are added to the expense of the operating company, before profit is reckoned. State commissions have no right to regulate these charges, unless collusion can be shown. In some cases these contracts for service may be reasonable; the operating company may be receiving fair value. But sometimes they are not reasonable, and the state commission has no discretion, and frequently no knowledge, in the matter.

We should also note that out of such unregulated management charges come immense sums spent for fighting the cause of the utilities in rate cases before commissions and courts, for lobbying in state capitals and in Washington, for general propaganda. The conumer pays for the ammunition of his opponent.

There sometimes come to light cases where the holding-company managements, which have little or no cash invested in the utility, cause contracts to be made with other companies—such as supply and equipment companies—in which they are interested, to the detriment of the utility.

ANOTHER point at which the power combinations escape regulation is in the wholesaling of current from a company in one state to a company in another. State officials have no legal authority over the price paid for such current. It becomes a part of the allowed expenses for the purchasing company. If the two companies were independent of each other, the bargaining process might perhaps be trusted to achieve a fair result, but often they are merely two hands of the same body, both having the same interest in the profits of either, profits made by charging high rates to the public. It is contended that such interstate wholesaling forms but a small part of the total current used. But it is rapidly growing in importance, as widespread interconnection proceeds.

Are these matters of great importance to the individual consumer? The general defense is set up that rates for electricity are low. This defense seems to be largely effective with the consumer, because he uses so little current, and because rates have fallen since pre-war days. He does not know that rates have not fallen nearly so much as the improved technique of the industry would have permitted. He does not know that his rates are high in comparison with the rates in effective publicly owned systems such as that in Ontario; that they are unduly high in relation to rates charged industrial consumers.

TO support the desirability of a Federal inquiry it is not necessary to assume at the beginning that Federal regulation is the one and only way out. Such an inquiry might help tremendously merely in bringing to light a demand for better state regulation, and in pointing out ways to effectuate it. It might strengthen, for instance, the movement begun in Massachusetts and Pennsylvania to base regulation on contracts between the state and the utility, rather than on the uncertain and limited police power. Where state commissions now lack legal power to deal with abuses, the Federal Government might call in their aid, rather than assume the regulatory burden itself. Ingenious proposals of this sort have been made, depending, of course, on appropriate Federal legislation. There is no occasion, in this question, to raise the old issue of states' rights, or the new one of centralization versus decentralization. It is a case where co-operation between the states and the Federal Government is obviously necessary.

Might serve to make a child behave.

Our earliest recollection is that the bugaboo man would get us unless we ate the mush. The bugaboo man's identity was nobody's business. Details were sufficiently vague to strike terror into the childish imagination. Besides, mush was the first course, if you ate it; if you did not eat it, it was the last course. Later, it was the policeman who was to get us. We doubted that. Policemen cannot be everywhere; policemen are definite, tangible personalities. However, the bugaboo man had had the desired effect. We grew up a respectable, law-abiding citizen. Children today are more sophisticated, we have been given to understand. A crisis impends. If there is no bugaboo man, "TINY TOTS REEL AT MUSH." Are we making proper use of the bolshevik menace at this critical moment? No matter how sophisticated the child, he cannot deny the existence of the bolshevik menace. It exists, but the details are sufficiently nebulous to terrify even children. Why should we adults appropriate to ourselves alone the delicious thrill of shivering in horror at the menace of Moscow, or whatever it is? Let the children share in our fright. Introduction of the bolshevik menace into the nursery would insure the mush's being eaten. Nor is this all. As the child grew older, he would see that the menace of Moscow is a myth, and the next generation would cease to be terrified by it. And if the next generation is not terrified by bolshevism, the next generation will be spared the 1,967,345 speeches and the billion and one societies against bolshevism. 'Tis a consummation devoutly to be wished, even for this generation.

The stubborn will of childhood is a thing that we must crush,
And the bolshevists will get them if they do not eat the mush.

EDMUND OSTHAUS, PAINTER, FOUND DEAD

Artist Apparently Suffered Heart Attack in Sleep at His Florida Hunting Lodge.

By the Associated Press.

PENSACOLA, Fla., Jan. 31.—Edmund Osthaus, 70 years old, artist, was found dead in his bed at his Marianna hunting lodge yesterday.

Mr. Osthaus presumably died in his sleep, of a heart attack. He had retired in his usual good health and when he failed to respond to a call for breakfast, servants entered his room and found him dead.

For several years Osthaus, a painter of animal and wild life and noted particularly for hunting canvases, had spent part of each winter at his lodge, hunting and painting. He was accompanied this year by friends from Detroit and Toledo.

A son, who is a student at Stanford University, has been notified of his father's death.

The body was brought to Pensacola and taken to the home of Mrs. Clarence Hutchinson, a niece, where it will be held pending word from the widow.

JOHN G. NEIHARDT

EDEN. By Murray Sheehan. (Dutton.)

ANYONE who has thought much upon the subject must have suspected, at least, that truth (if the word is to have any meaning of its own), can be expressed only through poetic devices. You have only to wander about through the dictionary awhile to discover that language has been developed on a factual basis for urgent utilitarian ends. Now and then you will come across words that seem strangely charged with over-meanings to be felt but hardly to be stated; and in every case, you may be sure, such meanings have been generated by the poetic process without reference to etymology. Expose an unimaginative literalist to such a word, and it will do nothing to him. For him, its meaning will in no way rise above or spread beyond the solid factual structure—the mere flesh and bones of the term. The over-meaning, that might well be called the soul of the word, will be as though it were not, though it may have been created out of the common joys or sorrows of innumerable men and women.

It is this difference between fact and truth that renders all the higher aspirations of men so pitifully vulnerable to ridicule. Try to state any vital truth in terms of fact alone and see how funny it will seem! It is probable that such an attempt is involved in all the strife between the scientist and the religionist; and perhaps the tragic joker in such strife lurks not so much in the antagonism of the scientist as in the mistaken eagerness of the dogmatic religionist to identify with some hard structure of alleged fact the truth that he feels and loves. In other words, is not his truth poetic, if it be truth at all, and does he not concede too much when he strives to meet the scientist on his own ground of physical sense? Certainly no poet worth his salt will make such a concession, however much he may admire science in its own realm.

The Garden of Eden story offers an excellent example of profound human truth expressed in highly charged symbolisms, and of the manner in which such symbolisms may be made to appear ridiculous by the literalist, whether friendly or hostile. We have that story here in "Eden." But it is no literalist, no seeker after the easy guffaws of our sense-bound sophisticates, who has retold the ancient story. Murray Sheehan is a poet, though it does not appear that he has written any verse, and out of the various versions of the Edenic legend he has woven a rich pattern of meaning that must have been humanly true long before the legend began to take form and shall be true, no doubt, as long as there are men and women and the sad longing to be happy.

To attempt to review Sheehan's book in the usual sense of the word would be to fall into the fatal trap of the literalist. For here is the tale of Lilith's passionate love for Adam before Eve was made, and of the far reaching results of her revenge upon her rival. Surely it is all very silly when you come to tell it in a few forthright words. But just as surely, anyone who has ever been young, and remembers, will recognize at once in Sheehan's story the old land of Eden. To few men—and they the luckless ones—will Lilith be a stranger, and Eve's will be a face well known and dear. Also, there will be something more than amusement in the plucking and the eating of the apple, the pursuing thunder and the flashing of the angelic sword, the weary journey eastward into a land where brambles grow and the stubborn soil yields only under sweat, and death seems waiting at the end of every trail. Cain, who was born in Paradise and shares with all wild and unspoiled creatures the precious secret of the way back, will come to mean something rather more exalted than murder; and Abel will be dismally familiar.

Few books have so much concentrated beauty in them as one finds here. Only once, and that for but a few pages, does it seem that the magical tale is about to be cheapened in keeping with the prevalent mania for being funny at any cost. It is after Adam and Eve have been driven from the Garden, and the harsh facts of the hard new life have blinded them and the family rows begin. This has vital meaning, too; but many will feel that Sheehan allowed himself to be influenced too much at this one point by the cynical attitude toward marriage now fashionable. Even now that the world has become so excessively modern and wise, there are many who still know a short way back from the sordid world that stretches east from Eden.

THE CATHOLIC SPIRIT IN AMERICA. By George N. Shuster. (The Dial Press.)

As one of the editors of "The Commonweal," the organ of the lay Catholic intelligentsia, the author knows the ideas of the thinking men and women of the church, and believes that those ideas should be more widely known and understood.

THE SMILING DEATH. By Francis D. Grierson. (Clode.)

Still another party found murdered under mysterious circumstances! Can anybody guess what foul fiend went and done this heinous deed? we ask, breathless as he has woven a rich pattern of meaning that must have been humanly true long before the legend after much masterly fumbling.

By THOMAS B. SHERMAN.

OTIS SKINNER'S Sir John Falstaff deserves to be recognized as one of the significant achievements of the modern American theater. This mellow- three-dimensional portrait is classified as "modern" despite the fact that in the minds of most persons Mr. Skinner is associated with an earlier tradition—with a day that is done. But his own day will never be done so long as he is able to sense the temper and psychology of audiences as he has done in the "Merry Wives of Windsor."

As the central character in this celebrated Shakspearean comedy, which opened last night at the American Theater, Mr. Skinner demonstrated that he knew as much about economy of means and the power of suggestion as any young hopeful along Broadway. When he made one gesture he gave you the emotional equivalent of five, when he sounded one note with his voice he touched off overtones in the winding lengths of your imagination.

His Falstaff, therefore, was not merely a lecherous old fat man who was properly brought to earth, but a decayed gentleman who still knew the cultivated uses of the mind and heart and who still had the bitter gift of irony. Mr. Skinner, as I have said before, made every stroke count. If he spoke a line once and the audience did not hear it, he said it again—and made the repetition seem a part of the character.

Mr. Skinner's two equally well-known associates, Mrs. Fiske and Henrietta Crosman, were also happily cast. The devices which Mrs. Fiske habitually employs to get her effects were miraculously well suited to the role of Mrs. Page. If, as Mrs. Alving, she sometimes annoyed her audience by treating everything, even softening of the brain, as a verp precious sort of a joke, the same method made her portrayal of Mrs. Page give off shower after shower of sparks. Her dry, staccato attack, her deliberate slowing up for the key-word in every sentence and her habit of starting her lines before her unfortunate fellow players have finished theirs—well, that's the sort of person Mrs. Page must have been.

Miss Crosman, who was almost a great actress and quite successfully and positively a beautiful woman, still carries the hallmarks of that beauty. Her conception of Mrs. Ford made just the right sort of contrast with Mrs. Fiske. She was merry without being any too imaginative.

The supporting company was of uneven merit. Some of the smaller parts were marvelously well done. The role of Pistol was taken by Will Geer, who was a member of the Garden Theater company which played here last summer.

As a whole the production was generously and competently managed. Despite the fact that the use of modern scenery necessitated longer interruptions of the action than Shakspeare anticipated, one got a feeling of rapid movement and the high feeling that the opening scenes naturally generates is happily sustained.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.

NEW YORK is reputed to be the style center of America for fashionably dressed men. It does perhaps originate the latest cuts in clothes, the swankest dips in hats and the flossiest patterns in shirts and ties. Yet they are seldom worn by real New Yorkers.

Perhaps the best dressed man seen on New York streets is Gene Markey of Chicago, a talented artist as well as writer. The average successful New Yorker wears loose fitting clothes of a pattern tailors call sedate. He tries to get away from fancy fripperies.

His Tuxedo and full dress are more likely than not of ancient vintage. He has no interest in the latest peak in coat lapels, the jaunty angle of a hat or the flair of a cuff. He could walk down any main street without being sartorially distinguished.

Of course, the metropolis has innumerable nifty dressers as symbolized by such stylists as Otto Kahn, Ray Long, Gene Buck, George Jean Nathan, Roy Howard, Conde Nast and lesser lights, but the percentage of dudish is not as high, according to population, as the average small city.

Flash dressers of Manhattan are chiefly found in the theatrical world. Here attention-calling clothes are regarded as an asset and as a result they often become fantastic. Belasco's clerical collars and Ziegfeld's lavender shirts are trademarks and part of the lovely Broadway horizon.

In the aristocratic Murry Hill section it is not unusual to see Congress gaiters, barrel cuffs, white lawn ties and flat-topped derbies. In the financial district important bankers feature habiliments that suggest parlor sea shells and twisted paper lighters.

Indeed, New York is one city where clothes do not suggest the man. A dowdily dressed man often turns out to be the head of a dozen corporations and a Beau Brummel may be just another bootlegger.

THERE are two men in New York of prominence who still blush. One is an actor and the other is general manager of an industrial concern. My last blush—in case you care—took place seven years ago when a man from my home town handed an old business card of mine around in a New Year gathering. It was decorated with crossed quills and read:

O. O. McIntyre,
Reporter, Gallipolis, O., Journal.
"Have you an item?"

THE favorite dessert of a steel millionaire is vanilla ice cream with hot chocolate sauce. He has been known to order it for breakfast—wouldn't that gag the buzzard for you?—thereby putting a hotel kitchen in quite a flutter for the rest of the day.

ON Fourteenth street a movie banner reads: "This is a family theater—No spooning."

HARLEM has a Star and Garter night club. To old-timers it recalls the famous resort by the same name that flourished in the late seventies at 6th avenue and Thirtieth street. It was here that Billy Patterson, New York's most famous bartender, held forth. Many drinks, well-known today, were invented by him. He was a favorite of the sportsmen of that day, a fat, jolly fellow who beamed good nature. One night after leaving his place he was found blackjacked, his skull crushed like an eggshell. His murderer was never found and the mystery was responsible for that famous query: "Who struck Billy Patterson?"

BEATRICE LILLIE failed to click in a new play. Miss Lillie or "B" as she is known in Algonquin circles, was vastly amusing in her first New York appearance singing a song off key and tripping over an imaginary something or other—but it is not quite amusing enough to be kept up indefinitely. Miss Lillie was accorded the warmest reception of any player this season, which is in pleasant contrast to the chilly silence in the receptions of several of our American players in London.

How GENERAL MOTORS Policy of Constant Progress has Benefited the Public

The policy of General Motors has always been to pass on to the public at the earliest possible date, advanced engineering ideas.

The result of this policy has been to give more quickly to the public the benefit of continually better automobiles at lower prices.

To facilitate the carrying out of a policy of this kind, General Motors Laboratories were founded some years ago. This gave the engineers working on General Motors cars the advantages of a background of scientific research.

Later, in order to prove the scientific and engineering ideas advanced, the General Motors Proving Ground was established. Here, every conceivable automotive testing device was set up and every conceivable road condition created. Here, all new cars could be subjected to pitiless testing, thus guaranteeing their worth before they went to the public.

General Motors has never been satisfied with existing standards. It has always believed that the public is entitled to all the benefits of advancement in every field related to the motor car.

As a result of this belief, new materials were produced; new principles were evolved; and through the General Motors Acceptance Corporation, there was offered a plan of time payment that made possible for tens of thousands of people the ownership of a motor car.

This policy of progress has affected every General Motors car. It has made each one constantly finer, constantly more desirable and constantly more favored by the public.

As illustrated below, it has enabled Chevrolet, year after year, to pioneer into the low-price field, an increasing measure of modern design, modern performance, riding comfort and distinctive style.

In the new Chevrolet, recently announced, these basic factors of owner satisfaction have been carried out to a still higher degree.

Due to the experience and skill of all General Motors engineers combined, it embodies a new measure of advanced design.

Due to the facilities of General Motors Proving Ground, it comes to the public already proved.

And due to General Motors resources in raw materials, purchasing power, body building and diversified automotive manufacture—

—its prices are such that it represents the most impressive value in luxurious low-priced transportation ever offered the public.

GENERAL MOTORS
CONSTANT PROGRESS BETTER AUTOMOBILES

By following a policy of progress in the development of low-priced transportation, General Motors has given the public an ever-increasing measure of—

Modern features—

General Motors, through its Chevrolet division, was a pioneer in giving the public those modern features of design which today are the basis of luxurious low-priced transportation. Prominent among these are: Selective 3-speed transmission; semi-elliptic springs parallel to the frame; electric starting, lighting and ignition; Duco finishes in color; water pump cooling system, pressure pump lubrication, and the vacuum fuel system.

Modern performance—

General Motors has always believed that the public is entitled to the advantages inherent in advanced engineering practice. This policy, carried out by the Chevrolet division, has enabled owners of even low-priced cars to enjoy, year after year, the latest developments affording power, acceleration, endurance, handling ease, stamina and economy.

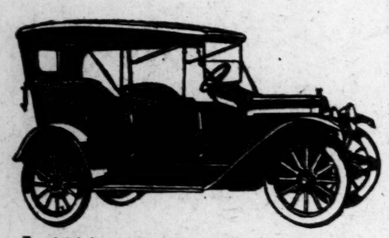

Riding comfort—

Realizing that the public's enjoyment of individual transportation is largely dependent on comfort, General Motors has devoted years of research to the basic comfort factors. Numerous discoveries have been made in chassis springs, spring suspensions, spring steels, seat cushioning, weight distribution, and body balance. And through Chevrolet these have been given without delay to the purchasers of low-priced automobiles.

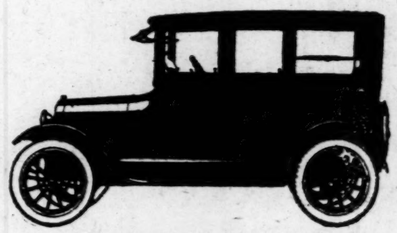

Distinctive style—

Style in the development of motor cars, appearance and the pride of possession become important factors in owner satisfaction. Through its long connection with the Fisher Body Corporation, General Motors has consistently introduced finer and more beautiful automobiles. And all the basic advancements in styling have been available in Chevrolet as rapidly as they were created.

As a result of its policy of progress, General Motors through its automobile divisions, has always given the public without delay the benefits of advanced engineering development.

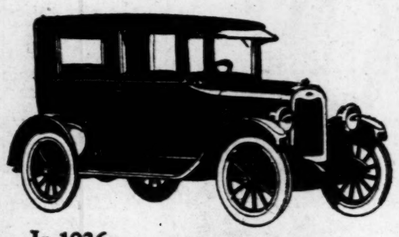

In 1914 the Chevrolet touring car embodied those features of design and equipment which were considered modern at that time in higher priced cars. This open model Chevrolet was priced at $875

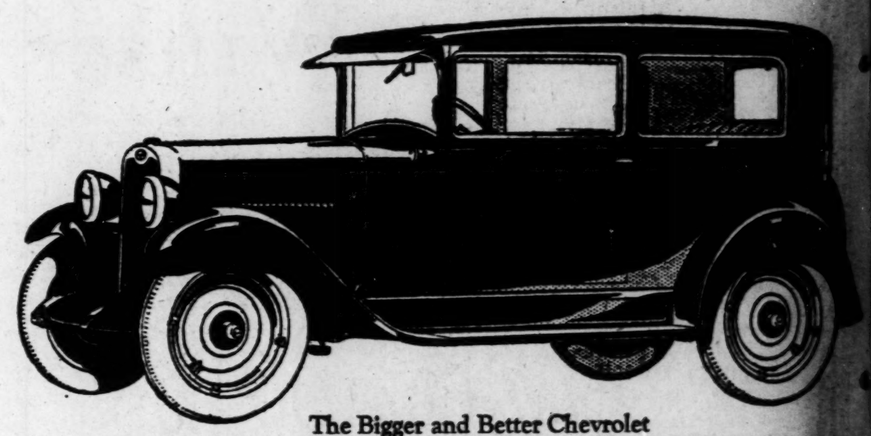

In 1918 Chevrolet introduced a three-door, five passenger closed car—again following the vogue of the day in the building of enclosed models. Note the progress made in type of design as well as in appearance. The price was $1060

In 1924 the popular model two-door coach was introduced, with its lower streamline Fisher Body. Modern in every respect from a design and equipment standpoint, it sold for $365 less than the 1918 model. The price was $695

In 1926 the Improved Chevrolet was announced. It incorporated every modern feature of design, from radiator to rear axle. Both in colors and in its lower lines it reflected the existing trend of motor car styling. The price of the coach was $645

The Bigger and Better Chevrolet

In 1928 with the introduction of the Bigger and Better Chevrolet, there is offered a noteworthy achievement in design, performance, style and distinction. Never before was the General Motors policy of constant progress better exemplified than in the Fisher body coach illustrated above. Built on a 107-inch wheelbase—four inches longer than before—and offering many improvements including four-wheel brakes, it represents a remarkable value. The price is $585

SAYS TAX REDUCTION WOULD AID BUSINESS

President of Investment Bankers Favors Revision to Help Farmers.

Henry Reed Hayes of New York, president of the Investment Bankers' Association, speaking to the Mississippi Valley group of the association at its dinner at the University Club last night, stressed the need of tax reduction. He believes that reduction, and increase in the farmers' spending power, will give the necessary stimulus to commerce.

He set forth the recommendations of the Tax Committee, at the Association's recent convention in Seattle. Progress is hampered by heavy taxes, he declared, and he set forth the elimination of taxes on capital gain as a need of the present.

He placed savings accounts first in public importance, among the service rendered to the public by financial institutions. Second he placed life insurance; third, home building, and fourth, he classed bond investment.

As to restrictive legislation by States, he read the recent resolution of the Board of Governors of the national organization, which is:

"The Board of Governors of the Investment Bankers of America, while approving in principle any sound effort to protect the investor from the sale of investment trust securities of a doubtful nature, has not yet been able to convince itself that there is a legislative panacea that will assure sound management essential to the success of any investment trust.

"Therefore, it is the sense of the Board of Governors that any legislation of the blue-sky type would prove of questionable efficiency, and that fraud acts with broad powers of investigation are probably the best means of accomplishing this protection, if properly administered."

Hayes, who is vice president of the Investment banking firm of Stone & Webster & Blodgett, is making a tour of the country, accompanied by Alden H. Little of St. Louis, executive vice president of the national organization. He left for a series of group meetings in Chicago and northern cities, and will proceed to the Pacific coast.

About 250 persons attended the dinner. John R. Longmire was present as chairman of the Mississippi Valley group of the association. Little spoke of the desirability of a full representation at the next convention, to be held at Atlantic City, Oct. 7.

Policeman Hurt by Clothesline.

Patrolman Bergman of the Laclede Avenue Station was injured last night when, with other policemen, he went to a house at 3317 Lawton boulevard, in response to a report a fight was going on there. As Bergman went around to the rear to watch for those who might try to escape that way, his head hit a taut clothesline stretched across the yard, throwing him down. He suffered lacerations of the scalp and face. Thirteen Negroes were arrested in the house.

TWO DEFENDANTS FREED IN ZEIGLER BREWERY TRIAL

Government Dismisses Indictments Against Gus Klarich and Carl Williams.

With two of the six defendants eliminated by motions to dismiss, the Zeigler, Ill., brewery conspiracy trial continued today in Federal Judge Wham's Court in East St. Louis.

The defense has presented testimony designed to show that large quantities of cane sugar shipped to the defendants was not used in making illegal beer. There was a further effort by defense attorneys to prove their clients innocent of having set up brewing machinery in the Zeigler "wildcat" plant.

Those still on trial are Horace E. Harper of Cairo, president of the defunct Cairo Beverage & Refining Co.; Tom Tudorovich and Oscar and Russell Vance of Zeigler. Tudorovich's father-in-law, Gus Klarich of Christopher, was discharged by Judge Wham when it was shown that he had turned over the Zeigler brewery property to Tudorovich. Carl Williams, indicted with the others, was dropped from the case by dismissal of the indictment against him.

HAIG REPORTED TO HAVE WRITTEN HISTORY OF WAR

It Is Said to Be Book of Frank Memoirs—Rumor Is Publication Will Be Held Up for 50 Years.

LONDON, Jan. 31. — The Daily Sketch today said that it was understood that the late Earl Douglas Haig had completed a history of the World War.

The book was said to have contained more of the secret history of the conflict than now is available, and Earl Haig decided that it should not be published during his lifetime.

The history is said to be a frank book of memoirs. One rumor has it that the book is locked up in the British Museum with instructions that it be not published for 50 years. Another version is that he left the manuscript to his family with implicit instructions as to what to do with it.

Although there had been every expectation that Haig would be buried in St. Paul's with highest honors, it was announced today that the burial, at the Field Marshal's own wish, would be at his home at Bemersyde. It is likely that there will be no services whatever in St. Paul's. The first part of the funeral probably will be held at Westminster Abbey, Friday.

Wreaths of the Flanders poppy, devised by disabled ex-servicemen in factories established by the Field Marshal and Lady Haig at Richmond and Edinburgh, will be seen at the funeral in abundance. Orders already have been received for 1000 of such wreaths from all over the world, including the British Officers' Club at Philadelphia.

Meanwhile the body of the dead Marshal has been removed from Prince's Gate House, where he died, to the Scottish Church of St. Columba's, of which he was formerly an elder and placed in the crypt. It will be transferred to the main building tomorrow.

The official medical statement on Haig's death reads:

"The cause of death was sudden heart failure, the result of the effects of the war and previous tropical and campaigning services on the heart muscles."

A post-mortem examination was conducted, and it was decided that no inquest was necessary.

The king's regulations for military burial require that pall-bearers shall all be of the same rank as the dead officer. In Haig's case, therefore, the pall-bearers must be chosen from the following field marshals—the Duke of Connaught, Lord Methuen, Lord Plumer, Lord Allenby, Sir William Robertson, Sir William Birdwood and Sir Claud Jacob.

The king sent a personal message of condolence to Lady Haig, and in a court circular issued from Sandringham last night, the Field Marshal's death is thus referred to:

"The King knows that the sudden and irreparable loss of this valuable life will be deeply felt throughout the whole empire by the army, and more especially by Lord Haig's old comrades, to whose welfare he had devoted himself since the close of the great war."

Haig's death has let loose a flood of war incidents in the press, which are filled with memoirs and special articles. The general opinion is that Haig's high character more than any military genius served the British army in tight places.

DEMPSEY WILL NOT BE READY TO FIGHT BEFORE NEXT SEPTEMBER

TOURNEY VICTOR TO FACE TUNNEY IN BOUT IN JUNE

Tunney Starts Training For Title Defense

By the Associated Press.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Jan. 31.

GENE TUNNEY went through his first real training session since his Chicago fight with Jack Dempsey today, dividing 30 minutes between rope skipping, punching the inflated bag and mauling the sandbag sack.

He appeared in good condition, breathing easily after the workout. The training will increase gradually, he indicated, with sparring partners to be taken on later. He scaled 192 pounds before starting training today. Yesterday, Tunney played in the qualifying round of the Miami Beach amateur golf tournament but did not turn in a card.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 31. — The heavyweight dance of the would-be champions proceeded today with one of the principals sitting out a number.

From Los Angeles, yesterday, Jack Dempsey served notice he would not be in shape for a titular tiff until next September, which is partially caused by an injury to the right eye.

But he declared he would be in condition by fall and he expects no difficulty in coming to terms with Tex Rickard for a bout with the ruling king of the heavies.

Despite the temporary absence of the Manassa Mauler from the ring, Rickard's revised elimination series goes on as scheduled, John M. Chapman, Rickard's assistant at Madison Square Garden, announced.

Survivor to Box Tunney.

Chapman said he talked with Rickard by telephone, receiving word from the promoter at Miami Beach that the survivor of the approaching eliminations would stack up against Champion Gene Tunney in June.

The principals of this series are Jack Delaney and Tom Heeney, who tussle on March 1 and Jack Sharkey and Johnny Risko, who battle on March 12. Now that Dempsey has declared he will not box until next September, the winner of the Eastern tournament will be sure to fight Tunney, Chapman said.

Previously Rickard had mentioned that he might put the elimination winner against Dempsey in the event there were indications further eliminating would be desirable before arriving at the championship affair.

The victors of the two March bouts will be matched into the final of the elimination events to take place in Madison Square Garden some time in April. All of the bouts will be over the 15-round distance.

Not Regarded Seriously.

When Rickard started his first elimination bringing together Sharkey and Heeney, the bout was 12 rounds, an incident that Rickard later regretted. The bout ended in a draw verdict. Rickard then compelled the boxers of the coming contests to sign for 15 rounds, which is the championship distance.

Although Sharkey has a challenge against Tunney filed with the New York State Athletic Commission and Delaney a like defi with the National Boxing Association, neither is regarded to have serious bearing on the ultimate championship as the elimination will be the determining factor.

Chapman added that Dempsey was being retained by Rickard for a September bout against Tunney, provided, of course, Tunney successfully defends his crown in June.

WRAY'S COLUMN

Never Say Die.

NEXT Friday that dried-up little veteran of the ring, Mike McTigue, will engage the lusty, young light heavyweight, Leo Lomski. Already the experts have arranged the smelling salts and their condolences for the middle-aged but game Irishman.

Mike twice has traveled the championship highway from end to end. Paul Berlenbach shoved him off the first time. More recently, after the New York commission had handed Mike the title again, Tommy Loughran picked him apart.

After 40 years, many of them spent in battling, and with ample wherewithal to frighten old Brer Wolf from the door, one would think Mike would quit, especially since a middleweight knocked him out in a jiffy and a comparatively unimportant fighter handed him another lesson recently.

But Mike still sees hope of another chance to win the title, if he defeats Lomski, who almost stopped Champion Loughran.

The Sunset Slope.

THERE is something pathetic about fighters in Mike's situation. Michael has money—he doesn't have to take his pastings. He, like so many who have preceded and others who will follow him, can't see wherein he is not as good as ever. The gradual inroads of Time are not apparent to Mike, but are very evident in his record. This shows that he has passed over the peak and is slipping slowly down the sunset slope, taking his punishment as he goes.

Mike is a good, game fellow, who, much of his life, has battled against odds. Called a "safety first" fighter for years, when the pinch came later in his career, he cast aside the "shell" behind which he had been accustomed to hide and waded in to knocked all opponents dead.

One would like to think that Mike could beat Lomski and thus battle his way for the third time into the title "hope" class.

But the probabilities are strong that the dashing young body-smasher who faces him will outlast Mike and prove the victor. Mike's sun has set for good, the "dope" says.

Give Him a Chance.

DAVE KNOST, junior light-heavyweight champion of the A. A. U., is a likely-looking St. Louis boxer who is in a quandary.

Dave is the best heavy amateur in the vicinity, but there is none here to give him practice. Now he is thinking of turning professional.

At a time when Dave has a great chance to work his way to a place on the Olympic Boxing team, this would seem to be bad policy. Some of the amateur show producers ought to bring outside men here for Dave and help build him up for the Olympics.

If that is not possible, some good and interested former-professional, like Ora Dean, ought to get hold of Knost and polish him up. St. Louis has all too few men of Olympic timber to throw away one of Dave's promise.

Turning professional too early has been a mistake made by many boxers. There is such a great difference between even a poor professional and the best amateur that the gulf cannot be bridged with one hop.

A Good Example.

IN ST. LOUIS soccer circles the most interesting feature is the Olympic team which is being trained nights and Saturdays to fit it for the preliminary trials in this country.

This is probably the first time in Mound City annals that capable coaches have taken an interest in a group of players to the point of giving them technical instruction and "skull" practice with it. When Dick Jarrett, King Finnegan and Butch Amman get through with the Olympic group the youths should know more than most of the professionals now playing in this city.

As a matter of experiment it is suggested that even if this group fails to win a trip to the Olympics, it be kept together and its coaching continued so that next year it could enter the U. S. F. A. amateur and professional cup ties, representing St. Louis.

If the players do not get the money lust they can very readily be retained as a group and there is no doubt that they would under Jarrett, Amman and Finnegan, get somewhere by continued practice.

Lack of practice and coaching have been large factors in the decline of professional soccer here.

Kinkade and Martin Meet on Wellston Card

Welterweights Will Feature Program of Four Bouts Tonight.

With their training grind behind them, Lester Martin and Virgil Kinkade, welterweights, are reported ready for their 10-round bout which will serve as the main event for the fistic program at Lindy Hall in Wellston tonight.

Martin lays claim to the mythical Missouri welterweight championship. He has met and defeated many good boys in Missouri and Southern Illinois, and from indications in training, will be able to give a good account of himself against Kinkade.

Krall to Meet Windle.

Kinkade has been undergoing stiff workout in anticipation of a hard match. He has centered the finishing touches of his training toward a shiftier attack, sparring with such small, fast men as Ray Alfano to obtain additional speed.

Frankie Krall and Vic Windle are scheduled to meet in the semi-windup of eight rounds. They will weigh in at 147 pounds. In a six-round bout preceding the semi-final, Grub Whalen will oppose Morrie Greenberg at 145 pounds.

Ray Palmer and Pete White will meet in the opening bout of four rounds. The bout is scheduled at 124 pounds.

THE PROGRAM.

147 pounds—Frank Krall vs. Vic Windle, 8 rounds.

CARDINALS SEND RECEIVER GIBSON TO SAN ANTONIO

Hughie Jennings Growing Weaker

By the Associated Press.

SCRANTON, Pa., Jan. 31.

HUGHIE JENNINGS, famous figure of the baseball diamond, was gradually growing weaker this afternoon, his physician announced.

Jennings has been conscious much of the last 20 hours and chatted with physicians and relatives at the bedside briefly. He seemed cheered by the cablegram received last night from John J. McGraw, manager of the New York Giants, who is in Cuba. Jennings and McGraw played on the Baltimore Orioles in 1894.

Frank Gibson, catcher obtained during the winter by the Cardinals from the Boston Braves, has been sold to the San Antonio club of the Texas League for $6000, it was announced yesterday, following the receipt of waivers from all major league clubs. Gibson will become manager of the Texas League team.

Gibson is the fourth received turned loose by the Knot Holers during the winter and leaves the Cardinals with but one regular—former manager Bob O'Farrell. In addition to Gibson, others released during the off-season were Frank Snyder, who went to Houston as manager; Johnny Schulte, to the Phillies, and Claud Jonnard to Houston.

In addition to O'Farrell, the Cardinals have only Virgil Davis, drafted from Buffalo. Davis hit .308 in 137 contests last season.

However, a young man named Gustave Mancuso hit around .365 for Syracuse last season. While not on the Cardinal reserve list, it is almost certain that he will be taken South and given every opportunity to land a regular position.

President Sam Breadon is scheduled to depart for New York today to attend the annual schedule meeting of the National League, and while in the East will make an effort to land another receiver.

Bill Friel of the Browns departs today for Chicago, where the American League schedule meeting will be held. More talent for the pitching staff, however, will be the Brownie business manager's real objective.

ROOT AND WILSON ARE NOT CONSIDERED AS HOLDOUTS BY BRUINS

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Jan. 31.—Charlie Root, pitcher, and Hack Wilson, fence-busting outfielder, have not signed their Cub contracts for 1928, but the business office of the Chicago National League club does not consider that a reason for regarding them as holdouts.

President William Veeck reasons that no player is a holdout unless he refuses to play with his club all season.

"You know," Veeck said, "that as far back as I can remember, there has only been one real Cub holdout. About 1908, Johnny Kling refused to report, and he remained away all season. He was able to do it because his regular business paid him better than baseball."

Hal Carlson, another star Cub pitcher, and Captain Charley Grimm, first sacker, have not turned in their signed contracts for 1928, but Veeck does not regard them as holdouts. The rest of the players, he said, have signed and are ready for the training season.

Downswing of Golf Club Should Come Upon Ball From Inside—Bobby Jones

National Amateur Champion Tells of "Loop" in His Swing and Declares "Grooved" Stroke Is Probably the Best.

By Bobby Jones,

National Amateur, British Open and Southern Open Champion.

IT has always been a source of annoyance to me that my ideas and conception of the golf swing are forever changing; not always in what I am actually doing with the club, but in what I think I am doing. And I can't help wondering how much of the theorizing we do is really helpful and how much is forgotten as soon as we take a club out of the bag. The great trouble with the theories we evolve on the course is that we cannot know what we are doing. If we were able to detach our faculties of observation from our corporeal selves, I have an idea that we could better work out our difficulties.

I shall never forget the first time I saw a slow-motion picture of my swing with a driver. I could not believe that it was really of me, for I did things in that picture that I had not dreamed of doing, and things which I had regarded as wholly wrong. The high-speed camera revealed a queer contortion of the hips just as the ball was being struck which would have seemed more appropriate if it had been enclosed in a grass skirt. It was hard to conceive that such a movement could have been executed in the mere act of hitting a golf ball.

JONES

And then I found out later from some more pictures that I violated in shameless fashion one of the honored maxims of golf. I had heard all my life that, for accurate hitting, it was necessary that the club-head should descend in the same path that it took to the top of the swing. And I didn't do that at all. Naturally, I was puzzled and somewhat annoyed with myself for such flagrant disregard of the best established principles of the game, and I set about watching other people to see if they did the same thing.

Arc in Downswing.

THE result of my observation has been to convince me that to follow the same arc up and down is a practical impossibility and that very few golfers even approximate it, at least in the driving swing. And yet I have observed enough to make me believe that the theory is sound, for Tommy Armour and Walter Hagen come nearest to grooving their swings.

Two years ago in Florida, Jimmy Donaldson tried his very best to get the loop out of my swing; that is, to make me stop going outside the arc of my backswing when I was coming into the ball. Jimmy told me to try to brush my right leg with my right hand when I hit, and it worked marvelously well for a while, with the iron clubs. But I could never adapt the new idea to my driving swing.

I can conceive of no good reason why the arc of the backswing should have any sort of fixed relation to that of the hitting stroke. To my mind, the sole function of the backswing is to put the player in position to hit the ball. If that purpose is accomplished, nothing more is needed. So I should say that what is really meant when we talk about following the same arc is, in effect, only that we should come upon the ball from inside, and not from outside, the line of flight. It is simply another way of expressing the same thing, for the backswing cannot go outside the line without considerable difficulty, and if the hitting stroke follows, it must also remain inside.

That it is impossible to groove both swings in the same arc will, I think, be easily shown by a consideration of the relative position of the hands during the lower part of both arcs. When the club is taken away from the ball and started upward, the left hand should do all the leading. As George Duncan expressed it there should be a left-handed fling straight to the top. For an appreciable period the club-head lags behind the hands and the shaft is deflected toward the ground. When the same point is reached coming down, the left hand is still leading, but it is approaching from the opposite direction and the club is extended backward almost horizontally. Certainly it would be very difficult, with the different wrist-action, to keep the club in the same path. I don't believe it can be done.

Armour and Hagen.

IT is very easy to explain why my swing has a pronounced loop at the top. The slow-motion pictures show that at the top of my swing, at the very beginning of the strike, I lift my hands several inches, almost straight up, but a little bit toward the outside. At the same time my body seems to slump forward, that is, toward the hole, and turns back toward the position of address. The effect of these combined movements is to start the club down in a path several inches outside of the one in which it came up, but, because the backswing was very flat, the arc is still well inside the line of flight.

As I hit the ball I rise upon the very tips of both toes, and that motion may in a measure compensate for my failure to avoid the loop. The grooved swing certainly makes for compactness. But if it can't be accomplished, the next best thing is to take up the error somewhere else.

The fact that nearly all good players whom I have watched have a loop at the top would lead me to believe that it was quite correct, if it were not for the examples set by Tommy Armour and Walter Hagen. Tommy, with his irons and Walter, with his mashie-niblic, come closer to the hypothetical groove than anyone else can do with any club. And Tommy is admittedly the best iron player in America and Walter is the choice of many, myself included, for honors with the pitching clubs. But both are fairly upright going back; which may have something to do with it. If either looped as much as I do they might get too far outside the magic line of flight.

Jai-Alai Players Chosen.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Jan. 31.—Uranga and Joaquin will represent Chicago at the jai-alai championship games at New Orleans Feb. 1 to 4. Uranga is a star forward and Joaquin is one of the best backs in the game here.

Hagen. Tommy, with his irons and Walter, with his mashie-niblic, come closer to the hypothetical groove than anyone else can do with any club. And Tommy is admittedly the best iron player in America and Walter is the choice of many, myself included, for honors with the pitching clubs. But both are fairly upright going back; which may have something to do with it. If either looped as much as I do they might get too far outside the magic line of flight.

EXTRA POLICE PROTECTION FOR SOCCER MATCH

Barker Requests 50 Officers to Forestall Trouble When Chicago Team Plays Here, Sunday.

By Dent McSkimming.

The Canadian Club of Chicago, which opposes the Ben Millers here next Sunday in a championship soccer cup game is the same team which defeated the Tablers of St. Louis by a score of 4 goals to 1 two weeks ago, it would seem, then, that the Tablers players and manager should be a fair estimate of the worth of the Canadian Club. Strange, perhaps, John Marre, owner of the Tabler club, expects the Millers to beat the Chicagoans.

"Under the protection of a biased referee, the Canadian Club roughed my players off the ball and otherwise employed the most unfair tactics to win," said Marre. "The Millers are bigger men physically and they are not so easily pushed off a ball. Furthermore, since the game is to be played in St. Louis the Canadian Club will find that they will not have the support of a friendly referee. Many players had used a visiting club so unfairly as the Canadian Club treated the Tablers I would be afraid to venture away from my home field."

So violent was the charging of the Tabler-Canadian game that the players finally became involved in a battle royal in which Left Half back Harry McAvdy of the Chicago team and Joe McCarthy of the Tablers figured conspicuously. Referee Cummiskey put Jimmy McCarthy out of the game.

Anticipating a rough game next Sunday, Robert "Ribby" Murphy declined the appointment as referee. "I don't relish the duty of ejecting players from a cup game," said Murphy. "If there's going to be a rough battle I'd just as soon let someone else be the goat. For you know, the referee is always the goat."

Phil Kavanaugh will be the referee, according to an announcement by W. E. Barker, who is a member of the Cup Committee. Kavanaugh is a former professional league and Municipal League referee and is at present coaching the Y. M. H. A. soccer squad.

Taking cognizance of the danger of a riot, Barker has filed with the Police Department a request for additional officers. "There'll be no trouble if we can forestall it," said Barker today. "We will permit no spectators on the field and we will offer the visitors every possible protection against injury."

DAW DEFEAT

MILWAUKEE ACE AVERAGES 217 TO RIVAL'S 212

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Jan. 31.—Although he lost the majority of games, Charley Daw of Milwaukee was returned winner over Frank Marino of Chicago in their 60 game total pin championship match finis held last night. Daw's powerful hook ball was too much for the Chicagoan and he again outscored him 75 pins in the final 10-game block. Totals for the match were: Daw 13,105; Marino, 12,766. Games won, Marino 31, Daw 29.

Daw's wonderful hook ball beat Marino. The Chicagoan hit the 1-3 "pocket" as consistently as the winner but Daw's smashing hook carried the pins to better advantage. Time and again Marino was "tapped" on pocket hits, leaving the No. 10 pin standing.

The Milwaukeen showed plenty of nerve throughout the series. Time and again he struck when 10 counts were needed. In the final 10-game series Marino was unable to get a "turkey." Many times the diminutive Italian would crash in doubles but not once, throughout the final block, was he able to score more than two consecutive strikes.

Milwaukee is claiming the world's individual match championship for Daw. The title is held by Jimmy Blouin, who quit the game two years ago. Chicagoans are bending efforts to try and get Blouin to return to the game for a Daw match.

207 213 194—total 2018.
Marino, 201 169 189 185 199 200
210 173 214—total 1943.

Christensen, Rawdon and Weber Are Lost to Bear Basketball Squad.

The Washington U. basketball five which meets the University of Oklahoma here Friday night in a Missouri Valley Conference engagement, will be on edge for the battle, Coach Don White said today. The conference leaders have won eight consecutive victories.

Three players were lost to the squad yesterday, while one member put in his first practice appearance of the season. Gardner Christensen and Dick Rawdon were lost because of scholastic difficulties. While Carl Weber broke his wrist during the session. The new addition was Richard Heinrich, a member of last season's squad. He was ineligible because of scholastic difficulties.

The "slow break" formation will be relied upon by Coach White in the coming game with the Sooners. This formation, in which the forwards suddenly come into scoring position from set stations, has met with general success in the games played to date.

The Oklahomans employ a five-man defense which shifts from zone tactics to man-to-man play when the ball nears goal territory.

Meyer, Bear center, is down for a tough evening's assignment. He will be matched with Holt, giant Sooner center, who stands six feet six inches. Holt is one of the high scoring pivot men in the Valley.

Y. M. C. A. TEAM PLAYS BOAT FIVE TONIGHT

The Downtown Y. M. C. A. basketball team will meet the Century Boat club quintet on the Downtown "Y" floor tonight, starting at 8:30 o'clock. On Friday night the Y. M. C. A. team will oppose the Foster Tebbes, also in the Downtown gymnasium, and the Downtowners will go to Alton, Ill. for a game with the Alton Y. M. C. A. team on Saturday night.

"Millers Lone Cup Survivors Now at Bottom.

OUR lone cup survivors, whose chances looked thin,
Now figure the National title to win;
And the Millers' ill-fortune will soon be reversed.
For, according to scripture, the last shall be first.

So, while in their league they are now in last place,
The Hatters remain in the championship race.
For, the worst as the records quite often attest,

The Hold Outs.

IN winter it's bad luck to sign
Upon the well-known dotted line;
For visions of the training camp
Bring on a touch of writer's cramp.
And so the contract is returned
Unsigned with stipulation spurned.

But that is just a little bluff
To show they know their big league stuff;
For when the sap begins to ooze,
To wheel in line they always choose,
And writer's cramp no longer grips
The demon athlete's finger tips.

Brown Placed on Davis Cup List

St. Louis Tennis Star to Compete in Tryout Matches in March and April.

Wray Brown, holder of the St. Louis District and Missouri Valley singles championships, yesterday was notified by the United States Lawn Tennis Association, that he had been selected on the squad which will try out for places on the 1928 Davis Cup team, which will challenge France for the honors gained last season. Tryout matches for the American team will be held in March and April.

In 1925, Brown was ranked among the first 10 players of the country, but for the next two campaigns he received no official rating because he was unable to participate in the Eastern fixtures.

He is in good condition right now, having played against such stars as Brian I. C. Norton and Berkely Bell, while in Texas on a business trip.

DR. PELTZER PUZZLED OVER A. A. U. ACTION

Cannot Understand Why Permission to Run in Three Meets Is Being Held Up in East.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Jan. 31.—Dr. Otto Peltzer, the German running marvel, is irked by the delay of the Foreign Relations Committee of the Amateur Athletic Union in granting him permission to compete on American track meets during his present stay.

The German half-mile champion, who is eager to match strides with America's best, has applied for permission to race in three meets during February—the Millrose Games, the Illinois Athletic Club meet and the New York K. of C. meet—but the committee is withholding definite permission until it can confer with Peltzer at New York tomorrow.

"Their actions are a puzzle to me," Dr. Peltzer said last night after a workout on the indoor track of the University of Chicago. "First they told me I could not run here. Then they told me I could run in three meets only, but that I must name three meets I wanted to run in. After listening to the invitations of a dozen or more athletic organizations, I finally decided on three meets I most wanted to run in and sent that information to the Foreign Relations Committee of the A. A. U. as requested. Still they do not grant me permission, but desire that I come to New York to talk further with them. Perhaps I did not choose the right three meets. Perhaps they merely want to see me in person to see if I really am Dr. Otto Peltzer. I do not know.

"I have agreed to all the rules of the A. A. U. and the chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee is to handle all of my expenses, to be paid by the three clubs where I run. I cannot believe there will be any difficulty in the committee's sanctioning my petition to run in this country."

Dr. Peltzer was bound for New York today to meet the committee.

LATERAL PASS IS OPPOSED BY EAST'S COACHES

Will Ask That Play Be Dropped at Annual Meeting of the Football Rules Committee.

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 31. — Eastern football coaches and officials at a round-table discussion last night expressed disapproval of the lateral pass and agreed unanimously that representatives of the eastern section should go before the football rules committee with the recommendation that the play be dropped and the passing game revert to the status of 1926.

William Roper, Princeton, coach and eastern section member of the rules committee, was chairman of the meeting.

While unanimous against the lateral pass, sentiment was just as strong in favor of keeping the goal posts back of the line, the opinion being that setting them back 10 yards made no material difference.

Game officials were urged to enforce the rule covering the screened pass, it being pointed out that flagrant violations were now practiced. It was suggested that officials be authorized to inflict penalties for such violations.

Gil Dobie, Cornell coach, would include in the rule on clipping, that clipping from the side as well as from behind be penalized. Roper and Coach Hugo Bezdek of Penn State, were in favor of abolishing the point after touchdown, but this proposal did not meet with general approval.

GROWS NEW HAIR

Buy 2 Van Ess Get 1 FREE

Purchase 2 full size bottles of Van Ess Scalp Massage (regular price $3.00) for only $2.50—and get one $1.50 bottle FREE. Includes legal written guarantee to grow new hair or costs nothing.

WE GUARANTEE in writing TO GROW HAIR

This remarkable method acts to revive dormant hair roots. Proves 4 in every 7 bald at 40. 91% unnecessary!

WE ask you to take no promises. We ask no credence for our statements. We simply offer to grow new hair on your head in 90 days, and to stop falling hair completely, or money returned.

The treatment we offer has proved 70% effective in some 200,000 cases of falling hair, baldness and semi-baldness, treated the last 3 years. Thus, in only a few cases, out of hundreds of thousands, did it fail.

If it succeeds for you, you would not take many thousands of dollars for what it brings. If it fails, it costs you nothing. You use it at home. Your own dealer gives you a written, signed warrant. You alone judge results. You assume no risk. It is folly not to test it.

Scientifically revives dormant hair roots

It is now said that while 4 men in 7 are bald before 40, 91%—or over 9 in 10!—are so needlessly.

It has been learned that hair roots seldom die from natural causes. Learned that often, even under almost total baldness, the hair roots still live.

What it is

Now by means of a special, patented applicator (note illustration) the Van Ess way does what no other method has ever done: Massages powerful rejuvenating and germ-combating agents DIRECTLY TO THE ROOTS OF THE HAIR—germ-fighting agents which mark an entirely new era in hair growing.

Thus this remarkable method revives and rejuvenates the actual follicles (or roots) of the hair. No other hair treatment known to science, for home use, embodies that principle. And to make hair grow, the roots—not the hair alone—must be treated.

In the same application, it combats infection of the Sebum (scalp oil) that forms on the surface of the scalp. The infection to which most falling hair and baldness now are traced, which old-time methods failed in overcoming.

Absolutely guaranteed

The first application will prove coming results to you. You will feel new vigor, new vitality, tingling through your scalp. In a short while falling hair will completely STOP. In 90 days new hair will come—or your money back.

Go to any drug store—or to any dealer anywhere. Obtain a full 90-day treatment of Van Ess Liquid Scalp Massage. The dealer from whom you obtain it will supply you with a written guarantee to grow new hair in 90 days; to completely stop falling hair, or your money back.

You alone will be the judge of results. There are no strings to our guarantee. It is absolute. It protects you against loss.

Benny Leonard Refused Expenses to Appear in Training Camp Benefits

Made Tour of California for Him During 1918, Coffroth Writes—Willie Meehan Was Another Who Donated His Services in Effort to Raise Funds.

NO. 25.

By James W. Coffroth.

(Copyright, 1928.)

IN San Diego early in 1918, I met up with Dr. Raycroft of Princeton University who then was head of the Department of Training Camp Activities, sponsored by the War Department. Our conversation, naturally, drifted around to boxing in the training camps, and during the course of it, Dr. Raycroft said:

"The boys at Camp Fremont are sadly in need of gloves and other boxing paraphernalia, but there are no available funds for that purpose."

COFFROTH.

"How much do they need?" I asked.

"About $3000," was the answer.

"Well, I'll get it for you," I told Dr. Raycroft. And that same night I sent a telegram to Billy Gibson, manager of Benny Leonard, asking them if they would agree to have Leonard box someone of my choosing, in San Francisco, all funds to go to a fund for boxing regalia for Camp Fremont.

"Sure, pick the man, name the day, and we'll be there," came back the joint Gibson-Leonard answer.

I jumped into San Francisco immediately, made inquiry as to conspicuous lightweights in that neighborhood and heard about Johnny McCarthy. I wired Gibson and Leonard if May 18 was okay for the date and McCarthy okay as the opponent.

"Both okay," they wired back. "We'll be there."

Refused to Take Expense.

INASMUCH as I was asking a world's champion who was accustomed to getting tens of thousands for a fight, to battle McCarthy, without compensation of any sort, I felt that I should at least pay their expenses, which I figured on doing out of my own pocket. But when I asked them for the expense account after the bout, they refused, saying they were only too glad of the chance to donate their services to so splendid a cause.

Because the bout was for charity, there was no necessity for getting a boxing permit. I just announced that there would be a battle—and that's all there was to it. I had no arena. But the city of San Francisco had an immense Civic Auditorium. I asked Mayor Rolph for the loan of it; he agreed heartily—and that's where Leonard and McCarthy fought.

The place was packed to the doors at prices that ranged from $1 to $5. The affair went four rounds without decision, and when I finished counting the cash, I found that the net profit was around $22,000.

Dr. Raycroft was enthusiastic in his thanks. He pointed out that the extra $19,000 would be distributed among some of the other camps.

And so it was that I got back into actual promoting harness once again and staged a score or more of bouts in most of the big cities of California before I went along to New York to put on the "big "after-war" show in Madison Square Garden.

My first step was to explain my plan to Gibson and Leonard, who were my aces. I needed Leonard. When I told him I wanted to tour California and have him star the cards in every place, he was enthusiastic in his acceptance. So was Gibson. When I pointed out that there would be no pay for services, but that I would gladly pay their expenses, they said:

"We'll be with you 100 per cent on that tour—but we'll go only upon condition that we pay every dollar of our own expenses."

Willie Meehan Goes Along.

BEFORE we started on tour I decided I'd like to have a heavyweight along with us. Willie Meehan was very popular on the Coast and I knew that if he would join us that it would add to the attractiveness of our show. So I hunted up Willie and asked him if he'd like to go.

"Surest thing you know—count me in," he answered with enthusiasm.

The show in Oakland drew around $8000. In Sacramento, it hit around $7000. Leonard and Louis Reese drew $14,000 in Los Angeles and Benny and Mike Gallindo boxed before a $2000 crowd in San Diego. Those sums, together with the $22,000 picked up in San Francisco meant about $53,000.

When the tour was completed, I was not satisfied with the accomplishment. For by that time, I had come to realize that the camps needed plenty of donations to keep the boys supplied with the things they needed for athletic entertainment. So I decided to put over a "Big Shot," and began looking for a starry headliner.

And so it was I finally "spotted" Jack Dempsey.

Knost to Help Train Wiggins For Byrne Bout

Tom Pivac Also Will Serve as Sparring Partner for Indianapolis Heavy.

Arrangements have been made by Matchmaker Jack Tippett for Dave Knost, National A. A. U. junior heavyweight boxing champion, and Tom Pivac, South Broadway light heavyweight, to serve as sparring partners for Chuck Wiggins, the Indianapolis heavyweight battler who plans to begin his local training activities tomorrow for a scheduled 10-round match with Jimmy Byrne of Louisville on the Fred Stockham Post's fistic card at the New Coliseum next Monday night.

Pivac has been training at the South Broadway club in preparation for a 10-rounder with Jimmy Mahoney of Chicago.

Although Wiggins and Byrne will be making their introductory appearance before St. Louis fans, the records of both men indicate the match should be interesting. Byrne has been credited with decisions over Wiggins in two of three previous bouts.

Byrne, who is 24 years old, has had approximately 50 fights and never has been knocked off his feet, according to his handlers, while Wiggins, a veteran of more than 10 years' experience, has been knocked out only once.

CHICAGO CORN HIGHER AFTER A HESITANT START

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Jan. 31.—Corn averaged higher today with late indications of a fair export business. It was understood that there had been a round lot of No. 2 and No. 3 mixed corn sold by Chicago handlers today to the East for shipment to Europe, but the export basis at the Gulf of Mexico was ½c lower at 6¼c over Chicago May.

Corn closed nervous at the same as yesterday's finish to ⅝c higher. Wheat unchanged to ½c lower. Oats ⅜@½c up and provisions varying from 5c decline to a rise of 2c.

At noon corn was unchanged to ¼c higher and wheat ⅛c to ⅛c down.

Aggressive buying brought about an early upturn in corn prices today, despite a hesitant start.

Stimulating the demand was the fact that arrivals of corn in Chicago today and in other main centers were relatively small. Opening ⅛c off to ¼c up, corn scored an allround advance which, however, was not well maintained. Wheat started at ⅛c to ⅝c decline and later held near to the initial figures. Oats were firm. Provisions likewise tended upward.

Contrasting sharply today with Chicago corn receipts totaling 1156 cars yesterday were fresh arrivals of but 281 cars here today, an amount much smaller than either a week ago or a year back. Omaha received 50 cars of corn today, a reduction compared with the corresponding time last year. On the other hand, export bids for corn today were easier and talk was current that for at least the time being foreigners were holding off.

Wheat traders here took their cue largely today from weakness of wheat quotations at Liverpool. It was pointed out that the United States wheat visible supply is the largest at this period since the war and that the amount of bonded Canadian wheat in the United States is twice as large as in 1927.

A CLEAR COMPLEXION

Ruddy cheeks—sparkling eyes—most women can have. Dr. F. M. Edwards for twenty years treated scores of women for liver and bowel ailments. During these years he gave his patients a substitute for calomel made of a few well-known vegetable ingredients mixed with olive oil, naming them Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. Know them by their olive color.

These tablets are wonder-workers on the liver and bowels, which cause a normal action, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter in one's system.

If you have a pale face, sallow look, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue, headaches, a listless, no-good feeling, all out of sorts, inactive bowels, you take one of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets nightly for a time and note the pleasing results.

Thousands of women and men take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—now and then to keep fit. 15c, 30c and 60c.

Answers to your questions about their Loan Service
Question—How can I get a loan?
Answer—Just by calling at our office and giving us your name and address—or by phoning us so we can call at your home. We will arrange the few details without any inconvenience to you.
Question—How can I repay the loan?
Answer—Practically on your own terms. Our Twenty Payment Plan gives you twenty months' time, if you need it. For example: A monthly payment of only $5.00 and interest will repay a $100.00 loan. You can pay as often as you desire, and interest is charged just for the time you use the money.
Question—After taking out a loan supposing I should lose my job or get sick?
Answer—You are granted every consideration and an extension in event of misfortune.
Question—What kind of security is required?
Answer—Almost any kind of personal property, such as household goods, piano, auto, etc., which is left undisturbed in your possession.
Question—Will my inquiry and dealings be held confidential?
Answer—Certainly. We do not require any endorsements, neither do we ask any questions of your employers or of those with whom you deal.
Question—How much can I borrow?
Answer—Any amount up to $300. You can get the full amount of the loan in cash—nothing is taken out for fees or commissions of any kind.
Question—What will the loan cost me?
Answer—The cost of a loan depends upon the amount and the length of time it is carried. Interest is charged at legal rates just for the time you use the money. For example: The total cost of a $50.00 loan for three months' time is $2.10. The cost of other amounts and for longer or shorter time would be in proportion.
Question—When can I get the money?
Answer—Loans are made the same day you apply. You can get a loan today.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—Selling pressure was lifted from today's stock market and prices moved upward under the stimulus of pool operations and short covering. Most of the standard industrials gained a point or two, but a sizeable number of public utilities and specialties were marked up 3 to 10 points. Trading showed a marked reduction in volume, although the day's sales crossed the 2,000,000-share mark.

With the month-end currency requirements apparently satisfied, call money dropped from the renewal figure of 5 to 4½ per cent with a plentiful supply available at the lower figure. This may have been an influence in the day's buying movement, although time money and commercial paper rates held firm, and considerable uneasiness still was apparent over the credit situation.

Publication of the quarterly statemena of the United SAtates Steel Corporation after the close of the market showed net earnings of $1.05 a share, as against $2.14 in the preciding quarter and $4.55 in the final quarter of 1926 when a smaller amount of stock was outstanding. This is the first time in a couple of years that the corporation had failed to earn its quarterly dividend. Covering of nervous shorts sent the stock for a net gain of 1¾ points to 146¼ just before the close of the market.

Utilities Bid Up.

Spirited bidding for the Public Utilities was variously attributed, including the running in of an over-extended short interest. Montana Power was again in the forefront of the advance, climbing 6½ points to a new high record at 161¼, as against a low of 102½ earlier in the month, and then easing to 159. Brooklyn Union Gas, Brooklyn Edison, Columbia Gas, People's Gas and Philadelphia Co. all advanced 2 to nearly 5 points to new high levels for the year, or longer.

Motors were churned about in brisk fashion, but failed to make much headway. General Motors and Mack Trucks recorded the best gains, while Hudson, after attaining a new 1928 top at 89, slipped back to 87⅝ for a small fractional loss.

American Zinc and Lead preferred was up 10 points to a new peak at 74. Auto Sales reached new high ground on buying attributed to expanding earnings. Bullish demonstrations also were strikingly effective in Air Reduction, American Linseed, Continental Baking A, Endicott-Johnson, Mullins and U. S. Leather A.

Pure Oil broke 2 points to a new low at 22¼.

Rail Prices Mixed.

Establishment of a new high record by Texas & Pacific at 117 was the only outstanding feature in the rail group, prices in which were mixed.

Foreign exchanges were slightly easier, with sterling cables quoted around $4.87 5-32.

Commodity markets were irregular. Fractional losses in wheat futures were offset by slightly higher prices for corn and oats. Cotton advanced 50 cents to nearly $1 a bale in quiet trading. Coffee advanced slightly and raw sugar futures showed an easier undertone.

TURPENTINE, FLAX AND LINSEED

Linseed oil in 1 to 4 barrel lots, 10.9c per lb for raw and 11.3c for boiled.

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—Interest in the shellac trade in this country centers in the sharp declines in prices at London and Calcutta and on the report that the first deliveries of the Bysaki crop would reach Calcutta about two weeks earlier than usual, or during the second half of March, Oil, Paint and Drug Reporter says. New York quotations have been reduced from 51 cents a pound to 49 cents. Bleached shellac was 1 cent lower at 56 cents to 58 cents, with a tendency to shade lower.

DULUTH, Minn., Jan. 31.—Close flax, May, $2.16⅝.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Jan. 31.—Turpentine firm, 55⅝c; sales 117; receipts 214; shipment none; stock 21,356. Rosin firm; sales $145; receipts 1141; shipments 1992; stock 91,841. Quote: B, D, E, $8.05; F, $8.20; G, $8.30; H, I, $8.35; K, $8.45; M, $8.50; N, $9.40; WG, $10; WW, X, $11.

COTTON PRICES IRREGULAR ON NEW YORK MARKET

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—An early decline of 8 to 15 points in the cotton market today was checked by a renewal of yesterday's buying movement and advances followed, accompanied by smaller offerings from the South. The mid-afternoon sold about 12 to 28 points net higher and was holding within 4 to 5 points of the best.

Futures closed steady; 9 to 18 higher. March, 17.65c to 17.66c; May, 17.77c to 17.80c; July, 17.76c to 17.78c; October, 17.47c to 17.48c; December, 17.44c to 17.45c. Spot steady; middling, 18.15c.

New Orleans Spot.

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 31.—Spot cotton closed steady, 11 points up. Sales, 2,230; low middling, 16.40; good middling, 18.14; receipts, 9,013. Stock, 511,605.

New York Sugar.

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—No changes occurred in the raw sugar market early today. Cubas and nearby duty free sugars were offered at 4.40c delivered, but refiners showed little interest and no sales were reported.

Inactivity in the spot market and the continued slow movement of refined sugar, together with rather disappointing London cables seemed responsible for further declines in raw sugar futures. The market opened unchanged to 2 points lower under liquidation and hedge selling and at midday was 1 to 2 points net lower. A prominent European statistician reduced his best sugar crop estimate 60,000 tons to 8,068,000, against his previous estimate of 8,128,000 tons.

The refined sugar market was quiet and unchanged at 5.80c for fine granulated.

BOND PRICES STEADY ON NEW YORK MARKET

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—Trading in the bond market today embraced a long list of miscellaneous issues, but volume of business showed little expansion. With time money rates remaining unchanged, a steady undertone was shown by the high grade leaders generally, with firmness evident in a few Government securities and a handful of railroad and public utility mortgages.

There was prompt oversubscription of the $17,000,000 American portion of the Greek Stabilization and Refugee loan, and the new issue of Southern Pacific 4½s totaling $29,400,000.

Several usually inactive mortgages made good gains. Outstanding among these were Gould Coupler 6s, Wheeling Steel "A" 5½s and Continental Paper & Bag Mills 6½s. New York Traction issues again came in for some spirited buying, principally as a result of recent progress in unification plans.

Chief interest in the railway group centered in Big Four 4½s, Rock Island 4s and Chesapeake Corporation 5s, but price changes were small throughout the section. A few convertibles were active in sympathy with allied stocks, especially Brooklyn Union Gas 5½s, which had a net gain of more than 5 points.

A few German obligations eased slightly simultaneous with reports of failure of negotiations for a German railway loan of $100,000,000 to have been floated here. The loan probably will be obtained from German banking houses. Other foreign bonds were steady, with firm tendencies in a few groups, particularly the French.

Late buyin gof Treasury 4s was followed by accumulation of 4¼s, both issues making moderately sahrp gains.

RUBBER RESTRICTIONS TO BE SAME AS LAST QUARTER

LONDON, Jan. 31.—The Colonial office announces that for the ensuing quarter 60 per cent of the standard production of rubber may be exported from Malaya and Ceylon at the minimum rate of duty. Thus, the same restriction remains in force as fixed at the end of last July and apparently nothing has been done in the way of modifying or abolishing the restriction as for a time was thought possible.

195 BROADWAY, N. Y.

ARE YOUR STOCK CERTIFICATES IN A SAFE PLACE?

More than 500 stock certificates of this Company have been reported by stockholders as lost, stolen or destroyed during the past five years. In most cases, reasonable care on their part would have prevented this and saved them the delay and expense involved in securing new certificates.

Could there be a stronger indorsement of Safe Deposit Service than this unsolicited advice from a big business institution like the "Bell System?"

Not only stock certificates, but bonds, deeds, wills, and all other valuable papers, as well as keepsakes, should be entrusted to the safety of Safe Deposit Boxes.

At the Safe Deposit Department of the National Bank of Commerce, southeast corner of Broadway and Olive, you will find utmost Safety and sincere, courteous treatment. Elevator service, efficient attendants, 48 special booths for privacy, and a guard system that never relaxes night and day.

A box to accommodate the average person rents for $5 a year. There are larger ones to fit the needs of corporations, churches, lodges and other organizations.

This government contract alone amounts to over $388,000.00, plus the tremendous increase in the volume of business received from wholesalers and retailers throughout the entire United States.

The Menzies Shoe Company manufactures a complete line of men's and boys' work Shoes, including the famous patented Jiffy Boot, "on and off in a jiffy," also a complete line of men's and boys' popular-priced dress Shoes under the trade names of "Menz-Ease" and "American Boy."

The Menzies Shoe Company's headquarters and general offices occupy the entire building at 1722-24 Washington Ave. The company has nine manufacturing plants located in the following cities: Fon du Lac, Wis.; New London, Wis.; Cookeville, Tenn.; McMinnville, Tenn.; Princeton, Ky.; Carbondale, Ill.; Chillicothe, Mo.; Caruthersville, Mo.; and Illmo, Mo.

Each manufacturing plant produces its own special product with efficient methods and highly trained shoe specialists devoting their entire time to the specialty work alloted to each unit enabling the company to meet all competition.

The company was organized in the Spring of 1921 starting with two employes, and in less than seven years has shipped in excess of $17,000,000.00 worth of Shoes.

Force of will and brilliancy of decision has built most outstanding corporations.

S. D. Nichols, Pres., Treas. and Gen. Mgr. of The Menzies Shoe Company has devoted his entire career and energy to economically manufacturing shoes and has so succeeded that this company's volume of over $17,000,000.00 in less than 7 years is astounding to the shoe industry at large.

Mr. Nichols is a young man...just past 41 years of age, who has surrounded himself with a personnel of character, young in years, but old in experience and qualifications. He has builded an organization which you as a stockholder will not only be proud of but in which you will eagerly place your fullest faith.

Applications for this stock may be made only to The Menzies Shoe Company, as no commissions or brokerages are being paid for the sale of it. All moneys received will go into the treasury of The Menzies Shoe Company for the purpose, as above stated, of financing the large increase in production.

THE WAY —OF— A WOMAN

—By— Marguerite Mooers Marshall

HER FIRST EVENING COAT.

DEAR GIRL: At last, you're a grown-up young lady—not a "kid" any longer

For every feminine creature knows that the First Evening Coat

Party dresses may be worn by girls from the age of 2 up.

But, even when the parties become evening affairs—

Even at the first gay school dances, with taffeta silk ruffles and silver slippers.

Finally consummated with prayer and trembling on our part—

For what if, oh, WHAT IF, you shouldn't like it?

Every woman who loathes wearing something she herself doesn't like,

Is never free from worry lest she may not suit the taste of the girl-child for whom she buys things.

If she keeps within the family's adamant financial limit,

For whatever a young girl wears—

It's a service owed to beauty and youth.

Well—we did our best

We chose palest green imported metal cloth, with a silver-gilt sheen.

Even the saleswoman waxed poetical

When we considered aloud whether the coat could be worn with dresses of different colors.

She exclaimed, "Madame, it is like the green of the leaves

"That suits every flower!"

So we bought it—

Thank Heaven, we could make sure of the size, just by trying it on—

And we sent it away by insured parcel post.

With all the thoughts and dreams and hopes

Which every woman tucks into the soft, shining folds

Of her daughter's First Evening Coat—

A message something like this:

"May it keep you warmly and silkily protected

Against the dark and the cold

"Which never should shadow or chill the heart of a girl;

"May it shimmer, under the softly shaded lamps in the frat. house hall,

"As glintingly as your glance—

"For a star-shine of gay sparkles should be in every girl's eyes

"When she goes to a party;

"May it lie on your shoulders too softly

"To crush the silver rose that blooms there,

"Or to weigh upon your slim grace—

"For all that goes with a girl to her dances

"Should be as airily light

"As her dancing feet—and heart;

"May it accompany you to as many 'tumbles' and "cut-ins'

"As your eager anticipation desires—

"It's more merciful for a young girl to stay at home from parties

"Than not to be popular after she gets there:

"May it adorn many an evening when its wearer

"Of Keeping Them All Guessing—

"For that's how she best acquires

"A woman's knowledge of Real Love and the One Lover;

"May the First Evening Coat be a fairy godmother's gift—

"Its silk and silver magically interwoven

"With invisible threads of laughter, beauty, joy,

"Making you happy whenever you wear it—

"For 'the days that make us happy make us wise.'"

VANDAL.

You may complain of broken heart,
Bemoan and sigh alack-a-day,
And cling to treasured memories
Of happy love so sweet in May.

But though you wail and gnash your teeth,
Please don't forget at any time
That love to me is just a theme
To glorify in measure rhyme.

DORA ZEIGER.

A LEAP-YEAR CHALLENGE.

Gen. Sir Webb Gilman recommends that British military cadets "avoid matrimony until they are at least 30, on the ground that a wife hampers the freedom of travel of a military man."

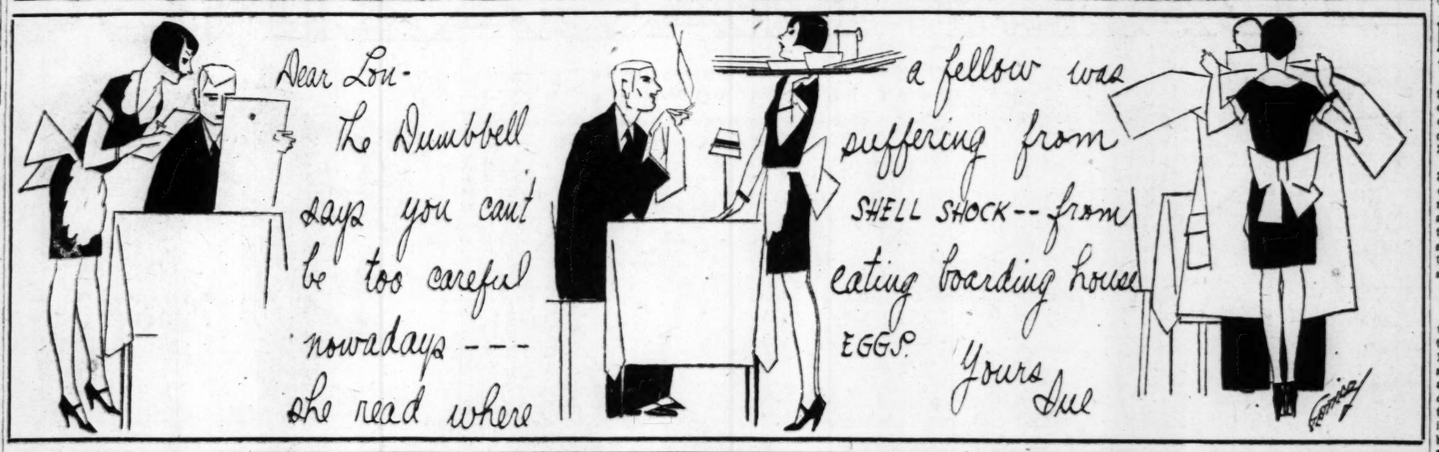

Or, as Kipling more tersely remarks, "He travels fastest who travels alone."

Puree of Cauliflower.

Cook one head of cauliflower in two quarts of chicken stock until soft. Rub through a sieve. Blend two tablespoons flour with two tablespoons butter and add two cups milk, salt and cayenne to taste. When smooth and thickened add to the cauliflower. Reheat and just before serving add two beaten yolks of eggs. A nice start for luncheon.

REDDY FOX SCHEMES AND PLANS

'Tis only those who plan and scheme
Who ever realize half they dream.
—Reddy Fox.

Then he discovered that Peter didn't seem to be going anywhere in particular

REDDY FOX was trotting down through the Old Pasture. He was headed toward the Green Meadows. "It is a long time," thought Reddy, "since I have seen Peter Rabbit. I guess he is sticking pretty close to the dear Old Briar-patch these days. Probably Mrs. Peter won't allow him to leave it. I'll take a look over that way and see if he's there now."

So when Reddy reached the edge of the Old Pasture he paused. Very carefully, in order that he might not be seen, he poked that black nose of his between the bushes and looked over toward the dear Old Briar-patch. Reddy's eyes suddenly opened very wide. "Do I or don't I?" muttered Reddy, and rubbed his eyes again. What Reddy meant was that he couldn't really believe that he was seeing what he thought was Peter Rabbit just leaving the dear Old Briar-patch and heading up toward the Old Orchard.

"I wonder if my chance is coming at last," thought Reddy. "Many times I have nearly caught Peter and each time he has been lucky. But luck doesn't last forever. Some day I'm going to get that fellow. Perhaps this is the day, who knows?"

Reddy smacked his lips as he thought how good a rabbit dinner would be. You see, in the winter Reddy seldom knows what it is to be filled up. There is very little of the time that he isn't hungry. Just now he was particularly hungry.

At once Reddy began to plan. If only he could know just where Peter was going he might be able to give him a surprise party, an unpleasant surprise party. He knew how likely Peter is to change his mind. He was headed toward the Old Orchard now, but at any minute he might change his mind and start over toward the Green Forest. He might even turn back into the dear Old Briar-patch. So Reddy decided that the thing for him to do was to remain right there and watch. So he did it.

Peter seemed to be in no hurry. He hopped along in a most leisurely way. To see him you would have thought that he had nothing whatever on his mind. He would hop along a few steps farther. Sometimes he turned off to one side and sometimes he turned off to the other, which was one thing that made it so uncertain where he was bound for. Finally, when, as Reddy expressed it, "he was nowhere," he sat down very much as if he intended to stay there. He was right out in the open. There was no place for Reddy to approach him without being seen.

"I suppose," thought Reddy, "that I could run away around and get over to the Old Orchard and wait for him there. But if I should do that it would be just like him to turn around and come over here."

So for awhile Reddy remained where he was. Then he discovered that Peter didn't seem to be going anywhere in particular. He remained right out where he was, in plain sight, without any shelter or place of safety that one could see.

"If I could get near enough," thought Reddy, "I might be able to walk that fellow down. The whole thing is to get near enough before he discovers me. Now, if I only had Mrs. Reddy to work with me I believe we could do it.

Mrs. Reddy would show herself and while Peter was watching her I would have a chance to get fairly near. Ha! Peter sees something and now is my chance!"

Sure enough, Peter was sitting up with his back toward Reddy and looking very intently over toward that Green Forest. Presently Reddy made out a flat spot moving along the edge of the Green Forest. It was Black Pussy the Cat. Peter with his usual curiosity was watching her.

The Problem of the Long Narrow Hall

VERY often people who are confronted with the problem of the long narrow hall are discouraged at the outset. They have the feeling that it is just a tunnel, so what is the use of trying to do anything with it, anyway? This is a mistake. A hall, fully as much in an apartment as a house, should not be merely the shortest distance between two points. Think of how many times we traipse through all of our halls! What a pity that each traipsing cannot be a little pleasure trip.

It must be confessed that the long, narrow and perhaps dark hall is rather a problem. That being the case, the only thing to do is to attack it with gusto. So far as night is concerned, it is not especially difficult because it can be provided with lights many and attractive. Day time is a very difficult matter.

The first thing to do is to introduce plenty of color. Start with the rugs. Break up the length of the hall by using two or three colorful Oriental or hooked rugs rather than one long runner. Use mirrors on the walls and pictures, too, and if the width will permit a little cabinet, a tiny desk, console tables or bright colored chairs. Pictures will do a great deal to give warmth to this passageway.

If you expect to do a great deal of sewing or crocheting, fortify yourself by placing court plaster on the guiding finger where the constant prick of the needle comes

Are you fooling yourself three times a day?

THAT caffein beverage you take with your meals—it seems to "pick you up"—to make you feel better.

Don't be fooled! It's the warmth of the drink that brings an immediate sense of comfort. The caffein gets in its full effect hours later, when you want to relax and rest or sleep. Then this artificial stimulant lashes your nerves—drives sleep away—keeps your brain pounding when you long for rest.

Try this test!

Make this simple change in diet: Give up caffein—try Postum instead! Postum's friendly warmth and mellow flavor will give you the mealtime "pick up" you want. And it won't get on your nerves afterward! For Postum is made of roasted whole wheat and bran—not a trace of any stimulant in it. Postum can't affect sleep, can't cause nervousness or indigestion, as caffein beverages do.

The best way to test Postum is to make it your mealtime drink for thirty days. Then note the difference in your health! See how much better you sleep—how much better you feel! Get Postum at your grocer's—either Instant Postum, prepared instantly in the cup, or Postum Cereal, the kind you boil.

Variety, Sa

Wearer's Own Taste and Individuality Allowed Fine Play in Change From Uniform Dress.

By MME. JEANNE LANVIN.

PARIS

IN my opinion, the greatest charm of present fashions is their variety. Women can adopt a different silhouette half a dozen times a day and still be perfectly up-to-date. This means that their own taste and individuality are called into play. In other words, their are dressed with care and distinction instead of all being turned out on the same pattern like a regiment of soldiers. Nobody who visits the Rue de la Paix during shopping hours or a chic restaurant at luncheon or teatime can deny that the change is decidedly one for the better.

Many people mistakenly associate my name with the robe de style. Undoubtedly this type of dress is always to be found in my collection. There are occasions for which it is admirably adapted. Some women look their best in it in the evening, and it certainly has a charm and character all its own, which make it the ideal gown for a beautiful setting, such as a stately dining room furnished in the Old World manner with period furniture and fine old pictures. It is essentially a gown for the home or for a dignified ballroom, and my robes de style always have a modern touch. But my collection, with its hundreds of models, is designed to cope with every demand that the modern woman leading an active and busy life can make.

Sports Hold Their Own

Sports clothes, even for town wear, have taken such a firm hold on popular taste, even among the smartest members of Parisian society, that no dressmaker can afford to neglect them. I consider them so important that my original establishment in the Faubourg Saint Honore is not sufficiently spacious to include the great number of sports models I have designed to be worn actually on the golf course and tennis courts as well as for the Riviera and Palm Beach and also for women who like to show a sports tendency in the cocktails they wear in town in the morning. For these I have opened a house opposite, at No. 15 Faubourg Saint Honore, devoted entirely to sports clothes.

Now the term "sport" has come to mean something more than a bumper and skirt to wear for playing games. The Anglo-Saxon influence on the French language has introduced an element of vagueness into a tongue hitherto so noted for its precision that it is used in all diplomatic dealings. "Sport" nowadays is a synonym of for simplicity. The Parisienne dressed simply in the street and before her walks abroad before the term "sport" was ever applied to fashion. Women of other nations have always admired her chic. They must wish to imitate it or buyers from all quarters of the globe would not hurry to Paris to purchase our models as soon as they have left the workrooms. So we have adapted ourselves somewhat to a wider demand. When we design our collections we think not only of the Parisienne, but of the chic American, the Englishwoman, Italians, Spaniards, in fact, the well-dressed women of every country under the sun.

Simplicity Is Elegant

Although I have always been opposed to uniformity in women's dress—look at modern man's clothes and you will quickly understand why—I believe in dressing simply when simple clothes are suitable. Simplicity does not mean either masculinity or lack of elegance. If you glance at the little sports suit sketched by the Cosmos artist on this page, you will see that it can be very feminine and dainty. Chic and elegance, according to Parisian standards, for street wear are summed up in simplicity of line. You cannot wear frills and eccentricities in the daytime. It is scarcely necessary to repeat this in an article intended for American readers. Nobody more than myself appreciates the inherent qualities of taste and chic displayed by the smart American woman, and to these she adds the further charm of being always immaculately groomed. However, there are exceptions to whom one can never state the obvious too often—in France as well as elsewhere—so you will pardon the remark. Simplicity of line, however, can be varied by details too numerous to be mentioned in the short space at my disposal. There are five distinctive touches in this one suit: the buttons down the front of the blouse, the braces, the embroidered bolero jacket, the wide belt attached to the skirt, the horizontal lines of stitching round the hips. Yet how different it is from the accompanying sketch of a model in white moire for the Riviera which, carried out in a simpler fabric, would be equally suitable for a morning walk in the Avenue du Bois de Boulogne or in Madison avenue! It is all a question of studying your type and I am glad to say that my

Variety, Says Mme. Lanvin, Is Greatest Charm of Present Fashions

Wearer's Own Taste and Individuality Allowed Fine Play in Change From Uniform Dress.

Braces hold the skirt in place over the crepe romain blouse of this chic little "dressy" sports frock. It has a short blue jacket embroidered in rose.

Mlle. Jane Renouardt, the actress, wears this gown of black taffeta petals over bright green tulle in a new play at the Theatre Michel in Paris. Collar and edge of corsage are of diamonds.

Dinner frock of chartreuse green crepe romain with the famous Lanvin loops. A touch of contrast is introduced in the black velvet flower.

Sports clothes, even for town wear, have taken such a firm hold on popular taste, even among the smartest members of Parisian society, that no dressmaker can afford to neglect them. Yet how different it is from the accompanying sketch of a model in white moire for the Riviera which, carried out in a simpler fabric, would be equally suitable for a morning walk in the Avenue du Bois de Boulogne or the Madison avenue! It is all a question of studying your type and I am glad to say that my personal experience, based on a very large international clientele, proves to me that women are now more and more inclined to choose what suits their own physique and personality rather than what they have seen Mrs. So-and-So wearing.

Scope for Individual Taste

Of course, the greatest scope for individual taste and self-expression is to be found in afternoon and evening gowns. Everybody expects a dressmaker writing about fashions to talk about what is going to be worn, as well as what is worn. Perhaps you will be surprised when I tell you that it is only when my collection is finished that I myself know what will most probably be worn. Outsiders have little idea of the infinite toil and study that go to the creation of one Paris model. Imagine what it must be to produce three or four hundred! Each detail is reviewed and criticised and worked over and over again until it is as near perfection as the best handicraft can bring it. Today I may have an inspiration. Tomorrow, when it is materialized, I may change it completely. How can I tell you, therefore, what I shall show you in February?

Some hints, however, can be given. As we live in an age of evolution, certain tendencies of this season will be accentuated or modified next spring. I shall make some robes de style, as usual, but following up the trend of my mid-season models, I shall also show many models with a slim silhouette of which the chief characteristic is a souplesse which emphasizes the natural beauty of a slender figure.

Other Things Are Varied

I consider the uneven hemline for gowns to be worn in the house or for dancing to be firmly established. My latest models show that upward lilt in front that is so youthful and becoming to the average woman. Variety is introduced by an occasional model that sweeps down on one side only. A deeply scalloped hem is one which I am favoring in many afternoon and dinner gowns.

It is not only the hemline that is varied. Ankles are charming when they are slim; but one must consider other things. The present mode of slenderness sometimes produces too prominent bones. However, the thoughtful dress designer meets all contingencies, and thin shoulder blades are softened by the new irregular decolletage with a narrow collar strap slanting up from the edge of the corsage to cover "salt cellars" when they are present.

The waistline is as important as the neckline or the hem. And women never quite know where they like it to be placed. A good average may be struck by putting it an inch and a half below the natural line. Some want it higher; others lower. It is possible to give it variety even in a single dress. One of the most successful models in my mid-season collection is of black mousseline de soie. The skirt has the scalloped hem of which so many of my clients are fond. In front the waistline is decidedly low through the skirt being shirred onto a prolonged rectangular panel forming the front of the corsage. At the back there is souplesse and a shorter waisted effect achieved by a little bolero that stops abruptly above a fitted hip line. It is a model that enables a well-built woman to look her best and yet veils the defects of one who falls short of perfection. I quote it because it is a gown that has been ordered by a number of my smartest clients.

Black and white have been first favorites this season, and I think they will be equally popular in the early spring. I shall introduce some new colors, but what they will be I do not know myself at the moment.

DANGEROUS TO BE DIFFERENT

By Luey Lowell.

A FASCINATING play of the season tells the story of a young man who landed in a sanitarium because he was different from those around him.

He wanted to be an artist instead of a brush-maker and his brush-making father-in-law, aided by his drab-minded wife, thought he was crazy because he loved beauty more than money. So they have him locked up.

And in the sanitarium a fine old character, a resident there, advances a theory which does not sound in the least mad: "Always do everything exactly as everybody else does it or they'll say you are cuckoo."

Egotism is a weakness of human nature. Some few rise above it; most of us see ourselves—our thoughts, aims, ambitions—as the criterion by which to judge the thoughts, aims, ambitions of others. And more often than not it those excite our disapproval we at once decide that there is something wrong with the person who is not like ourselves.

You will recall the story of the old Quaker who said to his friend, "Everybody's a little mad except thee and me, and thee is a little queer."

Egotism; the smug notion that because it is mine it's right; because I think with the herd, act with the herd, I am an admirable character and whatever differs from me, myself, has something wrong with it.

Curiously enough it is only those who differ radically from everybody else who ever do anything worth while. All genius, all who achieve, follow a lonely trail.

But then they, too, usually are considered crazy until their works prove them.

Climb Down!

For old-timers, this is an open and shut proposition, as they say in business. Aside to beginners: The rules call for filling in the second rung with a word that differs from Open by a single letter. Without transposing the remaining letters climb down until you have transferred Open to Shut and don't use words you have to make excuses for. Remember, there's more than one way to do the trick—maybe you can find a shorter route than the one we print tomorrow. Here's how Bad-Egg worked out: Bad; 2, Bar; 3, Ear; 4, Err; 5, Erg; 6, Egg.

Modiste Makes Good As Mine Engineer

WHEN Mr. and Mrs. Ben Richardson of Greeley, Colo., decided to follow the advice of the famous editor for whom their town was named and go still farther West, Mrs. Richardson adapted her work to the Nevada desert.

In Greeley she had been employed as a modiste, but to enable her husband to make a success of mining she learned to operate a gasoline hoist and took charge of it and of a compressor engine on the surface while he worked below ground.

The mine has just been sold for a price reported to be $50,000.

THE FIRST LADY OF OHIO

IF there is anything to be done around the Vic Donahey home to make it a little more "homey," Mrs. A. V. Donahey does it herself. She is essentially a home builder.

The Donaheys have 10 children, and when they moved into the Ohio executive mansion some five years ago, there were several children yet under the parental roof-tree, requiring the painstaking care that all growing children do.

The Governor's lady raked grass, cut weeds and sowed seeds while the sun beat down hotly on their vacation site last summer, and she reveled in it. Then she and the Governor decided to build a new cottage on an adjoining lot. So they helped erect a little stucco home with an old-fashioned fireplace in the center of its generous living room.

But when Mrs. Donahey returned to Columbus, she adapted herself readily to the mansion's background, receiving in the approved manner and presiding with impeccable manner at musicales and the like.

HERE is the way most tooth decay and gum infections begin. Tiny particles of food lodge in the tiny V-shaped crevices at The Danger Line—the line where teeth and gums meet. These ferment. Acids are formed, which attack the teeth and gums. Infection sets in, causing decay and often gum irritations.

You can prevent this and reduce the peril of Pyorrhea by using Squibb's Dental Cream, made with Squibb's Milk of Magnesia. Your dentist will tell you that Milk of Magnesia is a safe, scientific means of counteracting the acids which attack the teeth and gums. Squibb's Dental Cream protects you from the threat of acids, keeps the teeth beautifully clean and lustrous and preserves healthy gums. On sale at all drug stores, 40c a large tube.

THE "CANARY" MURDER CASE

by S. S. VAN DINE AUTHOR of THE BENSON MURDER CASE

"The case was pried open with a specially made cold chisel such as only a professional burglar would know how to use."

THE STORY THUS FAR.

Spotswoode told Markham it was he who had gone out with Margaret Odell the night she was murdered. When he left her apartment he told Jessup to call him a cab. While waiting they heard a scream from the "Canary's" apartment. Both rushed back and were told everything was all right. But the next morning the girl was found strangled. Vance believes two men were in the apartment at the time of the murder, the strangler and a man who hid in the clothes closet. There is no way to account for the presence of anyone in the apartment. All the circumstances point to the impossibility of the girl's having been murdered, but her strangled body gives the lie to such a conclusion.

CHAPTER XIV.

"YOUR Long Island Don Juan has certainly not supplied you with any footprints in the snow," said Vance.

"Anyway, his coming forward at this time closes one line of inquiry over which we might have wasted considerable time."

"If many more lines of inquiry are closed," remarked Vance, drily, "you'll be in a distressin' dilemma, don't y' know."

"There are enough still open to keep me busy," said Markham, pushing back his plate and calling for the check. He rose; then pausing, regarded Vance meditatingly. "Are you sufficiently interested to want to come along?"

"Eh, what? My word! . . . Charmed, I'm sure. But, I say, sit down just a moment—there's a good fellow! — till I finish my coffee."

I was considerably astonished at Vance's ready acceptance, careless and bantering though it was, for there was an exhibition of old Chinese prints at the Montross Galleries that afternoon, which he had planned to attend. A Riokai and a Moyeki, said to be very fine examples of Sung painting, were to be shown; and Vance was particularly eager to acquire them for his collection.

We rode with Markham to the Criminal Courts Building and, entering by the Franklin street door, took the private elevator to the District Attorney's spacious but dingy office which overlooked the graystone ramparts of the Tombs. Vance seated himself in one of the heavy leather-upholstered chairs near the carved oak table on the right of the desk, and lighted a cigarette with an air of cynical amusement.

"I await with anticipat'ry delight the grinding of the wheels of justice," he confided, leaning back lazily.

"You are doomed not to hear the first turn of those wheels," retorted Markham. "The initial revolution will take place outside of this office." And he disappeared through a swinging door which led to the Judges' chambers.

Five minutes later he returned, and sat down in the high-backed swivel chair at his desk, with his back to the four tall, narrow windows in the south wall of the office.

"I just saw Judge Redfern," he explained—"it happened to be the midday recess—and he verified Spotswoode's statement in regard to the poker game. The Judge met him outside of the club at 10 minutes before midnight, and was with him until 3 in the morning. He noted the time because he had promised his guests to be back at half past 11, and was 20 minutes late."

"Why all this substantiation of an obviously unimportant fact?" asked Vance.

"A matter of routine," Markham told him, slightly impatient. "In a case of this kind every factor, however seemingly remote to the main issue, must be checked."

"Really, y' know, Markham"—Vance laid his head back on the chair and gazed dreamily at the ceiling—"one would think that this eternal routine, which you lawyer chaps worship so devoutly, actually got one somewhere occasionally; whereas it never gets one anywhere. Remember the Red Queen in 'Through the Looking-Glass—' "

"Tell Ben to send me in a man at once."*

Swacker went out through the corridor door, and a minute or two later a suave, rotund man, dressed immaculately and wearing a pincenez, entered, and stod before Markham with an ingratiating smile.

"Morning, Tracy," Markham's tone was pleasant but curt. "Here's a list of four witnesses in connection with the Odell case that I want brought down here at once — the two phone operators, the maid and the janitor. You'll find them at 184 West Seventy-first street; Sergt. Heath is holding them there."

"Right, sir." Tracy took the memorandum, and with a priggish, but by no means inelegant, bow went out.

During the next hour Markham plunged into the general work that had accumulated during the forenoon, and I was amazed at the man's tremendous vitality and efficiency. He disposed of as many important matters as would have occupied the ordinary business man for an entire day.

Swacker bobbed in and out with electric energy, and various clerks appeared at the touch of a buzzer, took their orders, and were gone with breathless rapidity. Vance, who had sought diversion in a tome of famous arson trials, looked up admiringly from time to time, and shook his head in mild reproach at such spirited activity.

It was just half past two when Swacker announced the return of Tracy with the four witnesses; and for two hours Markham questioned and cross-questioned them with a thoroughness and an insight that even I as a lawyer had rarely seen equaled. His interrogation of the two phone operators was quite different from his casual questioning of them earlier in the day; and if there had been a single relevant omission in their former testimony, it would certainly have been caught now by Markham's gruelling catechism.

But when, at last, they were told they could go, no new information had been brought to light. Their stories now stood firmly grounded; no one—with the exception of the girl herself and her escort, and the disappointed visitor at half past nine—had entered the front door and passed down the hall to the Odell apartment from seven o'clock on; and no one had passed out that way.

The janitor reiterated stubbornly that he had bolted the side door a little after six and no amount of wheedling or aggression could shake his dogged certainty on that point. Amy Gibson, the maid, could add nothing to her former testimony. Markham's intensive examination of her produced only repetitions of what she had already told him.

Not one new possibility—not one new suggestion—was brought out. In fact, the two hours' interlocutory proceedings resulted only in closing up every loophole in a seemingly incredible situation. When, at half past four, Markham sat back in his chair with a weary sigh, the chance of unearthing a promising means of approach to the astonishing problem seemed more remote than ever.

"I tell you, Markham, old chap," he grinned, "this case requires contemplation, no routine. Why not call in an Egyptian seeress with a flair for crystal-gazing?"

"If this sort of thing goes on much longer," returned Markham, dispiritedly, "I'll be tempted to take your advice."

Just then Swacker looked in through the door to say that Inspector Brenner was on the wire. Markham picked up the telephone receiver, and as he listened he jotted down some notes on a pad. When the call had ended, he turned to Vance.

"You seemed disturbed over the condition of the steel jewel-case we found in the bedroom. Well, the expert on burglar tools just called up; and he verifies his opinion of this morning. The case was pried open with a specially made cold chisel such as only a professional burglar would carry or would know how to use. It had an inch-and-three-eighths beveled bit and a one-inch flat handle. It was an old instrument—there was a peculiar nick in the blade—and is the same one that was used in a successful house-break on upper Park avenue early last summer. . . . Does that highly exciting information ameliorate your anxiety?"

"Can't say that it does." Vance had again become serious and perplexed. "In fact, it makes the situation still more fantastic. . . . I could see a glimmer of light—eerie and unearthly, perhaps, but still a perceptible illumination—in all this murkiness if it wasn't for that jewel-case and the steel chisel."

Markham was about to answer when Swacker again looked in and informed him that Sergt. Heath had arrived and wanted to see him.

Heath's manner was far less depressed than when we had taken leave of him that morning. He accepted the cigar Markham offered him, and seating himself at the conference table in front of the District Attorney's desk, drew out a battered note-book.

"We've had a little good luck," he began. "Burke and Emery—two of the men I put on the case—got a line on Odell at the first place they made inquiries. From what they learned, she didn't run around with many men—limited herself to a few live wires, and played the game with what you'd call finesse. . . . The principal one—the man who's been seen most with her—is Charles Clever."

Random Tunings

LISTENERS who like fine DX tuning before 10 p. m. might try for CYJ, Mexico City, which comes in a hair below WSAI (361 meters) or one of the group of Canadian stations which may be found a hair below CYJ. Sometimes a Haitian station may be caught on WSAI's wave length when the latter is off the air. PWX, as has been told, is coming through strongly between WTAM and WCCO. One of several Canadian stations using the same channel may be found just above KFI. Occasionally one can pick up a Canadian station on 434 meters, just above WLW.

Station KMBC, Kansas City, has been added to the loosely linked chain of "service to the farmer" stations of which WLS, Chicago, is the chief member. KMBC is Kansas City's most powerful station, using 1500 watts on 1100 kilocycles (270 meters). The same type of programs are broadcast at certain hours from WLS; WSB, at Atlanta, Ga.; WFAA at Dallas, Tex.; WMC, at Memphis, Tenn., and now from KMBC also. They include market reports an "R. F. D. Dinnerbell" program from noon to 1 o'clock each week day, and entertainment three nights a week. The programs are gotten up by Sears, Roebuck & Co.

At 9:30 tonight WJZ is to broadcast a concert of native melodies from the Turkish empire arranged for guitar and string ensemble by Sven von Hallberg, a Swedish musician and traveler.

Melodie Orientale, orchestra; Oriental Sketches: Street in Constantinople; [illegible] Dance, Turkish Love Song, orchestra; Kurdisch Tribesmen's Dance, orchestra; Turkish dance, steel guitar solo; Muezzin's Call, Calling Islam to Prayer; Orientale, [illegible] orchestra; Turkish Street Beggar's [illegible] steel guitar solo; Oriental Sketches: Seraglio Garden and two melodies, orchestra; and "Melodie Orientale," orchestra.

Prepare for a Sunny Future

IS that momentary impulse—that fleeting whim—worth the cost if it is bought at the expense of future safety and contentment?

Only by spending less than you make can you ever really hope to get anywhere.

The clear, certain way of making your efforts count is to make your dollars count by investing them in enterprises of seasoned merit and indisputable strength.

Cities Service Company is such an organization. Seventeen years of growth are behind it, in which time it has paid dividends totalling over $92,000,000, in cash and securities to holders of its common stock.

In addition to the $650,000,000 assets of the Cities Service organization funds invested in this concern have the protection of both geographical and industrial diversification. The organization serves 3,000 communities in 33 states, and its profits accrue from three great industries—Electricity, Gas and Petroleum.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

The Post-Dispatch reserves the right to reject any query. Personal and telephone calls or answers by mail cannot be given attention, except letters on medical questions of undoubted sincerity when accompanied by stamped addressed envelope.

MRS. J. S.—There are three Representatives from St. Louis in Washington. Your street address apparently is in the Eleventh District (North St. Louis), of which Clyde Cochran is Representative. The other Representatives are Henry A. Niedringhaus and L. C. Dyer. Write the Bureau of Pensions, Department of the Interior, Washington, D. C., about pension of a Civil War militiaman.

J. C. B.—The Department of Agriculture, Jefferson City, Mo., will mail you copy of their 1922 year book on request, which has full instructions for getting rid of rodents. To remove varnish from wood: Flour of wood pulp 385 parts, hydrochloric acid 460 parts, bleaching powder 160 parts, turpentine 5 parts. This mixture is applied to the surface and left on for some time. It is then brushed off and brings paint or varnish away with it, as it keeps moist long enough to be easily removed. Varnish, no matter how old and hard, may be softened in a few minutes so that it can be scraped off, by applying: Water glass 6 parts, soda lye (27 per cent) 1 part, ammonia water 1 part; mix.

MUCH INTERESTED.—The bluing of gun barrels is effected by heating evenly in muffle until the desired blue color is raised, the barrel being first made clean and bright with emery cloth, then allowing it to cool in the air.

To blue gun barrels by the use of chemicals: Dissolve two parts crystallized chloride of iron, two parts solid chloride of antimony, one part gallic acid in four or five parts of water; apply with a small sponge and let dry in the air. Repeat this two or three times, then wash with water and dry. Rub with boiled linseed oil to deepen the shade. Repeat this until satisfied with the result.

W. D. B.—To tan skins: Cut off the useless parts and soften the skins by soaking in warm water. Take away the fatty part from the inside, then soak the skins in tepid water two hours. Mix equal parts of borax, saltpeter and Glauber salts (sulphate of soda), about one-third of an ounce of each to each skin, with water, to make a thin paste. Spread with a brush over the inside of the skin, applying more on the thicker parts than on the thinner. Double the skins together, flesh side inward, and place in a cool place. After letting them stand 24 hours, wash the skin clean and apply the following mixture in the same way as before: One ounce, of sal soda, one-third ounce borax, two ounces hard white soap, melted slowly together without coming to the boil. Fold together again and put in a warm place for 24 hours. Then dissolve three ounces of alum, seven ounces salt, one and one-half ounces saleratus in sufficient hot rain water to saturate the skin. When cool enough not to scald the hands, soak the skin in it for 12 hours, wring out and hang up to dry. When dry, repeat the soaking and drying two or three times until the skin is sufficiently soft. Last, smooth the inside with fine sandpaper or pumice stone.

LEGAL INFORMATION

(By a Member of the St. Louis Bar Association)

DELMAR. — The stockholders could sue "A," but a criminal prosecution probably would be barred now.

J. D.—The taxes have to be paid by some one. You can make the party who sold the lot to you pay such taxes as he agreed to pay or warranted against in his deed.

ANXIOUS ANN.—The original contractor has six months in which to file a lien; a subcontractor has four months but has to serve notice on the owner at least ten days before he files his lien.

"IF I".—Your property will not be sold and divided as mentioned. As the property is owned jointly on the death of either your husband or yourself the survivor would become the sole owner.

R. F. D.—You will need a peddler's license to sell the articles from house to house. Inquire at the License Collector's office, room 102, City Hall.

ANXIOUS.—Your mother in England will have to have a British passport and an American visa, in coming to the United States. She should inquire at the nearest American Consulate.

JAKE.—You would need a building permit for the plan outlined. It cannot be said whether or not your next-door neighbor's consent would be necessary without knowing the restriction on this property and how this would affect his garage.

UNSIGNED. — Answering the writer who has been married seven months to her second husband, there appears to be no reason why you cannot renew the deed of trust without getting a divorce. Consult a lawyer in whom you have confidence and follow his advice.

MEDICAL QUESTIONS

Health and sanitation questions of public interest only will be considered. Diagnosis or treatment of individual cases will not be given.

SHORTY.—Responsible opinion concurs that there is no process or treatment successfully used to increase the height of an adult.

MRS. A. D.—There is no reason to suppose that such a condition tends to become cancerous, and while all measures taken to build up the general health will be helpful, some line of treatment could be suggested if you wish to send stamped, addressed envelope for longer reply. Refer to A. D.

THANK YOU.—Treatment is given free of charge at the venereal clinic on first floor of Municipal Courts Building, Fourteenth and Market streets, hours 9 a. m. to 9 p. m., except Saturday and Sunday, when hours are from 9 a. m. to 12.

MAURICE. — Nux vomica is a good general tonic but for the particular purpose you mention the taking of two or three orchotine tablets three times daily between meals should prove more serviceable.

N. A. W.—MARY GREEN.—A volume entitled "The Four Epochs in a Woman's Life," by Dr. Galbraith, contains the information you desire, and may be had where medical books are sold. It is more modern perhaps than some others treating the same subjects.
